PENTAGON BEGINS POW ROLL CALL

Government Moves To Avert Steel Tieup

Mediation Meeting Tomorrow; DiSalle Warns 'Unjustified' Price Boost Out

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — The government today called a mediation meeting in a last-ditch effort to head off a New Year's Day steel strike, but Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle warned there will be no "unjustified price increase" to buy peace.

The CIO steelworkers union is demanding 15 cents an hour and other benefits. The companies say they can't raise pay without price compensation.

Management and union's spokesmen were called to Washington on Thursday. The call was sent out by Cyrus S. Ching, chief of the Mediation and Conciliation Service, as direct bargaining in Pittsburgh approached a stalemate.

A few hours later the Price pronouncement was made by DiSalle, who had met with steel mill representatives to talk over possible increases under the Capehart amendment to the economic controls law.

Pay Hike Not Covered By Law

The amendment provides for ceilings reflecting all changes in costs up to July 26, but not changes since that time. Hence it would not cover the cost of a pay raise now for the steelworkers.

Reporters seeking elaboration of DiSalle's statement as to an "unjustified" price increase, asked him if there was any way aside from the Capehart amendment for a steel price rise to be allowed under the present law.

"I don't know of any," he replied.

Meanwhile in Pittsburgh negotiations between the union and U.S. Steel, giant of the industry, ground through another day with no sign of progress and no more sessions in sight until the Washington talks begin. Tomorrow was set aside for travel here.

"The corporation has made no economic offers," U.S. Steel's Vice President John A. Stephens said after the bargaining was shut down.

He said the company has received Ching's request and "we'll be there Thursday."

Murray Will Attend

"I have nothing to put forth before Mr. Ching," said Philip Murray, president of the steelworkers union, although he added that he would attend the Washington session.

The negotiators have been discussing a new contract to replace the one expiring Dec. 31.

After his two-hour conference with steel mill representatives today, DiSalle said no price increases will be granted unless they can be worked out under the economic controls law.

"There will be no automatic price increases to meet wage increases granted by the industry," the price chief told newsmen.

He added that peace in the industry "will not be bought with an unjustified price increase."

Much Of Nation Cringes Under Winter's Blows

Cold Wave Moving In; Death Toll Hits 181

[By The Associated Press]

Wide areas of the U. S. cringed under a new flurry of wintry weather blows Tuesday that sent the nation's storm deaths soaring to 181.

The heaviest snow cover of the season blanketed the Midwest. Ice storms glazed the Northeast. Much colder weather was bearing down on both sections.

A violent storm center that swept in from the Pacific Ocean caused heavy rain or snow throughout the far Northwest and Montana.

35 Below In North Dakota

The cold extended into parts of the South with Greensboro, N. C., reporting a new low of 23 and Atlanta, 31.

A cold wave and then more snow was forecast for weather-harried Chicago. Thousands of cars are stranded on snow-clogged side streets.

The new blast of Canadian cold pushing across the Midwest sent the mercury tumbling to 35 degrees below zero in Bismarck, N. D. It was -25 at International Falls, Minn.

A belt of rain and freezing rain extended from Alabama and Georgia northward into the Middle Atlantic states, with snow in the Northeast.

Transportation slithered to a crawl or halt in New York City after the freezing rain. Train and bus service was disrupted and air traffic was halted temporarily.

Maryland Schools Close

Bus service also was hit in New Jersey and several schools closed down.

Rising temperatures during the day eased conditions somewhat, but the weather bureau said a new cold front was moving in.

Schools in many counties were closed when the storm dumped seven to 11 inches more of snow on Western Maryland. Three inches of new snow fell on Cleveland, which already had been buried under nine inches.

The horse racing program was cancelled at the Charles Town (W. Va.) track because of snow.

U. S. Passports Issued To Reds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Senate investigators rapped the State Department tonight, saying it issued passports last April to a group of "notorious Communists" who traveled to Russia on a propaganda mission.

Secret testimony made public by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee showed that none of the group, made up of members and officers of various unions, stated on their passport applications that they intended to go behind the iron curtain.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), recommended that the 217 pages of testimony be turned over to the attorney general for possible perjury action based on the statements of travel plans in the passport applications.

The investigators warned that "the issuance of passports to citizens who are Communists facilitates the Cominform's courier system and the international control of the Communist apparatus."

Water Heater Blast Kills 4-Year-Old Boy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — A four-year-old boy lost his life and his mother and sister received serious scald burns today when a water heater exploded in the kitchen of their home.

Carl Broom died in a hospital from second degree burns suffered in the blast. In serious condition were his mother, Mrs. Ernestine Broom, 27, and his sister, Elizabeth, 6.

Three Win Movie "Golden Apples"; Bing Steals Show

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18 (AP) — Screen Stars Anne Baxter, William Holden and John Derek received the Golden Apple awards of the Hollywood Women's Press Club today, but Bing Crosby—who once won the club's stuffed shirt award—stole the show.

Crosby popped up in the hirsute role of Santa Claus and handed out the awards given annually by the lady writers covering movieland.

Miss Baxter received a gold apple pin for being "the most cooperative actress of 1951." Holden and Derek, who tied for male cooperation where the female scribes were concerned, each received a gold script—book, to you—marker.

Drug Kills Biologist

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 18 (AP)—Dr. Giovanni Pauletta, 36-year-old Italian biologist, died today after injecting into his veins a drug with which he was experimenting.

Authorities at the Carlo Erba Pharmaceutical Research Institute said Pauletta had previously tested the drug on animals and decided today to try it himself.

Truman Opens Long-Heralded Cleanup Drive

No-Gift Rule Laid Down By President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—President Truman swung into his long-heralded cleanup campaign tonight by laying down this rule for federal employes: No gifts from people doing business with the government.

With Christmas just around the corner, Mr. Truman said federal employes should spurn favors, gifts, unusual loans or entertainment.

He acted in the aftermath of congressional investigations studded with stories about cut-rate fur coats, deep freezes and de luxe airplane jaunts to Florida.

He expressed his views in a letter to Raymond M. Foley, head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. Foley had written the President about steps he has taken to guard against graft in his agency and to discourage would-be influence peddlers.

Policy Called Wise One

"I think the policy you have set out with respect to the acceptance of gifts by employes is a wise one, and I believe that this is the correct policy for all of the government," the President wrote.

Foley had told all his employes his agency has a "firm practice of not permitting the acceptance of any gifts or other gratuities from individuals or organizations whose activities are related to the functions of the HHFA".

"Because of the general public interest in this subject at the present time," Mr. Truman wrote, "I believe your letter should be made public as an example of the manner in which this problem has been dealt with in the past, and is being dealt with, by the government."

The White House then released both letters.

Probers To Quiz Grunewald

Meanwhile, the House committee investigating tax scandals decided to hold a special meeting Thursday to grill Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, a mystery man of its probe into tax fraud prosecutions.

Grunewald was released from Georgetown Hospital last night after treatment for nervous tension. He refused to talk to investigators who visited his bedside last week, but is under subpoena to testify Thursday before the congressmen themselves.

The House Ways and Means subcommittee headed by Rep. King (D-Calif) wants to ask Grunewald about a $1,300 loan he made to Charles Oliphant, recently resigned chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Wanger Indicted In Shooting Case

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP)—Film Producer Walter Wanger was ordered today to appear for arrangement Dec. 26 on an indictment in the triangle shooting of Jennings Lang, agent for Wanger's wife Joan Bennett.

The county grand jury charged Wanger, 57, with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder. The possible penalty is five to 14 years. He was permitted to remain at liberty on $5,000 bail posted following his arrest.

Lang, 39, was shot in the groin Thursday night as he stood beside Miss Bennett's car in a parking lot where Wanger had been waiting for them to return from a drive. Wanger told police: "I shot him because he tried to break up my home."

Wanger has been at liberty since Friday on a habeas corpus writ.

One grand jury witness, Parking Lot Attendant Sam Scott, told reporters that, after hearing loud voices, "I looked over and they were sort of grappling."

Auto License Tags Become Part Of U. S. Defense Effort

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The automobile license plate became part of the defense effort today.

The National Production Authority said that the last new plates motorists will get for the time being in 27 states will be for 1952, and in 21 the 1951 licenses will be used right on in 1952, with tags or clips used to bring them up to date.

The plan now is that the same plates will be used in 1953, brought up to date with tags or clips.

The reason, said NPA, is to save critical defense materials.

It said that 36,000 tons of scarce steel and aluminum were used in plates for slightly more than 52,000,000 vehicles this year.

In 1952, the government expects between 54,000,000 and 55,000,000 registration of cars, trucks and busses.

After license plates are issued next year, allocations of metals to make them will be cut by 80 per cent, NPA said.

It said 18 states which have agreed to help save materials by going without 1952 license plates and issuing tabs or clips instead are:

California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, Virginia and Washington.

Reporters Get First Prisoner List

Three reporters (light suits) pass down the line at the Pentagon to receive the first names of Americans listed by the Communists as alive and held in prisoner-of-war camps in Korea. E. J. Cottell (second from left), head of the Army public relations desk at the Pentagon, hands them out. Others are not identified.

Red Bloc Routed In U.N. Test Vote On Disarmament

Western Proposals Slated For Approval

PARIS, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Soviet bloc lost by an overwhelming vote late today the first test of strength in the month-long wrangle over conflicting East-West disarmament plans.

The Russians, teamed with some members of the Arab-Asian group and others, then forced a delay until tomorrow on a final vote.

The size of today's test vote indicated the Western proposals would be approved, although there are signs that they will not be given their usual thumping majority.

The talk-weary Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly voted 39 to 6 against putting ahead of all other proposals a Polish resolution creating a 12-nation disarmament commission without giving it specific instructions for its work. Burma voted with the five members of the Russian bloc while 13 countries abstained.

U. S. Opposes Adjournment

The vote on the adjournment of the meeting until tomorrow was 25 in favor, 19 opposed and 13 abstaining. The United States, Britain and France opposed adjournment; Burma, Ethiopia, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and the Russian bloc were among countries favoring the move and China, Canada and Thailand were among those abstaining. All votes were by a show of hands.

The West has usually won the votes of around 50 of the 60 U. N. members for their proposals on control of atomic energy and reduction and limitation of armaments. But the debate this year has shown that some of the Arab and Asian countries will not side with the West this time. They may not, on the final vote, cast their ballots with the Russians, but drag down the Western majority by abstaining.

Vishinsky Rans West's Plan

Western spokesmen have warned that Russian propaganda teams would seize on this development and broadcast that the Western plan for atomic control is losing ground.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky lashed at the Western plan again today as designed to create an American monopoly on atomic energy and lead nations to commit suicide. He said the Soviet Union is not ready to commit suicide.

He said a revised Western proposal, tempered by the U. S., France and Britain in an attempt to meet Vishinsky's views as far as possible, was "wishy-washy" and unacceptable.

'Miss America' Of 1946 Gives Birth To Son

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP) — Marilyn Buferd, the "Miss America" of 1946, gave birth to a son, weighing eight pounds, at St. John's Hospital today. Mother and child were "just fine."

She is the wife of Francesco Barbaro, Italian motion picture agent.

Flattop To Rejoin Fleet

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Intrepid, a 27,000-ton aircraft carrier of the Essex class, will be taken from the mothball fleet at Hunter's Point and returned to active duty soon, the Navy announced today.

U. S. Casualties In Korean Strife Reach 103,009

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Announced U. S. battle casualties in Korea reached 103,009 today, an increase of 433 since last week.

The Defense Department's weekly summary based on notifications to families through last Friday reported:

Killed in action, 15,692; wounded, 74,513, and missing 12,804.

Airline Strikers Vote To Return To Work Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—CIO transport workers have voted about eight to one to go back to work on Pan American World Airways at midnight tonight, a union spokesman said.

Exact figures on the balloting among 5,800 ground crewmen and flight service workers in five cities were not made public immediately.

James Horst, director of the union's air transport division, said the big majority of the strikers, who stopped work three days ago in a wage dispute, had voted to return to work.

Horst did not disclose immediately the vote in New York and said figures in other cities were not immediately available.

However, in Miami only seven "no" votes were reported at a meeting attended by an estimated 1,600 workers. In Seattle a local union official said about 120 workers voted unanimously to return to work. In Brownsville, Tex., and San Francisco, the vote was for postponing a strike.

The back-to-work vote followed a recommendation of the union's 25-man negotiating committee, after President Truman announced he would set up a fact-finding committee in the dispute.

The company said prior to the back-to-work balloting that it had operated 92 per cent of its scheduled flights since the strike began. Supervisory personnel took the places of strikers.

The airline said it expected to operate 100 per cent of its scheduled flights by tomorrow.

Lewis Wishes Steel Union 'Every Success'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—John L. Lewis said today that his United Mine Workers union wishes the CIO steelworkers union "every success" in their current contract negotiations.

Lewis was questioned by newsmen after he met with the UMW's 200-man national policy committee.

The miners' union chief said that the talks concerned policies to be followed in coal contract negotiations due to start in March.

Asked a number of questions about the currently threatened steel strike, Lewis declined to comment beyond this statement:

"The United Mine Workers of course wish the United Steelworkers every success in their negotiations."

No News Conference

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — President Truman will skip his usual Thursday news conference this week.

Churchill Vows Moral Support Of Europe Army

Declares Britain Will Not Join It

PARIS, Dec. 18. (AP) — Winston Churchill pledged tonight that Britain will support and work with a European army "in all the stages of its political and military development"—but will not join it.

The pronouncement immediately posed the question whether Churchill's moral support without participation would be enough to restore the waning enthusiasm of some European countries for the one-uniform international army.

But the best sources said Churchill's visit, in preparation for his talks with President Truman in Washington next month, may have results that will lead to the actual merger of European forces, including German, in Western defense.

Lunches With "Ike"

Churchill's position was stated in a joint British-French communique after he had lunched with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, strong advocate of the European army idea, and had had two days of talks between himself and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on the one side, and French Premier Rene Pleven and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman on the other. Discussions with President Vincent Auriol and W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the North Atlantic economic planners, also were sandwiched in.

Eisenhower was believed to have told Churchill that England should "come in or stay out" and engage in no half-way measures. Churchill's reported answer was that England would stay out, but would make a statement promising full cooperation with any international army the Europeans may organize.

Would "Welcome" Agreement

The communique said Churchill and Eden told their French opposite numbers that Britain would "welcome" an agreement on a European army now being worked out by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Both France and England, it continued, were "convinced that such an agreement offers the right method of integrating a democratic Germany in a purely defensive organization for European security."

Thousands Of Families Await List's Release

Army Authorities Put On Speed To Wind Up Huge Task Which May Take 48 Hours

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Pentagon tonight began releasing the names of 3,198 Americans listed by the Communists as alive and held in prisoner-of-war camps in Korea.

The Army reported that the first name on the list was that of Maj. John Daujat, serial number 0456188, next of kin, Mrs. Leona G. Daujat, 2020 Emeric Ave., San Pablo, Calif., in prison camp at Pyokdong, assigned to Korean military advisory group.

Thousands of families across the nation anxiously awaited disclosure of the full list as military authorities put on speed to complete the huge and complicated task.

The first batch released here contained only five names, but a second group of six names followed almost immediately.

In Tokyo, where the full list was handed to newsmen, reporters confirmed that the long-lost Maj. Gen. William F. Dean and AP Photographer Frank (Pappy) Noel were among those the Reds say they are holding.

Dean Last Seen July 20, 1950

There had been conflicting reports as to the fate of Dean. The fighting red-topped general, last seen striding down a road after firing a bazooka at oncoming enemy tanks on the night of July 20, 1950, had variously been reported killed, captured, and hiding out in enemy territory.

His family, including his aged mother, had said the news of his being definitely listed as a prisoner of war was "almost too good to be true."

The list released in Tokyo included only name, rank, serial number and the prison camp in which the American personnel are held.

Pentagon listings added further data on home town addresses and next of kin.

Officials said that barring transmission difficulties or delay caused by errors, the entire list might be cleared away within 48 hours. All the names were sent via military communications from Korea to Tokyo to Washington.

The Defense Department emphasized in a statement that it "cannot vouch for the accuracy" of the list since it was "supplied by enemy sources."

List May Be Padded

Allied officials expressed cautious skepticism over the accuracy of the enemy's data, declaring the list may have been padded with "fictitious" names to swell the figures, which still fell far short of expectations.

The Defense Department said the official casualty status of those listed by the Communists "will not be changed by virtue of the enemy having reported them as prisoners of war."

Actual exchange of prisoners is still in the offing, subject to the successful termination of the long-drawn Korean truce talks.

The Army said it would check the enemy-supplied list of POWs against U. S. military records of those missing in action, then release the names to the press along with home town addresses.

Air Force, Navy and Marine names will also be issued through the Army.

Russia Reports Two U. S. Spies Executed

LONDON, Dec. 18 (INS)—Moscow Radio said tonight that two Russians who were dropped into the Soviet Union from an American plane have been executed for espionage.

The brief announcement said they were shot by a firing squad.

The broadcast, monitored in London, gave the names of the executed men as A. I. Osmanov and I. K. Sarancev. It described them as "American diversionists," and said the death sentence was meted out by a military board and the judges of the supreme court of the U.S.S.R.

Reds' POW List Includes Dean, 11,558 Others

Race To Get Names To Relatives Begins

MUNSON, Korea, Wednesday, Dec. 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, missing 17 months, and 11,558 other names were listed by the Reds in a prisoner-of-war file turned over to the Allies Tuesday at Panmunjom.

Its release touched off a dramatic race to get the 3,198 names of Americans listed across the Pacific to anxious relatives. A fog-shrouded airport figured in an agonizing delay.

But there was no indication presently that release of the list would speed up efforts to reach an armistice in Korea by Dec. 27. The list fell shockingly short of the 100,000 or more Allied personnel unaccounted for and believed to have fallen into Communist hands.

Red and Allied truce teams also still were at loggerheads over numerous other details, such as supervision of a truce. The subcommittees discussing supervision met again today in Panmunjom at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST).

The Red list, given up only after repeated prodding, was exchanged for one from the Allies containing the names of 132,472 North Korean and Chinese prisoners.

The Red list of Allied prisoners was rushed to Munsan for quick study at that advance base camp of the Allied truce team.

Then a courier, Maj. Robert P. Hotaling, Blue Falls, N. Y., took it over and got aboard a B-26 light bomber piloted by Capt. Melford Lewis, Onida, S. D., at Seoul.

There the fog intervened.

The plane first taxied out for a takeoff at 3:55 a. m. today (1:55 p. m. Tuesday EST) but couldn't make it.

Hours went by before the precious list got aloft, arriving at 8:25 a. m. (6:25 p. m. Tuesday EST) at Tokyo's Haneda airport.

(The list, as transmitted from Tokyo, began arriving in the United States shortly after 7:30 p. m. Tuesday EST).

The Red radio at Peiping lost no time charging today that the Allied list of Red prisoners was unsatisfactory. It said information was lacking which was needed for identification and that the Allies said it could not be forthcoming—written in Korean and Chinese—until after Dec. 25.

Dec. 27 is the deadline set for an armistice based on a battlefront as agreed upon Nov. 27.

The Communist list said that Gen. Dean, missing as U. S. 24th Division commander since the fall of Taejon, was held in a prisoner of war camp at the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Gen. Dean, since awarded the Medal of Honor, has been variously reported as dead or missing.

Ridgway, Aides Discuss Strategy

SEOUL, Korea, Wednesday, Dec. 19. (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway lined up both his military forces and truce delegations in Korea Tuesday on future strategy in the event of a Korean armistice.

There was no indication what decisions were reached.

However, Ridgway said when the meeting ended at Munsan:

"Military and truce delegations are in complete accord."

Ridgway flew back to his Tokyo headquarters after confering with Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander and Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief U. N. command armistice delegate.

The talks coincided with exchange of prisoner lists at Panmunjom between Communist and U. N. delegates—a development generally considered a step forward in solving the prisoner exchange issue.

While the top U. N. command met, the ground war continued in its "twilight" phase. No significant action was reported on either the eastern or western fronts.

Help Pours In For Mother Fighting Dread Disease

HAWTHORNE, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP) — Friendly concern assisted by the Christmas spirit mushroomed in all directions today for a young mother suffering fro ma probably fatal disease.

In many instances the help being offered was translated into cash. In addition, letters with suggestions, advice and words of cheer were arriving in a steady stream.

The victim is Mrs. Thomas Garrett, 26, mother of thee sons, whose doctors have said Hodgkin's disease probably means this will be her last Christmas. (This is a disease of the lymphatic system).

Her husband, a World War II veteran, is working at two jobs to meet medical bills, one on the swing shift at Douglas Aircraft Co., and the other as custodian at a Hawthorne high school.

Mrs. Garrett formerly was a carhop at a drivein restaurant in neighboring Inglewood. Today two friends, carhops who formerly worked with her, announced that they have started a collection for her.

Mrs. Betty Haynes and Mrs. Betty Baucom of Inglewood said that in only three days they have collected $135, from carhops, customers and restaurant employes. They are trying to spread their campaign countrywide.

"We hope to make it big enough to that Tom Garrett can quit one of those two jobs," Mrs. Haynes said.

"I think the policy you have set out with respect to the acceptance of gifts by employes is a wise one, and I believe that this is the correct policy for all of the government," the President wrote.

Foley had told all his employes his agency has a "firm practice of not permitting the acceptance of any gifts or other gratuities from individuals or organizations whose activities are related to the functions of the HHFA".

"Because of the general public interest in this subject at the present time," Mr. Truman wrote, "I believe your letter should be made public as an example of the manner in which this problem has been dealt with in the past, and is being dealt with, by the government."

The White House then released both letters.

Probers To Quiz Grunewald

Meanwhile, the House committee investigating tax scandals decided to hold a special meeting Thursday to grill Henry (The Dutchman) Grunewald, a mystery man of its probe into tax fraud prosecutions.

Grunewald was released from Georgetown Hospital last night after treatment for nervous tension. He refused to talk to investigators who visited his bedside last week, but is under subpoena to testify Thursday before the congressmen themselves.

The House Ways and Means subcommittee headed by Rep. King (D-Calif) wants to ask Grunewald about a $1,300 loan he made to Charles Oliphant, recently resigned chief counsel of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Wanger Indicted In Shooting Case

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP)—Film Producer Walter Wanger was ordered today to appear for arrangement Dec. 26 on an indictment in the triangle shooting of Jennings Lang, agent for Wanger's wife Joan Bennett.

The county grand jury charged Wanger, 57, with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder. The possible penalty is five to 14 years. He was permitted to remain at liberty on $5,000 bail posted following his arrest.

Lang, 39, was shot in the groin Thursday night as he stood beside Miss Bennett's car in a parking lot where Wanger had been waiting for them to return from a drive. Wanger told police: "I shot him because he tried to break up my home."

Wanger has been at liberty since Friday on a habeas corpus writ.

One grand jury witness, Parking Lot Attendant Sam Scott, told reporters that, after hearing loud voices, "I looked over and they were sort of grappling."

Auto License Tags Become Part Of U. S. Defense Effort

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The automobile license plate became part of the defense effort today.

The National Production Authority said that the last new plates motorists will get for the time being in 27 states will be for 1952, and in 21 the 1951 licenses will be used right on in 1952, with tags or clips used to bring them up to date.

The plan now is that the same plates will be used in 1953, brought up to date with tags or clips.

The reason, said NPA, is to save critical defense materials.

It said that 36,000 tons of scarce steel and aluminum were used in plates for slightly more than 52,000,000 vehicles this year.

In 1952, the government expects between 54,000,000 and 55,000,000 registration of cars, trucks and busses.

After license plates are issued next year, allocations of metals to make them will be cut by 80 per cent, NPA said.

It said 18 states which have agreed to help save materials by going without 1952 license plates and issuing tabs or clips instead are:

California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Missouri, Montana, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Rhode Island, Virginia and Washington.

Red Bloc Routed In U.N. Test Vote On Disarmament

Western Proposals Slated For Approval

PARIS, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Soviet bloc lost by an overwhelming vote late today the first test of strength in the month-long wrangle over conflicting East-West disarmament plans.

The Russians, teamed with some members of the Arab-Asian group and others, then forced a delay until tomorrow on a final vote.

The size of today's test vote indicated the Western proposals would be approved, although there are signs that they will not be given their usual thumping majority.

The talk-weary Political Committee of the U. N. Assembly voted 39 to 6 against putting ahead of all other proposals a Polish resolution creating a 12-nation disarmament commission without giving it specific instructions for its work. Burma voted with the five members of the Russian bloc while 13 countries abstained.

U. S. Opposes Adjournment

The vote on the adjournment of the meeting until tomorrow was 25 in favor, 19 opposed and 13 abstaining. The United States, Britain and France opposed adjournment; Burma, Ethiopia, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq and the Russian bloc were among countries favoring the move and China, Canada and Thailand were among those abstaining. All votes were by a show of hands.

The West has usually won the votes of around 50 of the 60 U. N. members for their proposals on control of atomic energy and reduction and limitation of armaments. But the debate this year has shown that some of the Arab and Asian countries will not side with the West this time. They may not, on the final vote, cast their ballots with the Russians, but drag down the Western majority by abstaining.

Vishinsky Rans West's Plan

Western spokesmen have warned that Russian propaganda teams would seize on this development and broadcast that the Western plan for atomic control is losing ground.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky lashed at the Western plan again today as designed to create an American monopoly on atomic energy and lead nations to commit suicide. He said the Soviet Union is not ready to commit suicide.

He said a revised Western proposal, tempered by the U. S., France and Britain in an attempt to meet Vishinsky's views as far as possible, was "wishy-washy" and unacceptable.

'Miss America' Of 1946 Gives Birth To Son

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP) — Marilyn Buferd, the "Miss America" of 1946, gave birth to a son, weighing eight pounds, at St. John's Hospital today. Mother and child were "just fine."

She is the wife of Francesco Barbaro, Italian motion picture agent.

Flattop To Rejoin Fleet

U. S. Casualties In Korean Strife Reach 103,009

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Announced U. S. battle casualties in Korea reached 103,009 today, an increase of 433 since last week.

The Defense Department's weekly summary based on notifications to families through last Friday reported:

Killed in action, 15,692; wounded, 74,513, and missing 12,804.

Airline Strikers Vote To Return To Work Today

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—CIO transport workers have voted about eight to one to go back to work on Pan American World Airways at midnight tonight, a union spokesman said.

Exact figures on the balloting among 5,800 ground crewmen and flight service workers in five cities were not made public immediately.

James Horst, director of the union's air transport division, said the big majority of the strikers, who stopped work three days ago in a wage dispute, had voted to return to work.

Horst did not disclose immediately the vote in New York and said figures in other cities were not immediately available.

However, in Miami only seven "no" votes were reported at a meeting attended by an estimated 1,600 workers. In Seattle a local union official said about 120 workers voted unanimously to return to work. In Brownsville, Tex., and San Francisco, the vote was for postponing a strike.

The back-to-work vote followed a recommendation of the union's 25-man negotiating committee, after President Truman announced he would set up a fact-finding committee in the dispute.

The company said prior to the back-to-work balloting that it had operated 92 per cent of its scheduled flights since the strike began. Supervisory personnel took the places of strikers.

The airline said it expected to operate 100 per cent of its scheduled flights by tomorrow.

Lewis Wishes Steel Union 'Every Success'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—John L. Lewis said today that his United Mine Workers union wishes the CIO steelworkers union "every success" in their current contract negotiations.

Lewis was questioned by newsmen after he met with the UMW's 200-man national policy committee.

The miners' union chief said that the talks concerned policies to be followed in coal contract negotiations due to start in March.

Asked a number of questions about the currently threatened steel strike, Lewis declined to comment beyond this statement:

"The United Mine Workers of course wish the United Steelworkers every success in their negotiations."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — President Truman will skip his usual Thursday news conference this week.

Churchill Vows Moral Support Of Europe Army

Declares Britain Will Not Join It

PARIS, Dec. 18 (AP) — Winston Churchill pledged tonight that Britain will support and work with a European army "in all the stages of its political and military development"—but will not join it.

The pronouncement immediately posed the question whether Churchill's moral support without participation would be enough to restore the waning enthusiasm of some European countries for the one-uniform international army.

But the best sources said Churchill's visit, in preparation for his talks with President Truman in Washington next month, may have results that will lead to the actual merger of European forces, including German, in Western defense.

Lunches With "Ike"

Churchill's position was stated in a joint British-French communique after he had lunched with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, strong advocate of the European army idea, and had had two days of talks between himself and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on the one side, and French Premier Rene Pleven and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman on the other. Discussions with President Vincent Auriol and W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the North Atlantic economic planners, also were sandwiched in.

Eisenhower was believed to have told Churchill that England should "come in or stay out" and engage in no half-way measures. Churchill's reported answer was that England would stay out, but would make a statement promising full cooperation with any international army the Europeans may organize.

Would "Welcome" Agreement

The communique said Churchill and Eden told their French opposite numbers that Britain would "welcome" an agreement on a European army now being worked out by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Both France and England, it continued, were "convinced that such an agreement offers the right method of integrating a democratic Germany in a purely defensive organization for European security."

Thousands Of Families Await List's Release

Army Authorities Put On Speed To Wind Up Huge Task Which May Take 48 Hours

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Pentagon tonight began releasing the names of 3,198 Americans listed by the Communists as alive and held in prisoner-of-war camps in Korea.

The Army reported that the first name on the list was that of Maj. John Daujat, serial number 0456188, next of kin, Mrs. Leona G. Daujat, 2020 Emeric Ave., San Pablo, Calif., in prison camp at Pyokdong, assigned to Korean military advisory group.

Thousands of families across the nation anxiously awaited disclosure of the full list as military authorities put on speed to complete the huge and complicated task.

The first batch released here contained only five names, but a second group of six names followed almost immediately.

In Tokyo, where the full list was handed to newsmen, reporters confirmed that the long-lost Maj. Gen. William F. Dean and AP Photographer Frank (Pappy) Noel were among those the Reds say they are holding.

Dean Last Seen July 20, 1950

There had been conflicting reports as to the fate of Dean. The fighting red-topped general, last seen striding down a road after firing a bazooka at oncoming enemy tanks on the night of July 20, 1950, had variously been reported killed, captured, and hiding out in enemy territory.

His family, including his aged mother, had said the news of his being definitely listed as a prisoner of war was "almost too good to be true."

The list released in Tokyo included only name, rank, serial number and the prison camp in which the American personnel are held.

Pentagon listings added further data on home town addresses and next of kin.

Officials said that barring transmission difficulties or delay caused by errors, the entire list might be cleared away within 48 hours. All the names were sent via military communications from Korea to Tokyo to Washington.

The Defense Department emphasized in a statement that it "cannot vouch for the accuracy" of the list since it was "supplied by enemy sources."

List May Be Padded

Allied officials expressed cautious skepticism over the accuracy of the enemy's data, declaring the list may have been padded with "fictitious" names to swell the figures, which still fell far short of expectations.

The Defense Department said the official casualty status of those listed by the Communists "will not be changed by virtue of the enemy having reported them as prisoners of war."

Actual exchange of prisoners is still in the offing, subject to the successful termination of the long-drawn Korean truce talks.

The Army said it would check the enemy-supplied list of POWs against U. S. military records of those missing in action, then release the names to the press along with home town addresses.

Air Force, Navy and Marine names will also be issued through the Army.

Russia Reports Two U. S. Spies Executed

LONDON, Dec. 18 (INS)—Moscow Radio said tonight that two Russians who were dropped into the Soviet Union from an American plane have been executed for espionage.

The brief announcement said they were shot by a firing squad.

The broadcast, monitored in London, gave the names of the executed men as A. I. Osmanov and I. K. Sarancev. It described them as "American diversionists," and said the death sentence was meted out by a military board and the judges of the supreme court of the U.S.S.R.

Reds' POW List Includes Dean, 11,558 Others

Race To Get Names To Relatives Begins

MUNSON, Korea, Wednesday, Dec. 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, missing 17 months, and 11,558 other names were listed by the Reds in a prisoner-of-war file turned over to the Allies Tuesday at Panmunjom.

Its release touched off a dramatic race to get the 3,198 names of Americans listed across the Pacific to anxious relatives. A fog-shrouded airport figured in an agonizing delay.

But there was no indication presently that release of the list would speed up efforts to reach an armistice in Korea by Dec. 27. The list fell shockingly short of the 100,000 or more Allied personnel unaccounted for and believed to have fallen into Communist hands.

Red and Allied truce teams also still were at loggerheads over numerous other details, such as supervision of a truce. The subcommittees discussing supervision met again today in Panmunjom at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST).

The Red list, given up only after repeated prodding, was exchanged for one from the Allies containing the names of 132,472 North Korean and Chinese prisoners.

The Red list of Allied prisoners was rushed to Munsan for quick study at that advance base camp of the Allied truce team.

Then a courier, Maj. Robert P. Hotaling, Blue Falls, N. Y., took it over and got aboard a B-26 light bomber piloted by Capt. Melford Lewis, Onida, S. D., at Seoul.

There the fog intervened.

The plane first taxied out for a takeoff at 3:55 a. m. today (1:55 p. m. Tuesday EST) but couldn't make it.

Hours went by before the precious list got aloft, arriving at 8:25 a. m. (6:25 p. m. Tuesday EST) at Tokyo's Haneda airport.

(The list, as transmitted from Tokyo, began arriving in the United States shortly after 7:30 p. m. Tuesday EST).

The Red radio at Peiping lost no time charging today that the Allied list of Red prisoners was unsatisfactory. It said information was lacking which was needed for identification and that the Allies said it could not be forthcoming—written in Korean and Chinese—until after Dec. 25.

Dec. 27 is the deadline set for an armistice based on a battlefront as agreed upon Nov. 27.

The Communist list said that Gen. Dean, missing as U. S. 24th Division commander since the fall of Taejon, was held in a prisoner of war camp at the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Gen. Dean, since awarded the Medal of Honor, has been variously reported as dead or missing.

Ridgway, Aides Discuss Strategy

SEOUL, Korea, Wednesday, Dec. 19. (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway lined up both his military forces and truce delegations in Korea Tuesday on future strategy in the event of a Korean armistice.

There was no indication what decisions were reached.

However, Ridgway said when the meeting ended at Munsan:

"Military and truce delegations are in complete accord."

Ridgway flew back to his Tokyo headquarters after confering with Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander and Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief U. N. command armistice delegate.

The talks coincided with exchange of prisoner lists at Panmunjom between Communist and U. N. delegates—a development generally considered a step forward in solving the prisoner exchange issue.

While the top U. N. command met, the ground war continued in its "twilight" phase. No significant action was reported on either the eastern or western fronts.

Help Pours In For Mother Fighting Dread Disease

HAWTHORNE, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP) — Friendly concern assisted by the Christmas spirit mushroomed in all directions today for a young mother suffering fro ma probably fatal disease.

In many instances the help being offered was translated into cash. In addition, letters with suggestions, advice and words of cheer were arriving in a steady stream.

The victim is Mrs. Thomas Garrett, 26, mother of thee sons, whose doctors have said Hodgkin's disease probably means this will be her last Christmas. (This is a disease of the lymphatic system).

Her husband, a World War II veteran, is working at two jobs to meet medical bills, one on the swing shift at Douglas Aircraft Co., and the other as custodian at a Hawthorne high school.

Mrs. Garrett formerly was a carhop at a drivein restaurant in neighboring Inglewood. Today two friends, carhops who formerly worked with her, announced that they have started a collection for her.

Mrs. Betty Haynes and Mrs. Betty Baucom of Inglewood said that in only three days they have collected $135, from carhops, customers and restaurant employes. They are trying to spread their campaign countrywide.

"We hope to make it big enough to that Tom Garrett can quit one of those two jobs," Mrs. Haynes said.

Weather Forecast
Partly cloudy and quite cold today.

PENTAGON BEGINS POW ROLL CALL

Mediation Meeting Tomorrow; DiSalle Warns 'Unjustified' Price Boost Out

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — The government today called a mediation meeting in a last-ditch effort to head off a New Year's Day steel strike, but Price Administrator Michael V. DiSalle warned there will be no "unjustified price increase" to buy peace.

The CIO steelworkers union is demanding 15 cents an hour and other benefits. The companies say they can't raise pay without price compensation.

Management and union's spokesmen were called to Washington on Thursday. The call was sent out by Cyrus S. Ching, chief of the Mediation and Conciliation Service, as direct bargaining in Pittsburgh approached a stalemate.

A few hours later the Price pronouncement was made by DiSalle, who had met with steel mill representatives to talk over possible increases under the Capehart amendment to the economic controls law.

Pay Hike Not Covered By Law

The amendment provides for ceilings reflecting all changes in costs up to July 26, but not changes since that time. Hence it would not cover the cost of a pay raise now for the steelworkers.

Reporters seeking elaboration of DiSalle's statement as to an "unjustified" price increase, asked him if there was any way aside from the Capehart amendment for a steel price rise to be allowed under the present law.

"I don't know of any," he replied.

Meanwhile in Pittsburgh negotiations between the union and U.S. Steel, giant of the industry, ground through another day with no sign of progress and no more sessions in sight until the Washington talks begin. Tomorrow was set aside for travel here.

"The corporation has made no economic offers," U.S. Steel's Vice President John A. Stephens said after the bargaining was shut down.

He said the company has received Ching's request and "we'll be there Thursday."

Murray Will Attend

"I have nothing to put forth before Mr. Ching," said Philip Murray, president of the steelworkers union, although he added that he would attend the Washington session.

The negotiators have been discussing a new contract to replace the one expiring Dec. 31.

After his two-hour conference with steel mill representatives today, DiSalle said no price increases will be granted unless they can be worked out under the economic controls law.

"There will be no automatic price increases to meet wage increases granted by the industry," the price chief told newsmen.

He added that peace in the industry "will not be bought with an unjustified price increase."

Much Of Nation Cringes Under Winter's Blows

Cold Wave Moving In; Death Toll Hits 181

[By The Associated Press]

Wide areas of the U. S. cringed under a new flurry of wintry weather blows Tuesday that sent the nation's storm deaths soaring to 181.

The heaviest snow cover of the season blanketed the Midwest. Ice storms glazed the Northeast. Much colder weather was bearing down on both sections.

A violent storm center that swept in from the Pacific Ocean caused heavy rain or snow throughout the far Northwest and Montana.

35 Below In North Dakota

The cold extended into parts of the South with Greensboro, N. C., reporting a new low of 23 and Atlanta, 31.

A cold wave and then more snow was forecast for weather-harried Chicago. Thousands of cars are stranded on snow-clogged side streets.

The new blast of Canadian cold pushing across the Midwest sent the mercury tumbling to 35 degrees below zero in Bismarck, N. D. It was -25 at International Falls, Minn.

A belt of rain and freezing rain extended from Alabama and Georgia northward into the Middle Atlantic states, with snow in the Northeast.

Transportation slithered to a crawl or halt in New York City after the freezing rain. Train and bus service was disrupted and air traffic was halted temporarily.

Maryland Schools Close

Bus service also was hit in New Jersey and several schools closed down.

Rising temperatures during the day eased conditions somewhat, but the weather bureau said a new cold front was moving in.

Schools in many counties were closed when the storm dumped seven to 11 inches more of snow on Western Maryland. Three inches of new snow fell on Cleveland, which already had been buried under nine inches.

The horse racing program was cancelled at the Charles Town (W. Va.) track because of snow.

U. S. Passports Issued To Reds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Senate investigators rapped the State Department tonight, saying it issued passports last April to a group of "notorious Communists" who traveled to Russia on a propaganda mission.

Secret testimony made public by the Senate Internal Security subcommittee showed that none of the group, made up of members and officers of various unions, stated on their passport applications that they intended to go behind the iron curtain.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. McCarran (D-Nev), recommended that the 217 pages of testimony be turned over to the attorney general for possible perjury action based on the statements of travel plans in the passport applications.

The investigators warned that "the issuance of passports to citizens who are Communists facilitates the Cominform's courier system and the international control of the Communist apparatus."

Water Heater Blast Kills 4-Year-Old Boy

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — A four-year-old boy lost his life and his mother and sister received serious scald burns today when a water heater exploded in the kitchen of their home.

Carl Broom died in a hospital from second degree burns suffered in the blast. In serious condition were his mother, Mrs. Ernestine Broom, 27, and his sister, Elizabeth, 6.

Three Win Movie "Golden Apples"; Bing Steals Show

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18 (AP) — Screen Stars Anne Baxter, William Holden and John Derek received the Golden Apple awards of the Hollywood Women's Press Club today, but Bing Crosby—who once won the club's stuffed shirt award—stole the show.

Crosby popped up in the hirsute role of Santa Claus and handed out the awards given annually by the lady writers covering movieland.

Miss Baxter received a gold apple pin for being "the most cooperative actress of 1951." Holden and Derek, who tied for male cooperation where the female scribes were concerned, each received a gold script—book, to you—marker.

Drug Kills Biologist

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 18 (AP)—Dr. Giovanni Pauletta, 36-year-old Italian biologist, died today after injecting into his veins a drug with which he was experimenting.

Authorities at the Carlo Erba Pharmaceutical Research Institute said Pauletta had previously tested the drug on animals and decided today to try it himself.

Truman Opens Long-Heralded Cleanup Drive

No-Gift Rule Laid Down By President

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—President Truman swung into his long-heralded cleanup campaign tonight by laying down this rule for federal employes: No gifts from people doing business with the government.

With Christmas just around the corner, Mr. Truman said federal employes should spurn favors, gifts, unusual loans or entertainment.

He acted in the aftermath of congressional investigations studded with stories about cut-rate fur coats, deep freezes and de luxe airplane jaunts to Florida.

He expressed his views in a letter to Raymond M. Foley, head of the Housing and Home Finance Agency. Foley had written the President about steps he has taken to guard against graft in his agency and to discourage would-be influence peddlers.

Policy Called Wise One

"I think the policy you have set out with respect to the acceptance of gifts by employes is a wise one, and I believe that this is the correct policy for all of the government," the President wrote.

Foley had told all his employes his agency has a "firm practice of not permitting the acceptance of any gifts or other gratuities from individuals or organizations whose activities are related to the functions of the HHFA".

"Because of the general public interest in this subject at the present time," Mr. Truman wrote, "I believe your letter should be made public as an example of the manner in which this problem has been dealt with in the past, and is being dealt with, by the government."

The White House then released both letters.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—CIO transport workers have voted about eight to one to go back to work on Pan American World Airways at midnight tonight, a union spokesman said.

Exact figures on the balloting among 5,800 ground crewmen and flight service workers in five cities were not made public immediately.

James Horst, director of the union's air transport division, said the big majority of the strikers, who stopped work three days ago in a wage dispute, had voted to return to work.

Horst did not disclose immediately the vote in New York and said figures in other cities were not immediately available.

However, in Miami only seven "no" votes were reported at a meeting attended by an estimated 1,600 workers. In Seattle a local union official said about 120 workers voted unanimously to return to work. In Brownsville, Tex., and San Francisco, the vote was for postponing a strike.

The back-to-work vote followed a recommendation of the union's 25-man negotiating committee, after President Truman announced he would set up a fact-finding committee in the dispute.

The company said prior to the back-to-work balloting that it had operated 92 per cent of its scheduled flights since the strike began. Supervisory personnel took the places of strikers.

The airline said it expected to operate 100 per cent of its scheduled flights by tomorrow.

Lewis Wishes Steel Union 'Every Success'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—John L. Lewis said today that his United Mine Workers union wishes the CIO steelworkers union "every success" in their current contract negotiations.

Lewis was questioned by newsmen after he met with the UMW's 200-man national policy committee.

The miners' union chief said that the talks concerned policies to be followed in coal contract negotiations due to start in March.

Asked a number of questions about the currently threatened steel strike, Lewis declined to comment beyond this statement:

"The United Mine Workers of course wish the United Steelworkers every success in their negotiations."

Churchill Vows Moral Support Of Europe Army

Declares Britain Will Not Join It

PARIS, Dec. 18 (AP) — Winston Churchill pledged tonight that Britain will support and work with a European army 'in all the stages of its political and military development"—but will not join it.

The pronouncement immediately posed the question whether Churchill's moral support without participation would be enough to restore the waning enthusiasm of some European countries for the one-uniform international army.

But the best sources said Churchill's visit, in preparation for his talks with President Truman in Washington next month, may have results that will lead to the actual merger of European forces, including German, in Western defense.

Lunches With "Ike"

Churchill's position was stated in a joint British-French communique after he had lunched with Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, strong advocate of the European army idea, and had had two days of talks between himself and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden on the one side, and French Premier Rene Pleven and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman on the other. Discussions with President Vincent Auriol and W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the North Atlantic economic planners, also were sandwiched in.

Eisenhower was believed to have told Churchill that England should "come in or stay out" and engage in no half-way measures. Churchill's reported answer was that England would stay out, but would make a statement promising full cooperation with any international army the Europeans may organize.

Would "Welcome" Agreement

The communique said Churchill and Eden told their French opposite numbers that Britain would "welcome" an agreement on a European army now being worked out by France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

Both France and England, it continued, were "convinced that such an agreement offers the right method of integrating a democratic Germany in a purely defensive organization for European security."

Thousands Of Families Await List's Release

Army Authorities Put On Speed To Wind Up Huge Task Which May Take 48 Hours

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Pentagon tonight began releasing the names of 3,198 Americans listed by the Communists as alive and held in prisoner-of-war camps in Korea.

The Army reported that the first name on the list was that of Maj. John Daujat, serial number 0456188, next of kin, Mrs. Leona G. Daujat, 2020 Emeric Ave., San Pablo, Calif., in prison camp at Pyokdong, assigned to Korean military advisory group.

Thousands of families across the nation anxiously awaited disclosure of the full list as military authorities put on speed to complete the huge and complicated task.

The first batch released here contained only five names, but a second group of six names followed almost immediately.

In Tokyo, where the full list was handed to newsmen, reporters confirmed that the long-lost Maj. Gen. William F. Dean and AP Photographer Frank (Pappy) Noel were among those the Reds say they are holding.

Dean Last Seen July 20, 1950

There had been conflicting reports as to the fate of Dean. The fighting red-topped general, last seen striding down a road after firing a bazooka at oncoming enemy tanks on the night of July 20, 1950, had variously been reported killed, captured, and hiding out in enemy territory.

His family, including his aged mother, had said the news of his being definitely listed as a prisoner of war was "almost too good to be true."

The list released in Tokyo included only name, rank, serial number and the prison camp in which the American personnel are held.

Pentagon listings added further data on home town addresses and next of kin.

Officials said that barring transmission difficulties or delay caused by errors, the entire list might be cleared away within 48 hours. All the names were sent via military communications from Korea to Tokyo to Washington.

The Defense Department emphasized in a statement that it "cannot vouch for the accuracy" of the list since it was "supplied by enemy sources."

List May Be Padded

Allied officials expressed cautious skepticism over the accuracy of the enemy's data, declaring the list may have been padded with "fictitious" names to swell the figures, which still fell far short of expectations.

The Defense Department said the official casualty status of those listed by the Communists "will not be changed by virtue of the enemy having reported them as prisoners of war."

Actual exchange of prisoners is still in the offing, subject to the successful termination of the long-drawn Korean truce talks.

The Army said it would check the enemy-supplied list of POWs against U. S. military records of those missing in action, then release the names to the press along with home town addresses.

Air Force, Navy and Marine names will also be issued through the Army.

Russia Reports Two U. S. Spies Executed

LONDON, Dec. 18 (INS)—Moscow Radio said tonight that two Russians who were dropped into the Soviet Union from an American plane have been executed for espionage.

The brief announcement said they were shot by a firing squad.

The broadcast, monitored in London, gave the names of the executed men as A. I. Osmanov and I. K. Sarancev. It described them as "American diversionists," and said the death sentence was meted out by a military board and the judges of the supreme court of the U.S.S.R.

Reds' POW List Includes Dean, 11,558 Others

Race To Get Names To Relatives Begins

MUNSON, Korea, Wednesday, Dec. 19 (AP)—Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, missing 17 months, and 11,558 other names were listed by the Reds in a prisoner-of-war file turned over to the Allies Tuesday at Panmunjom.

Its release touched off a dramatic race to get the 3,198 names of Americans listed across the Pacific to anxious relatives. A fog-shrouded airport figured in an agonizing delay.

But there was no indication presently that release of the list would speed up efforts to reach an armistice in Korea by Dec. 27. The list fell shockingly short of the 100,000 or more Allied personnel unaccounted for and believed to have fallen into Communist hands.

Red and Allied truce teams also still were at loggerheads over numerous other details, such as supervision of a truce. The subcommittees discussing supervision met again today in Panmunjom at 11 a. m. (9 p. m. Tuesday, EST).

The Red list, given up only after repeated prodding, was exchanged for one from the Allies containing the names of 132,472 North Korean and Chinese prisoners.

The Red list of Allied prisoners was rushed to Munsan for quick study at that advance base camp of the Allied truce team.

Then a courier, Maj. Robert P. Hotaling, Blue Falls, N. Y., took it over and got aboard a B-26 light bomber piloted by Capt. Melford Lewis, Onida, S. D., at Seoul.

There the fog intervened.

The plane first taxied out for a takeoff at 3:55 a. m. today (1:55 p. m. Tuesday EST) but couldn't make it.

Hours went by before the precious list got aloft, arriving at 8:25 a. m. (6:25 p. m. Tuesday EST) at Tokyo's Haneda airport.

(The list, as transmitted from Tokyo, began arriving in the United States shortly after 7:30 p. m. Tuesday EST).

The Red radio at Peiping lost no time charging today that the Allied list of Red prisoners was unsatisfactory. It said information was lacking which was needed for identification and that the Allies said it could not be forthcoming—written in Korean and Chinese—until after Dec. 25.

Dec. 27 is the deadline set for an armistice based on a battlefront as agreed upon Nov. 27.

The Communist list said that Gen. Dean, missing as U. S. 24th Division commander since the fall of Taejon, was held in a prisoner of war camp at the North Korean capital of Pyongyang.

Gen. Dean, since awarded the Medal of Honor, has been variously reported as dead or missing.

Ridgway, Aides Discuss Strategy

SEOUL, Korea, Wednesday, Dec. 19. (AP)—Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway lined up both his military forces and truce delegations in Korea Tuesday on future strategy in the event of a Korean armistice.

There was no indication what decisions were reached.

However, Ridgway said when the meeting ended at Munsan:

"Military and truce delegations are in complete accord."

Ridgway flew back to his Tokyo headquarters after confering with Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U. S. Eighth Army commander and Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief U. N. command armistice delegate.

The talks coincided with exchange of prisoner lists at Panmunjom between Communist and U. N. delegates—a development generally considered a step forward in solving the prisoner exchange issue.

While the top U. N. command met, the ground war continued in its "twilight" phase. No significant action was reported on either the eastern or western fronts.

Help Pours In For Mother Fighting Dread Disease

HAWTHORNE, Calif., Dec. 18 (AP) — Friendly concern assisted by the Christmas spirit mushroomed in all directions today for a young mother suffering fro ma probably fatal disease.

In many instances the help being offered was translated into cash. In addition, letters with suggestions, advice and words of cheer were arriving in a steady stream.

The victim is Mrs. Thomas Garrett, 26, mother of thee sons, whose doctors have said Hodgkin's disease probably means this will be her last Christmas. (This is a disease of the lymphatic system).

Her husband, a World War II veteran, is working at two jobs to meet medical bills, one on the swing shift at Douglas Aircraft Co., and the other as custodian at a Hawthorne high school.

Mrs. Garrett formerly was a carhop at a drivein restaurant in neighboring Inglewood. Today two friends, carhops who formerly worked with her, announced that they have started a collection for her.

Mrs. Betty Haynes and Mrs. Betty Baucom of Inglewood said that in only three days they have collected $135, from carhops, customers and restaurant employes. They are trying to spread their campaign countrywide.

"We hope to make it big enough to that Tom Garrett can quit one of those two jobs," Mrs. Haynes said.

Top Jet Ace Has Cost Communists Over $2,000,000

ADVANCED AIRBASE IN KOREA—(INS)—Maj. George A. Davis, Jr., the top jet ace of all time, has cost the Communists to date some two and a half million dollars worth of airplanes.

But the "MIG killer," who downed 12 Red planes in 16 days, probably would not get a tumble for a Hollywood role of a hot pilot — he doesn't look the part.

The Lubbock, Tex., Sabrejet pilot is a short, slim five-feet-seven, with graying dark hair. He also has a wife and two children, is 31 years old and shy.

One of his crewmen said: "He looks about as aggressive as Peter Rabbit."

Whatever the impression his looks and personality give, to the Communist pilots he meets he must seem as ferocious and dangerous as Flash Gordon and Superman wrapped up into one.

They have good reason to be afraid of him. Davis has been flying combat in Korea only since Nov. 1 and he did not get his first "kill" until Nov. 27.

Since then, he has downed nine MIG-15 jets, to become the world's greatest jet ace, got one probable and damaged two others. In addition, he has destroyed three TU-2s, the Russian-built twin-engine bomber, and damaged one more.

At current prices that easily adds up to two and a half million dollars, a lot of destruction for 16 days.

In World War II Davis flew 266 missions in fighter planes in and around the Philippine islands, bagging seven Japanese planes and becoming an ace. He won the Silver Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross with two clusters and the Air Medal with eight clusters.

Davis, after warming up with two MIG "kills" on Nov. 27, had a field day on the 30th, downing one MIG and three TU-2s, and for this has been recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross.

On Dec. 5 he got two more MIGs, then Thursday killed four more—two in the morning and two more after lunch on his 31st mission.

Back in Lubbock, Davis likes to go duck hunting, but he shyly says:

"I'd a lot rather shoot MIGs than ducks. I've been having a lot of fun up there."

Like so many of the Sabrejet pilots, Davis thinks the Russian-built MIG-15 is generally a better plane than the F-86 Sabre. He said:

"The MIG can outclimb us at any altitude. At over 30,000 feet it'll outmaneuver us. The only thing we're faster at is diving—straight down.

"Their cannon is a lot more accurate than our .50 calibre guns and they have more distance. If we had cannons that could fire as fast as our 50s, a lot of our damages (damage claims) would be kills."

Top Jet Ace Has Cost Communists Over $2,000,000

ADVANCED AIRBASE IN KOREA—(INS)—Maj. George A. Davis, Jr., the top jet ace of all time, has cost the Communists to date some two and a half million dollars worth of airplanes.

But the "MIG killer," who downed 12 Red planes in 16 days, probably would not get a tumble for a Hollywood role of a hot pilot — he doesn't look the part.

The Lubbock, Tex., Sabrejet pilot is a short, slim five-feet-seven, with graying dark hair. He also has a wife and two children, is 31 years old and shy.

One of his crewmen said: "He looks about as aggressive as Peter Rabbit."

Whatever the impression his looks and personality give, to the Communist pilots he meets he must seem as ferocious and dangerous as Flash Gordon and Superman wrapped up into one.

They have good reason to be afraid of him. Davis has been flying combat in Korea only since Nov. 1 and he did not get his first "kill" until Nov. 27.

Since then, he has downed nine MIG-15 jets, to become the world's greatest jet ace, got one probable and damaged two others. In addition, he has destroyed three TU-2s, the Russian-built twin-engine bomber, and damaged one more.

At current prices that easily adds up to two and a half million dollars, a lot of destruction for 16 days.

In World War II Davis flew 266 missions in fighter planes in and around the Philippine islands, bagging seven Japanese planes and becoming an ace. He won the Silver Star, the Distinguished Flying Cross with two clusters and the Air Medal with eight clusters.

Davis, after warming up with two MIG "kills" on Nov. 27, had a field day on the 30th, downing one MIG and three TU-2s, and for this has been recommended for the Distinguished Service Cross.

On Dec. 5 he got two more MIGs, then Thursday killed four more—two in the morning and two more after lunch on his 31st mission.

Back in Lubbock, Davis likes to go duck hunting, but he shyly says:

"I'd a lot rather shoot MIGs than ducks. I've been having a lot of fun up there."

Like so many of the Sabrejet pilots, Davis thinks the Russian-built MIG-15 is generally a better plane than the F-86 Sabre. He said:

"The MIG can outclimb us at any altitude. At over 30,000 feet it'll outmaneuver us. The only thing we're faster at is diving—straight down.

"Their cannon is a lot more accurate than our .50 calibre guns and they have more distance. If we had cannons that could fire as fast as our 50s, a lot of our damages (damage claims) would be kills."

1. Road Test the Ride!

SLIP BEHIND THE WHEEL. Ease this beauty out onto the open road. Then settle back and let a brand-new, high-compression V-8 powered Mercury speak for itself—with the kind of action that "eats up" the miles without denting your pocketbook.

Make a point of looking into Mercury yourself. Discover what a dollar-stretcher it really is. Call us for a road test today.

3-WAY CHOICE! For "the drive of your life!" Mercury offers a triple choice in dependable transmissions. Merc-O-Matic Drive, the new simpler, smoother, more efficient automatic transmission—or thrifty Touch-O-Matic Overdrive are optional at extra cost. There's also silent-ease standard transmission.

Standard equipment, accessories, and trim illustrated are subject to change without notice.

2. Budget Test the Value!

Does it have a down-to-earth first price? Mercury's price tag is one you can understand—a big dollar's worth for every dollar invested.

Will you be sure of good gasoline mileage? Mercury has proved its more-miles-per-gallon by winning officially sponsored economy tests.

Will upkeep stay low? You save money year after year. Mercury's famous stamina keeps repair bills at a rock-bottom low.

Is it famous for long life? It is indeed! 92% of all Mercurys ever built for use in the U. S. are still on the road, according to the latest official annual registration figures.

Will trade-in value stay high? Mercurys keep their value; used car market reports consistently prove it.

Does it represent solid value? Mercury owners say YES! So will you when you get the rest of the story from your Mercury dealer. Drop in today and see.

Make the MERCURY 2-Way Test FOR "THE BUY OF YOUR LIFE!"

The Christmas Tree

There is no excuse this year for sad, bedraggled and motheaten Christmas trees in American homes. If shopping is done carefully, the family Christmas tree in 1951 can be greener, fresher and more symmetrical than it has been at any time since Yule trees became big business.

The Agriculture Department's U. S. Forest Service is working to improve Christmas trees. This year special emphasis has been placed on quality of the trees shipped to market by farmers and commercial growers, the National Geographic Society reports.

Federal forecasters declare scientific Christmas tree marketing is good conservation practice. Balsam firs, spruces, pines and other conifers cut from farm or commercial stands of timber clear out the land for more healthy growth of larger trees—sawlogs, pulpwood, or good Christmas trees for future years.

There should be as many trees on the market this year as there were in 1950—about 28,000,000, or enough to supply the nationwide market. There will be more than 28,000,000 families with Christmas trees, though. Many farmers and others will cut their own.

The Christmas tree industry grosses more than $50,000,000 annually. One Minnesota grower cuts and ships 1,400,000 trees a year, most of them tabletop size, 36 to 40 inches high. Many of these are dyed silver, red or white, but natural green remains the favorite.

To most Americans the Christmas tree is a tradition that seems as old as the era. Actually, the first decorated trees were introduced to the United States by homesick Germans about 1840. One newly emigrated pastor from Germany almost lost his pulpit in Cleveland in 1851 because he set up a tree in his church. Exhibition of a tree in a church was branded as idolatrous and irreligious. Use of the Christmas tree sprang up in Germany in the Middle Ages.

Globe Trotters

When Congress shut up shop on last October 20 it did so with an assurance from President Truman that, except in case of a grave national emergency, the lawmakers would not be called back to Washington before their regularly scheduled meeting in January. No emergency requiring the immediate presence of Congress has arisen to date, and that is well, for it is doubtful whether either house could have mustered a quorum without calling members back from all quarters of the globe.

During recent weeks press dispatches have reported the activities of committees, subcommittees, and individual senators and representatives in such far away places as Ankara, Cairo, New Delhi, Karachi, and Taipeh. An official delegation of 14 attended the European Consultative Assembly as observers, two Senate and two House members were advisers to the American delegation to an agricultural conference at Rome, two representatives were U. S. delegates to the U. N. Assembly at Paris.

Many of those who visited or passed through France called on Gen. Eisenhower. Others were received by Pope Pius in Rome, Franco in Madrid, Tito in Belgrade, Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa. None has seen Stalin at the Kremlin. A proposed tour of Russia by a 50-member "Committee of Friendship" from the American Congress turned out to be inappropriate.

Favorite subject of investigation in Europe was uses being made of Marshall Plan aid. Point Four projects were looked into in many parts of the world. Inquiries were made into operations under Export-Import Bank loans, and one committee toured Latin America to check on progress of the Inter-American Highway.

The returning law-makers should be better informed on foreign conditions than any group that has ever sat in the American Congress. Their acquisition of knowledge has set the taxpayers back something like a million dollars, but this is only a small fraction of the billions that will be laid out next year on foreign aid, and the congressional travel may well turn out to have been worth its cost.

Science And Loyalty

They can test you for almost anything nowadays. There are intelligence tests to tell how smart you are, personality tests to feel out the gestalt of your emotional maturity, aptitude tests to estimate your probability of success as an artist, an undertaker, or an engineer.

Their value depends partly on their accuracy, mainly on how intelligently the results are interpreted and applied.

But no one, so far as we can ascertain, has devised a psychometric test for loyalty. And we aren't going to believe it until we see it.

While we are waiting to be shown, efforts are to be made to develop such tests. A foundation has made a grant of $100,000 for scientific studies: Is it possible for tests to show who has the qualities of character that might cause him to betray his country under stress.

If a test claiming such capacity is devised, it can be tried on prisoners found guilty of disloyalty and on men of supposed outstanding loyalty to see how well it distinguishes between the two groups.

Of course, the results might be confusing if the group of traitors included some men wrongfully convicted and the group of loyalists contained traitors not yet caught at it.

The same procedure might be tried with tests already existing. Application of the Rorschach "inkblot" test might reveal, for instance, a certain constellation of personality characteristics correlated with the quality appraised as loyalty. Or the polygraph "lie detector" test might set up a list of association-words to which the blood pressure and other indicators might react differently in the loyal and the disloyal. A combination of the two might provide a double-check.

Start At The Top

Applause has followed the order of the Navy high command amending its officer-rating system to include "cost-consciousness" in the qualities which will be marked in reporting a man's efficiency. This is plainly a move in the right direction and if rigidly followed up will put an end to much extravagance and carelessness in the use of government property.

Whether it represents "a new era in military operations," as Senator Johnson of Texas suggests, is however a question which cannot be answered at this time. A great deal will depend on the attitude of the naval leaders themselves. If they set the right example to the officers below them the program will have a chance of success. If they are personally wasteful and grasping, nothing of consequence will come from the reform.

Here distinctly is a case whether it is not sufficient for the teacher merely to tell the pupil to do "as I say." Teacher must actually do what he asks the pupil to do.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Spots And Fevers

Spots go with some fevers like belles with beaus. In many diseases the rash is the distinguishing feature and offers the only clue to the diagnosis. The contrary also is true, as in other ailments the blemishes are of the garden variety and may confuse rather than help the practitioner.

The best known diseases accompanied by a rash are those produced by the virus. These include measles, German measles, smallpox, and chickenpox. Blood poisoning is another cause, especially when the meningococcus, staphylococcus, or the streptococcus is the culprit. Here the spots are made by small hemorrhages into the skin and if the tiny clots are dissected and studied under the microscope the causative germ often can be seen.

The "rose spot" of typhoid fever is another example. This rash generally breaks out on the chest and abdomen, lasts for three days, then disappears. The rickettsial organisms also are spot producers. Included in this type of disorder is Rocky Mountain spotted fever which has the most descriptive term. The only inconsistency in the name is that the infection is not confined to the Rocky Mountain area; it is just as prevalent on the east coast of the United States, in western Canada, Brazil, and Colombia. The malady was discovered originally in Idaho and we now know that transmission occurs through the bite of an infected tick. The skin lesions are small, brownish in color, and have a tendency to be more numerous and prominent on the extremities, particularly about the wrists and ankles. The victim has fever associated with aching, restlessness, insomnia, and prostration. In the days when there was no specific remedy, many failed to survive the first week. Good reports are being obtained on the use of the newer antibiotics, chloromycetin and aureomycin. These preparations shorten the course of the disease and lessen the risk of death.

Typhus fever is a near relative of Rocky Mountain spotted fever. It is acquired through the bite of a rat flea that is harboring the causative virus. It begins like an ordinary attack of flu, with chills, headache, and nausea. Within a few days an eruption appears that is red at first and becomes darker in the next 24 to 72 hours. Meanwhile, fever, dullness, lack of appetite, and now and then complete disorientation follow. Those who survive this period are rewarded by spontaneous recovery in the third week of illness.

Rickettsial infections are becoming more and more prevalent. Modern transportation is responsible in some instances because it is bringing more and more travelers from distant lands. Rickettsialpox is one of the newest diseases traceable to these germs. There were a number of cases in a limited area in New York City and a few also were encountered in Boston. The medical profession is not satisfied with this name but the "pox" suffix describes the spots that developed over the skin of the victim. Most rickettsail disorders are diagnosed by studying the blood but because such tests usually take several days to a week to become positive they are of little practical value so far as treatment is concerned.

NEW DRUG

B. T. writes: I went to the druggist to buy the new sleeping pills that are supposed to harmless. He said he didn't have a supply as yet but when the drug came he could not sell it without a prescription. Why is this necessary if it is harmless?

REPLY

When I saw this news release my immediate reaction was to wonder whether the drug is as harmless as stated. Apparently your druggist is obeying the law and should be commended and not criticized for his action.

ASPIRIN

H. A. writes: So many people take aspirin for colds, headaches, fever, and other discomforts I have been wondering whether it cures anything?

REPLY

No, but it offers temporary relief.

MURMUR

A. Z. writes: I have a slight heart murmur. Can you send me your method of strengthening the heart?

REPLY

I have no method of strengthening the heart. If the murmur originates from anemia, a vitamin B deficiency, or a thyroid disturbance, when these conditions are remedied the murmur usually disappears. On the other hand, if there is "leakage" of the heart nothing can be done to overcome the disturbance and the individual must learn to live with it.

CONCURRENT TREATMENT

H. Z. writes: When ACTH or cortisone is given in arthritis, are other treatments used at the same time.

REPLY

Physiotherapy (heat and massage) usually are continued and the individual is urged to improve his general health by adequate rest, eating properly, and supplementing the diet with vitamins and minerals.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

New Administrations Feature Graft Clean-ups; Major Tax Cases Settled Under Morgenthau Regime; Inadequate Truman Appointees Please Gamblers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of Drew Pearson's penetrating columns on the subject uppermost in the nation's mind—graft in the collection of income taxes.

WASHINGTON — Almost every administration when it first takes office uses a new broom when it comes to tax evasion. It cleans up at the expense of the administration which preceded it. Then it leans on the broom.

Part of this broom-leaning, of course, is because the graft it would have to clean out later is its own graft; and the clean-up would hurt people in high places.

Thus, just as Roosevelt came into office, an important start was made toward a tax-fraud clean-up. Actually, it was started by Republican Progressive Senators Blaine of Wisconsin and Brookhart of Iowa two months before Roosevelt was inaugurated, but continued by FDR with the prosecution of Andrew Mellon, the man entrusted with collecting taxes under Hoover and Coolidge; and of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank. A total of $6,387,137 was also collected from Benedum Trees, the Pittsburgh oil millionaire, and public attention was called to the legal tax-dodging schemes of James Forrestal and various J. P. Morgan partners.

Today, Washington has the famed Mellon Art Gallery because the former secretary of the treasury realized he would have to win public support with a magnificent gesture if he were to escape criminal prosecution for tax evasion.

Morgenthau's Tax System

Following this tax clean-up, the Roosevelt administration settled down to a long period of reasonably honest tax-collecting. There were some tax cases fixed in Roosevelt's day—to be discussed in a later column. But eager-beaver Henry Morgenthau made such a squawk about them that even FDR was reluctant to arouse Henry's ire.

Furthermore, Morgenthau built up the most efficient tax-collecting system this country had ever seen. His counsel of Internal Revenue was Robert Jackson, who did such an outstanding job that he was later elevated to the Supreme Court; while the chief of his intelligence unit was an incorruptible old tyrant named Elmer Irey.

In Jackson's old place, Truman appointed weak-sister Charles Oliphant, recently a pathetic witness before the King committee; and in Irey's place he appointed W. H. Woolf, honest but not vigilant.

As commissioner of internal revenue, Truman appointed a mediocrity named George Schoeneman, who previously had been mixed up in a matter which could not bear the light of day; while as deputy commissioner he appointed Dan Bolich, who, when he took the oath of office, received so many flowers that the swearing-in ceremony looked like a gangster's funeral. Obviously a lot of people were overjoyed that Bolich should be collecting taxes, and some of them later turned out to be gangsters.

All these appointments were made after Bob Hannegan, friend of the big-city bosses, took over the Democratic National Committee and the political fortunes of Harry Truman.

Sacrosanct Frankie Costello

When Hannegan was promoted from commissioner of Internal Revenue to national chairman, he appointed as his successor Joseph Nunan, who had been collector in New York. Nunan, in turn, retired Hugh McQuillen, forthright chief of the New York Intelligence Unit, replacing him with Dan Bolich. In this key spot Bolich had the power of tax life or death over big-shot gamblers, big business, or anyone else in New York.

Later, Nunan stepped out to practice law, leaving behind him his friend Dan Bolish, who became deputy commissioner in Washington the No. 2 spot for collecting the taxes of the entire nation.

Among Nunan's clients, incidentally, were the night-club owners of New York, which includes the king of the gamblers, Frankie Costello.

At about this time, also, Harry Apslinger, narcotics commissioner, was watching Costello for possible connection with the dope rackets, but, because of his limited staff, he had the help of 12 Internal Revenue agents. This was a natural cooperation, since both narcotics and revenue are under the treasury.

But suddenly Bolich demanded that the 12 revenue men be taken off the Costello assignment. Anslinger protested, but it did no good.

I had been following Costello for some time, and reported Bolich's lack of interest in Costello to Tom Clark, then attorney general, who promised to see that the agents were kept on Costello.

However, the Justice Department has not even moved to deport Costello for perjury in connection with his naturalization; meanwhile, Bolich played a part in delaying prosecution of one of the biggest gambling cases—The Guaranty Finance Company of California.

Shot Morale

Naturally, all this makes for discouragement among the many tax agents whose job it is to collect the nation's taxes. Backbone of the tax organization is the Intelligence

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Return Of Eisenhower

It is generally accepted that General Dwight Eisenhower will resign from NATO on February 21 and will return to the United States. That date will mark the first anniversary of his assumption of the Supreme Command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It is generally assumed that by March 1, General Eisenhower will be back at Columbia University and will declare himself to be a candidate for the nomination for president as a Republican. There seems to be no prospect of General Eisenhower being a Democratic candidate under any circumstances.

Two problems face General Eisenhower in this connection:

1. As architect of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, he must assume responsibility for its success or failure. In the event that he can report success, criticism will not be possible of his leaving the task before it is completed. He can say that he started it; that it got off to a good start; and that he can leave it in good hands while he runs for president.

On the other hand, if the course of events shows that NATO is a flop, then he will have to assume responsibility for leaving so great a venture hanging in the air.

2. European cooperation with the United States in NATO is of such a character that it may become a serious campaign issue. The plan has been that this is not to be another Korea; that there will be genuine manpower cooperation among the nations composing NATO.

British Share

But we discover that Great Britain is not providing additional troops for NATO. Churchill is either playing cagey, that is, he is holding up cooperation until he gets more dollars here, or he actually, in the face of troubles in Egypt, Burma, Malaya and other places, cannot commit Great Britain any further.

Equally, France can afford no more commitments than at present available. The French insist that they spend as much on the defense of Indo-China as they get out of the Marshall Plan. Also, the French are making no profits out of their colony.

So, Eisenhower will have to depend upon Western Germany, which is being supported financially by the United States. The burden of German rearmament—12 divisions—for the first year has been estimated at $14,000,000,000. The NATO powers have already estimated $45,000,000,000 American aid will be essential for the next three years.

The question arises whether the German people will stand for 12 divisions to be used by NATO without important benefits accruing to the German people. For instance, will Western Germany agree to remilitarization, in the face of probable Russian reprisals, without full acceptance of the economic rehabilitation of Western Germany?

So far only the Americans are providing important air power. Can NATO provide sufficient air power to neutralize Russian air power? In what plans and budgets of any nation, including the United States, is anything being said about the extent and capacity of the Russian air arm and the need for neutralizing it and its costs? True, General Vandenberg made a statement on the subject and we witness the astonishing Russian build-up and performance in Korea. But what of the plans for neutralizing Russian air power?

Will Have To Report

The problem then that faces General Eisenhower is that he will have to report that the United States has been let down by our European allies and has to depend upon the remilitarization of Germany, which France fears as much as Russia objects to it. The cost of the entire proposition must fall on the American taxpayer at a time when the aforesaid taxpayer is becoming more conscious of taxes, waste and futility than ever before.

When General Eisenhower is out of uniform, in the give and take of a competitive campaign, these problems will be thrown at him for answer. He may have the answers, in which case his candidacy will be strengthened. He may not have the answers, in which case his reputation may suffer.

He will be asked:

1. How many American troops will NATO require?

2. How does that compare with the contributions of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

3. How much money will the American taxpayer have to contribute to NATO?

4. How will that compare with the contributions of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

5. How much American sovereignty have we sacrificed?

6. How does that compare with the sacrifices of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

The Korean fiasco raises issues not only of competent planning by our military politicians but also as to the sincerity of their public pronouncements.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 — The "left wing" apologists have already begun to nibble away at the verdict rendered by the U. S. Loyalty Review Board in holding that there is "reasonable doubt" as to the loyalty to the United States government of John S. Service, one of the experts on Far Eastern Policy in the Department of State for several years, who now has been dismissed.

The argument is made that Mr. Service was indiscreet, of course, but that he has an extensive knowledge of the Far East, and presumably should have been retained, that all he did was to lend to someone outside the department documents he himself had written anyway, that this was the usual way to keep newspapermen informed in those days; that after all he wasn't proved or found to be a Communist and that the action taken just helps Senator McCarthy's crusade.

Actually the words of the Loyalty Review Board demolish every one of those points. The board says Service was a trusted officer, that he had no business lending any State Department documents to a man whom he himself suspected from his first meeting to be a Communist and yet had several meetings thereafter with him. Nor can there be disregarded the actual words of a recording made by the FBI of what went on in the hotel room of a suspected Communist who was being visited by Service. That record shows incidentally a discussion of a military "plan" by Service. The famous "whitewash" by the Tydings subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee brushed all this aside by declaring that Service wasn't a military expert and that matters he referred to were not within his scope anyway. The Tydings subcommittee cleared Service.

The defense of Service may be expected now to pour forth from the "left wing" side because at last someone who helped and supported the policy under which Chiang Kai-Shek was undermined in his relationship with the State Department has been dismissed from the government. The panel which condemned Service, it is known, consists of three eminent members of the bar but their names have been kept confidential.

The McCarran Internal Security Committee of the Senate has gone deeply into the relations of the "Amerasia" clique with the Institute of Pacific Relations and the government. More will doubtless be brought out in subsequent hearings. But it is important now for a distinction to be made between the facts on which the Loyalty Review Board based its findings and the oft-repeated charge that not one of the persons involved is a Communist, either card-carrying or otherwise—as if that were the sole criterion.

What is involved in many of these disloyalty cases is contact with, association with, intimacy with persons who have been mentioned in congressional testimony as part of a Soviet espionage ring by witnesses who are ex-communists. Service admits he asked a friend after his first meeting on April 20, 1945, if Jaffe was a Communist. He was told by a Naval intelligence officer that Jaffe was extremely sympathetic to the Communists. Yet, though Jaffe was a man that Service professed not to know intimately, he went to his hotel room and met with him several times thereafter and loaned him his own confidential reports that reflected on Chiang Kai-Shek's regime and spoke favorably of the Reds in China. The FBI raided the "Amerasia" offices and found many State Department documents that had been obtained from him and from persons other than Service. Some were highly secret.

This can't be excused on the ground that State Department officers were in the habit of "briefing" the press. Brooks Atkinson, reputable correspondent of the New York Times, testified that he couldn't get information from Service. The clandstine meetings in which Service and Jaffe participated and the nature of the conversations recorded by the FBI and the evidence all point clearly to the fact that, at best, Service may have been duped, or may have been carried away by his partisanship for the Chinese Communists who he thought were better than Chiang's Nationalists, and that he did use bad judgment. Yet, the State Department's loyalty board cleared him five times and it is reported the board did so because his colleagues in the State Department who passed on the case thought him to be a "nice fellow" who wouldn't do it again. The debacle in Korea in which 100,000 casualties have happened is the direct result of faulty American policy in China. They were nice fellows, too. Mistakes have to be punished and that's why the U. S. Loyalty Review Board summed up the case of Service as follows:

"We are not requested to find Service guilty of disloyalty, and we do not do so; but for a trusted representative of our State Department to so far forget his duty to his trust as his conduct with Jaffe so clearly indicates, forces us with great regret to conclude that there is reasonable doubt as to his loyalty. The favorable finding of the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department is accordingly reversed."

Does this mean that Service is not today a loyal citizen of his country? Not at all. It merely means his conduct, consciously or unconsciously, aided at one time those who were on the Communist side and that his judgment or discretion is not of a nature which warrants his continuance in the State Department. It is a harsh verdict to impose on anybody but, read in its true context, it is in reality a penalty for bad judgment in disclosing Secret State Department papers and for associating with suspected Communists about whom he had been twice warned.

As for the argument that this verdict helps the McCarthy side, too many persons in the government and in the "left wing" seem to be more interested in proving that the Wisconsin senator isn't right about anything than they are in protecting the rightful interests of the United States. That kind of extreme tactics can only build up the case for McCarthy and arouse suspicions instead of impartial judgment as to wherein the accuser is right or wrong in specific cases.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—India has invited 48 nations to send their best recent motion pictures to New Delhi for an international film festival. Forty-six nations have accepted the invitation and the challenge. Russia, for one, is sending not only its top films but 17 of its outstanding artists, producers and directors.

We, the greatest film-producing country in the world, are one of the two countries which have not yet responded to the invitation. Entries close this week. The State Department, when approached, said it was sorry but it had no appropriation for such foreign relations, though the cost of sending a few films and a few people to explain them to India would be only $25,000.

When the festival in New Delhi ends, the pictures will be taken on the road through India and will be seen in time by perhaps twice as many people as live in the United States. These people happen to stand at a momentous cross-roads in history, ideologically.

Hollywood, as an industry, regards $25,000 as something considerably less than peanuts. The exploitation of the dreariest class C "they-went-that-way" cost more than that.

It is not really the job of the film industry to see to it that U. S. films are represented at New Dehli in what is essentially a governmental competition. At great majority of the 46 governments which have accepted the challenge, if not all of them, are in the film business themselves—considering it a basic part of their governmental budget, propaganda division.

One can readly imagine that the Russians, who have the fish eye on India, will do with perhaps 300,000,000 receptive viewers suddenly delivered to it for cinematic treatment. The commissars of the Red film industry must be happy people tonight, filled as they are with the assurance that the U. S. will not send anything to compete against their own fare.

They could have their brains knocked out, of course. But it will take the U. S. film industry itself to do the job. The only accredited arm of the American government tooled to cope with such things pleads poverty.

This would appear to be a job for Eric Johnston on an industry level. That failing, it should be a job to concern individual producers who not only want to see this country's product in the competition but also want to see themselves pile up good will for future profit in a country which, among other things, is the second largest movie-producing nation in the world.

I've seen four pictures lately which I'm sure could hold their own in any competition. In fact, I'm sure they'd be the Yankees of the competition offered.

Sam Goldwyn made the best post-war picture that had to do with American interests, "Best Years," a story of men returning from war to find insecurity, uncertainty, infidelity and either too much or too little sympathy for the wounded.

In his new one, "I Want You," Goldwyn has translated another deeply intimate American theme to the screen. "I Want You" concerns itself with an event of grave importance to every American home: The intrusion of the Korean war into the peaceful intentions of the people. The strengths and weaknesses of a typical American family, if there is such a clan, are brought into sharp and honest focus: The concern of parents for sons about to be drafted, the doubts of re-treads who are developing a paunch and a static state of mind, the efforts of some to avoid the draft, the determination of others to serve.

It's a genuine bell-ringer. Not many American theaters have shown it yet, but it is creating endless queues in London.

Indian or Eskimo, a movie-goer recognizes honesty when he sees it on the screen, and if the festival had a chance to see Columbia's version of "Death Of A Salesman" there could be only plaudits for this almost grimly earnest effort to tell the truth about the failure of a defeated little man. This is about a four handkerchief job, superbly cast and played by Kevin McCarthy, Mildred Dunnock, Frederic March and Cameron Mitchell.

No nation on earth could make (or afford) a picture as massive as Metro's "Quo Vadis." It came in for the same kind of humorous criticism that was directed toward Rockefeller Center when it was built. And it will do as much business, and probably lift as many hearts.

In recent years America has produced the best explorers, archaeologists, and other probers of the unknown. A symbol is Amateur Explorer Lewis Cotlow's trip up the remotest reaches of the Amazon, "Jungle Headhunters," released through RKO. Never has such life in the raw been better photographed, or edited.

We're suckers to default in that New Dehli competition.

The Christmas Tree

There is no excuse this year for sad, bedraggled and motheaten Christmas trees in American homes. If shopping is done carefully, the family Christmas tree in 1951 can be greener, fresher and more symmetrical than it has been at any time since Yule trees became big business.

The Agriculture Department's U. S. Forest Service is working to improve Christmas trees. This year special emphasis has been placed on quality of the trees shipped to market by farmers and commercial growers, the National Geographic Society reports.

Federal forecasters declare scientific Christmas tree marketing is good conservation practice. Balsam firs, spruces, pines and other conifers cut from farm or commercial stands of timber clear out the land for more healthy growth of larger trees—sawlogs, pulpwood, or good Christmas trees for future years.

There should be as many trees on the market this year as there were in 1950—about 28,000,000, or enough to supply the nationwide market. There will be more than 28,000,000 families with Christmas trees, though. Many farmers and others will cut their own.

The Christmas tree industry grosses more than $50,000,000 annually. One Minnesota grower cuts and ships 1,400,000 trees a year, most of them tabletop size, 36 to 40 inches high. Many of these are dyed silver, red or white, but natural green remains the favorite.

To most Americans the Christmas tree is a tradition that seems as old as the era. Actually, the first decorated trees were introduced to the United States by homesick Germans about 1840. One newly emigrated pastor from Germany almost lost his pulpit in Cleveland in 1851 because he set up a tree in his church. Exhibition of a tree in a church was branded as idolatrous and irreligious. Use of the Christmas tree sprang up in Germany in the Middle Ages.

Globe Trotters

When Congress shut up shop on last October 20 it did so with an assurance from President Truman that, except in case of a grave national emergency, the lawmakers would not be called back to Washington before their regularly scheduled meeting in January. No emergency requiring the immediate presence of Congress has arisen to date, and that is well, for it is doubtful whether either house could have mustered a quorum without calling members back from all quarters of the globe.

During recent weeks press dispatches have reported the activities of committees, subcommittees, and individual senators and representatives in such far away places as Ankara, Cairo, New Delhi, Karachi, and Taipeh. An official delegation of 14 attended the European Consultative Assembly as observers, two Senate and two House members were advisers to the American delegation to an agricultural conference at Rome, two representatives were U. S. delegates to the U. N. Assembly at Paris.

Many of those who visited or passed through France called on Gen. Eisenhower. Others were received by Pope Pius in Rome, Franco in Madrid, Tito in Belgrade, Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa. None has seen Stalin at the Kremlin. A proposed tour of Russia by a 50-member "Committee of Friendship" from the American Congress turned out to be inappropriate.

Favorite subject of investigation in Europe was uses being made of Marshall Plan aid. Point Four projects were looked into in many parts of the world. Inquiries were made into operations under Export-Import Bank loans, and one committee toured Latin America to check on progress of the Inter-American Highway.

The returning law-makers should be better informed on foreign conditions than any group that has ever sat in the American Congress. Their acquisition of knowledge has set the taxpayers back something like a million dollars, but this is only a small fraction of the billions that will be laid out next year on foreign aid, and the congressional travel may well turn out to have been worth its cost.

Science And Loyalty

They can test you for almost anything nowadays. There are intelligence tests to tell how smart you are, personality tests to feel out the gestalt of your emotional maturity, aptitude tests to estimate your probability of success as an artist, an undertaker, or an engineer.

Their value depends partly on their accuracy, mainly on how intelligently the results are interpreted and applied.

But no one, so far as we can ascertain, has devised a psychometric test for loyalty. And we aren't going to believe it until we see it.

While we are waiting to be shown, efforts are to be made to develop such tests. A foundation has made a grant of $100,000 for scientific studies: Is it possible for tests to show who has the qualities of character that might cause him to betray his country under stress.

If a test claiming such capacity is devised, it can be tried on prisoners found guilty of disloyalty and on men of supposed outstanding loyalty to see how well it distinguishes between the two groups.

Of course, the results might be confusing if the group of traitors included some men wrongfully convicted and the group of loyalists contained traitors not yet caught at it.

The same procedure might be tried with tests already existing. Application of the Rorschach "inkblot" test might reveal, for instance, a certain constellation of personality characteristics correlated with the quality appraised as loyalty. Or the polygraph "lie detector" test might set up a list of association-words to which the blood pressure and other indicators might react differently in the loyal and the disloyal. A combination of the two might provide a double-check.

Start At The Top

Applause has followed the order of the Navy high command amending its officer-rating system to include "cost-consciousness" in the qualities which will be marked in reporting a man's efficiency. This is plainly a move in the right direction and if rigidly followed up will put an end to much extravagance and carelessness in the use of government property.

Whether it represents "a new era in military operations," as Senator Johnson of Texas suggests, is however a question which cannot be answered at this time. A great deal will depend on the attitude of the naval leaders themselves. If they set the right example to the officers below them the program will have a chance of success. If they are personally wasteful and grasping, nothing of consequence will come from the reform.

Here distinctly is a case whether it is not sufficient for the teacher merely to tell the pupil to do "as I say." Teacher must actually do what he asks the pupil to do.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Spots And Fevers

Spots go with some fevers like belles with beaus. In many diseases the rash is the distinguishing feature and offers the only clue to the diagnosis. The contrary also is true, as in other ailments the blemishes are of the garden variety and may confuse rather than help the practitioner.

The best known diseases accompanied by a rash are those produced by the virus. These include measles, German measles, smallpox, and chickenpox. Blood poisoning is another cause, especially when the meningococcus, staphylococcus, or the streptococcus is the culprit. Here the spots are made by small hemorrhages into the skin and if the tiny clots are dissected and studied under the microscope the causative germ often can be seen.

• — • — •

The "rose spot" of typhoid fever is another example. This rash generally breaks out on the chest and abdomen, lasts for three days, then disappears. The rickettsial organisms also are spot producers. Included in this type of disorder is Rocky Mountain spotted fever which has the most descriptive term. The only inconsistency in the name is that the infection is not confined to the Rocky Mountain area; it is just as prevalent on the east coast of the United States, in western Canada, Brazil, and Colombia. The malady was discovered originally in Idaho and we now know that transmission occurs through the bite of an infected tick. The skin lesions are small, brownish in color, and have a tendency to be more numerous and prominent on the extremities, particularly about the wrists and ankles. The victim has fever associated with aching, restlessness, insomnia, and prostration. In the days when there was no specific remedy, many failed to survive the first week. Good reports are being obtained on the use of the newer antibiotics, chloromycetin and aureomycin. These preparations shorten the course of the disease and lessen the risk of death.

Typhus fever is a near relative of Rocky Mountain spotted fever. It is acquired through the bite of a rat flea that is harboring the causative virus. It begins like an ordinary attack of flu, with chills, headache, and nausea. Within a few days an eruption appears that is red at first and becomes darker in the next 24 to 72 hours. Meanwhile, fever, dullness, lack of appetite, and now and then complete disorientation follow. Those who survive this period are rewarded by spontaneous recovery in the third week of illness.

Rickettsial infections are becoming more and more prevalent. Modern transportation is responsible in some instances because it is bringing more and more travelers from distant lands. Rickettsialpox is one of the newest diseases traceable to these germs. There were a number of cases in a limited area in New York City and a few also were encountered in Boston. The medical profession is not satisfied with this name but the "pox" suffix describes the spots that developed over the skin of the victim. Most rickettsail disorders are diagnosed by studying the blood but because such tests usually take several days to a week to become positive they are of little practical value so far as treatment is concerned.

NEW DRUG

B. T. writes: I went to the druggist to buy the new sleeping pills that are supposed to harmless. He said he didn't have a supply as yet but when the drug came he could not sell it without a prescription. Why is this necessary if it is harmless?

REPLY

When I saw this news release my immediate reaction was to wonder whether the drug is as harmless as stated. Apparently your druggist is obeying the law and should be commended and not criticized for his action.

ASPIRIN

H. A. writes: So many people take aspirin for colds, headaches, fever, and other discomforts I have been wondering whether it cures anything?

No, but it offers temporary relief.

MURMUR

A. Z. writes: I have a slight heart murmur. Can you send me your method of strengthening the heart?

REPLY

I have no method of strengthening the heart. If the murmur originates from anemia, a vitamin B deficiency, or a thyroid disturbance, when these conditions are remedied the murmur usually disappears. On the other hand, if there is "leakage" of the heart nothing can be done to overcome the disturbance and the individual must learn to live with it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

New Administrations Feature Graft Clean-ups; Major Tax Cases Settled Under Morgenthau Regime; Inadequate Truman Appointees Please Gamblers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of Drew Pearson's penetrating columns on the subject uppermost in the nation's mind—graft in the collection of income taxes.

WASHINGTON — Almost every administration when it first takes office uses a new broom when it comes to tax evasion. It cleans up at the expense of the administration which preceded it. Then it leans on the broom.

Part of this broom-leaning, of course, is because the graft it would have to clean out later is its own graft; and the clean-up would hurt people in high places.

Thus, just as Roosevelt came into office, an important start was made toward a tax-fraud clean-up. Actually, it was started by Republican Progressive Senators Blaine of Wisconsin and Brookhart of Iowa two months before Roosevelt was inaugurated, but continued by FDR with the prosecution of Andrew Mellon, the man entrusted with collecting taxes under Hoover and Coolidge; and of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank. A total of $6,387,137 was also collected from Benedum Trees, the Pittsburgh oil millionaire, and public attention was called to the legal tax-dodging schemes of James Forrestal and various J. P. Morgan partners.

Today, Washington has the famed Mellon Art Gallery because the former secretary of the treasury realized he would have to win public support with a magnificent gesture if he were to escape criminal prosecution for tax evasion.

Morgenthau's Tax System

Following this tax clean-up, the Roosevelt administration settled down to a long period of reasonably honest tax-collecting. There were some tax cases fixed in Roosevelt's day—to be discussed in a later column. But eager-beaver Henry Morgenthau made such a squawk about them that even FDR was reluctant to arouse Henry's ire.

Furthermore, Morgenthau built up the most efficient tax-collecting system this country had ever seen. His counsel of Internal Revenue was Robert Jackson, who did such an outstanding job that he was later elevated to the Supreme Court; while the chief of his intelligence unit was an incorruptible old tyrant named Elmer Irey.

In Jackson's old place, Truman appointed weak-sister Charles Oliphant, recently a pathetic witness before the King committee; and in Irey's place he appointed W. H. Woolf, honest but not vigilant.

As commissioner of internal revenue, Truman appointed a mediocrity named George Schoeneman, who previously had been mixed up in a matter which could not bear the light of day; while as deputy commissioner he appointed Dan Bolich, who, when he took the oath of office, received so many flowers that the swearing-in ceremony looked like a gangster's funeral. Obviously a lot of people were overjoyed that Bolich should be collecting taxes, and some of them later turned out to be gangsters.

All these appointments were made after Bob Hannegan, friend of the big-city bosses, took over the Democratic National Committee and the political fortunes of Harry Truman.

Sacrosanct Frankie Costello

When Hannegan was promoted from commissioner of Internal Revenue to national chairman, he appointed as his successor Joseph Nunan, who had been collector in New York. Nunan, in turn, retired Hugh McQuillen, forthright chief of the New York Intelligence Unit, replacing him with Dan Bolich. In this key spot Bolich had the power of tax life or death over big-shot gamblers, big business, or anyone else in New York.

Later, Nunan stepped out to practice law, leaving behind him his friend Dan Bolish, who became deputy commissioner in Washington the No. 2 spot for collecting the taxes of the entire nation.

Among Nunan's clients, incidentally, were the night-club owners of New York, which includes the king of the gamblers, Frankie Costello.

At about this time, also, Harry Anslinger, narcotics commissioner, was watching Costello for possible connection with the dope rackets, but, because of his limited staff, he had the help of 12 Internal Revenue agents. This was a natural cooperation, since both narcotics and revenue are under the treasury.

But suddenly Bolich demanded that the 12 revenue men be taken off the Costello assignment. Anslinger protested, but it did no good.

I had been following Costello for some time, and reported Bolich's lack of interest in Costello to Tom Clark, then attorney general, who promised to see that the agents were kept on Costello.

However, the Justice Department has not even moved to deport Costello for perjury in connection with his naturalization; meanwhile, Bolich played a part in delaying prosecution of one of the biggest gambling cases—The Guaranty Finance Company of California.

Shot Morale

Naturally, all this makes for discouragement among the many tax agents whose job it is to collect the nation's taxes. Backbone of the tax organization is the Intelligence

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Return Of Eisenhower

It is generally accepted that General Dwight Eisenhower will resign from NATO on February 21 and will return to the United States. That date will mark the first anniversary of his assumption of the Supreme Command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It is generally assumed that by March 1, General Eisenhower will be back at Columbia University and will declare himself to be a candidate for the nomination for president as a Republican. There seems to be no prospect of General Eisenhower being a Democratic candidate under any circumstances.

Two problems face General Eisenhower in this connection:

1. As architect of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, he must assume responsibility for its success or failure. In the event that he can report success, criticism will not be possible of his leaving the task before it is completed. He can say that he started it; that it got off to a good start; and that he can leave it in good hands while he runs for president.

On the other hand, if the course of events shows that NATO is a flop, then he will have to assume responsibility for leaving so great a venture hanging in the air.

2. European cooperation with the United States in NATO is of such a character that it may become a serious campaign issue. The plan has been that this is not to be another Korea; that there will be genuine manpower cooperation among the nations composing NATO.

British Share

But we discover that Great Britain is not providing additional troops for NATO. Churchill is either playing cagey, that is, he is holding up cooperation until he gets more dollars here, or he actually, in the face of troubles in Egypt, Burma, Malaya and other places, cannot commit Great Britain any further.

Equally, France can afford no more commitments than at present available. The French insist that they spend as much on the defense of Indo-China as they get out of the Marshall Plan. Also, the French are making no profits out of their colony.

So, Eisenhower will have to depend upon Western Germany, which is being supported financially by the United States. The burden of German rearmament—12 divisions—for the first year has been estimated at $14,000,000,000. The NATO powers have already estimated $45,000,000,000 American aid will be essential for the next three years.

The question arises whether the German people will stand for 12 divisions to be used by NATO without important benefits accruing to the German people. For instance, will Western Germany agree to remilitarization, in the face of probable Russian reprisals, without full acceptance of the economic rehabilitation of Western Germany?

So far only the Americans are providing important air power. Can NATO provide sufficient air power to neutralize Russian air power? In what plans and budgets of any nation, including the United States, is anything being said about the extent and capacity of the Russian air arm and the need for neutralizing it and its costs? True, General Vandenberg made a statement on the subject and we witness the astonishing Russian build-up and performance in Korea. But what of the plans for neutralizing Russian air power?

Will Have To Report

The problem then that faces General Eisenhower is that he will have to report that the United States has been let down by our European allies and has to depend upon the remilitarization of Germany, which France fears as much as Russia objects to it. The cost of the entire proposition must fall on the American taxpayer at a time when the aforesaid taxpayer is becoming more conscious of taxes, waste and futility than ever before.

When General Eisenhower is out of uniform, in the give and take of a competitive campaign, these problems will be thrown at him for answer. He may have the answers, in which case his candidacy will be strengthened. He may not have the answers, in which case his reputation may suffer.

He will be asked:

1. How many American troops will NATO require?

2. How does that compare with the contributions of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

3. How much money will the American taxpayer have to contribute to NATO?

4. How will that compare with the contributions of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

5. How much American sovereignty have we sacrificed?

6. How does that compare with the sacrifices of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

The Korean fiasco raises issues not only of competent planning by our military politicians but also as to the sincerity of their public pronouncements.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 — The "left wing" apologists have already begun to nibble away at the verdict rendered by the U. S. Loyalty Review Board in holding that there is "reasonable doubt" as to the loyalty to the United States government of John S. Service, one of the experts on Far Eastern Policy in the Department of State for several years, who now has been dismissed.

The argument is made that Mr. Service was indiscreet, of course, but that he has an extensive knowledge of the Far East, and presumably should have been retained, that all he did was to lend to someone outside the department documents he himself had written anyway, that this was the usual way to keep newspapermen informed in those days; that after all he wasn't proved or found to be a Communist and that the action taken just helps Senator McCarthy's crusade.

Actually the words of the Loyalty Review Board demolish every one of those points. The board says Service was a trusted officer, that he had no business lending any State Department documents to a man whom he himself suspected from his first meeting to be a Communist and yet had several meetings thereafter with him. Nor can there be disregarded the actual words of a recording made by the FBI of what went on in the hotel room of a suspected Communist who was being visited by Service. That record shows incidentally a discussion of a military "plan" by Service. The famous "whitewash" by the Tydings subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee brushed all this aside by declaring that Service wasn't a military expert and that matters he referred to were not within his scope anyway. The Tydings subcommittee cleared Service.

The defense of Service may be expected now to pour forth from the "left wing" side because at last someone who helped and supported the policy under which Chiang Kai-Shek was undermined in his relationship with the State Department has been dismissed from the government. The panel which condemned Service, it is known, consists of three eminent members of the bar but their names have been kept confidential.

The McCarran Internal Security Committee of the Senate has gone deeply into the relations of the "Amerasia" clique with the Institute of Pacific Relations and the government. More will doubtless be brought out in subsequent hearings. But it is important now for a distinction to be made between the facts on which the Loyalty Review Board based its findings and the oft-repeated charge that not one of the persons involved is a Communist, either card-carrying or otherwise—as if that were the sole criterion.

What is involved in many of these disloyalty cases is contact with, association with, intimacy with persons who have been mentioned in congressional testimony as part of a Soviet espionage ring by witnesses who are ex-communists. Service admits he asked a friend after his first meeting on April 20, 1945, if Jaffe was a Communist. He was told by a Naval intelligence officer that Jaffe was extremely sympathetic to the Communists. Yet, though Jaffe was a man that Service professed not to know intimately, he went to his hotel room and met with him several times thereafter and loaned him his own confidential reports that reflected on Chiang Kai-Shek's regime and spoke favorably of the Reds in China. The FBI raided the "Amerasia" offices and found many State Department documents that had been obtained from him and from persons other than Service. Some were highly secret.

This can't be excused on the ground that State Department officers were in the habit of "briefing" the press. Brooks Atkinson, reputable correspondent of the New York Times, testified that he couldn't get information from Service. The clandstine meetings in which Service and Jaffe participated and the nature of the conversations recorded by the FBI and the evidence all point clearly to the fact that, at best, Service may have been duped, or may have been carried away by his partisanship for the Chinese Communists who he thought were better than Chiang's Nationalists, and that he did use bad judgment. Yet, the State Department's loyalty board cleared him five times and it is reported the board did so because his colleagues in the State Department who passed on the case thought him to be a "nice fellow" who wouldn't do it again. The debacle in Korea in which 100,000 casualties have happened is the direct result of faulty American policy in China. They were nice fellows, too. Mistakes have to be punished and that's why the U. S. Loyalty Review Board summed up the case of Service as follows:

"We are not requested to find Service guilty of disloyalty, and we do not do so; but for a trusted representative of our State Department to so far forget his duty to his trust as his conduct with Jaffe so clearly indicates, forces us with great regret to conclude that there is reasonable doubt as to his loyalty. The favorable finding of the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department is accordingly reversed."

Does this mean that Service is not today a loyal citizen of his country? Not at all. It merely means his conduct, consciously or unconsciously, aided at one time those who were on the Communist side and that his judgment or discretion is not of a nature which warrants his continuance in the State Department. It is a harsh verdict to impose on anybody but, read in its true context, it is in reality a penalty for bad judgment in disclosing Secret State Department papers and for associating with suspected Communists about whom he had been twice warned.

As for the argument that this verdict helps the McCarthy side, too many persons in the government and in the "left wing" seem to be more interested in proving that the Wisconsin senator isn't right about anything than they are in protecting the rightful interests of the United States. That kind of extreme tactics can only build up the case for McCarthy and arouse suspicions instead of impartial judgment as to wherein the accuser is right or wrong in specific cases.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—India has invited 48 nations to send their best recent motion pictures to New Delhi for an international film festival. Forty-six nations have accepted the invitation and the challenge. Russia, for one, is sending not only its top films but 17 of its outstanding artists, producers and directors.

We, the greatest film-producing country in the world, are one of the two countries which have not yet responded to the invitation. Entries close this week. The State Department, when approached, said it was sorry but it had no appropriation for such foreign relations, though the cost of sending a few films and a few people to explain them to India would be only $25,000.

When the festival in New Delhi ends, the pictures will be taken on the road through India and will be seen in time by perhaps twice as many people as live in the United States. These people happen to stand at a momentous cross-roads in history, ideologically.

Hollywood, as an industry, regards $25,000 as something considerably less than peanuts. The exploitation of the dreariest class C "they-went-that-way" cost more than that.

It is not really the job of the film industry to see to it that U. S. films are represented at New Dehli in what is essentially a governmental competition. At great majority of the 46 governments which have accepted the challenge, if not all of them, are in the film business themselves—considering it a basic part of their governmental budget, propaganda division.

One can readily imagine that the Russians, who have the fish eye on India, will do with perhaps 300,000,000 receptive viewers suddenly delivered to it for cinematic treatment. The commissars of the Red film industry must be happy people tonight, filled as they are with the assurance that the U. S. will not send anything to compete against their own fare.

They could have their brains knocked out, of course. But it will take the U. S. film industry itself to do the job. The only accredited arm of the American government tooled to cope with such things pleads poverty.

This would appear to be a job for Eric Johnston on an industry level. That failing, it should be a job to concern individual producers who not only want to see this country's product in the competition but also want to see themselves pile up good will for future profit in a country which, among other things, is the second largest movie-producing nation in the world.

I've seen four pictures lately which I'm sure could hold their own in any competition. In fact, I'm sure they'd be the Yankees of the competition offered.

Sam Goldwyn made the best post-war picture that had to do with American interests, "Best Years," a story of men returning from war to find insecurity, uncertainty, infidelity and either too much or too little sympathy for the wounded.

In his new one, "I Want You," Goldwyn has translated another deeply intimate American theme to the screen. "I Want You" concerns itself with an event of grave importance to every American home: The intrusion of the Korean war into the peaceful intentions of the people. The strengths and weaknesses of a typical American family, if there is such a clan, are brought into sharp and honest focus: The concern of parents for sons about to be drafted, the doubts of retreads who are developing a paunch and a static state of mind, the efforts of some to avoid the draft, the determination of others to serve.

It's a genuine bell-ringer. Not many American theaters have shown it yet, but it is creating endless queues in London.

Indian or Eskimo, a movie-goer recognizes honesty when he sees it on the screen, and if the festival had a chance to see Columbia's version of "Death Of A Salesman" there could be only plaudits for this almost grimly earnest effort to tell the truth about the failure of a defeated little man. This is about a four handkerchief job, superbly cast and played by Kevin McCarthy, Mildred Dunnock, Frederic March and Cameron Mitchell.

No nation on earth could make (or afford) a picture as massive as Metro's "Quo Vadis." It came in for the same kind of humorous criticism that was directed toward Rockefeller Center when it was built. And it will do as much business, and probably lift as many hearts.

In recent years America has produced the best explorers, archaeologists, and other probers of the unknown. A symbol is Amateur Explorer Lewis Cotlow's trip up the remotest reaches of the Amazon, "Jungle Headhunters," released through RKO. Never has such life in the raw been better photographed, or edited.

We're suckers to default in that New Dehli competition.

The Christmas Tree

There is no excuse this year for sad, bedraggled and motheaten Christmas trees in American homes. If shopping is done carefully, the family Christmas tree in 1951 can be greener, fresher and more symmetrical than it has been at any time since Yule trees became big business.

The Agriculture Department's U. S. Forest Service is working to improve Christmas trees. This year special emphasis has been placed on quality of the trees shipped to market by farmers and commercial growers, the National Geographic Society reports.

Federal forecasters declare scientific Christmas tree marketing is good conservation practice. Balsam firs, spruces, pines and other conifers cut from farm or commercial stands of timber clear out the land for more healthy growth of larger trees—sawlogs, pulpwood, or good Christmas trees for future years.

There should be as many trees on the market this year as there were in 1950—about 28,000,000, or enough to supply the nationwide market. There will be more than 28,000,000 families with Christmas trees, though. Many farmers and others will cut their own.

The Christmas tree industry grosses more than $50,000,000 annually. One Minnesota grower cuts and ships 1,400,000 trees a year, most of them tabletop size, 36 to 40 inches high. Many of these are dyed silver, red or white, but natural green remains the favorite.

To most Americans the Christmas tree is a tradition that seems as old as the era. Actually, the first decorated trees were introduced to the United States by homesick Germans about 1840. One newly emigrated pastor from Germany almost lost his pulpit in Cleveland in 1851 because he set up a tree in his church. Exhibition of a tree in a church was branded as idolatrous and irreligious. Use of the Christmas tree sprang up in Germany in the Middle Ages.

Globe Trotters

When Congress shut up shop on last October 20 it did so with an assurance from President Truman that, except in case of a grave national emergency, the lawmakers would not be called back to Washington before their regularly scheduled meeting in January. No emergency requiring the immediate presence of Congress has arisen to date, and that is well, for it is doubtful whether either house could have mustered a quorum without calling members back from all quarters of the globe.

During recent weeks press dispatches have reported the activities of committees, subcommittees, and individual senators and representatives in such far away places as Ankara, Cairo, New Delhi, Karachi, and Taipeh. An official delegation of 14 attended the European Consultative Assembly as observers, two Senate and two House members were advisers to the American delegation to an agricultural conference at Rome, two representatives were U. S. delegates to the U. N. Assembly at Paris.

Many of those who visited or passed through France called on Gen. Eisenhower. Others were received by Pope Pius in Rome, Franco in Madrid, Tito in Belgrade, Chiang Kai-shek on Formosa. None has seen Stalin at the Kremlin. A proposed tour of Russia by a 50-member "Committee of Friendship" from the American Congress turned out to be inappropriate.

Favorite subject of investigation in Europe was uses being made of Marshall Plan aid. Point Four projects were looked into in many parts of the world. Inquiries were made into operations under Export-Import Bank loans, and one committee toured Latin America to check on progress of the Inter-American Highway.

The returning law-makers should be better informed on foreign conditions than any group that has ever sat in the American Congress. Their acquisition of knowledge has set the taxpayers back something like a million dollars, but this is only a small fraction of the billions that will be laid out next year on foreign aid, and the congressional travel may well turn out to have been worth its cost.

Science And Loyalty

They can test you for almost anything nowadays. There are intelligence tests to tell how smart you are, personality tests to feel out the gestalt of your emotional maturity, aptitude tests to estimate your probability of success as an artist, an undertaker, or an engineer.

Their value depends partly on their accuracy, mainly on how intelligently the results are interpreted and applied.

But no one, so far as we can ascertain, has devised a psychometric test for loyalty. And we aren't going to believe it until we see it.

While we are waiting to be shown, efforts are to be made to develop such tests. A foundation has made a grant of $100,000 for scientific studies: Is it possible for tests to show who has the qualities of character that might cause him to betray his country under stress.

If a test claiming such capacity is devised, it can be tried on prisoners found guilty of disloyalty and on men of supposed outstanding loyalty to see how well it distinguishes between the two groups.

Of course, the results might be confusing if the group of traitors included some men wrongfully convicted and the group of loyalists contained traitors not yet caught at it.

The same procedure might be tried with tests already existing. Application of the Rorschach "inkblot" test might reveal, for instance, a certain constellation of personality characteristics correlated with the quality appraised as loyalty. Or the polygraph "lie detector" test might set up a list of association-words to which the blood pressure and other indicators might react differently in the loyal and the disloyal. A combination of the two might provide a double-check.

Start At The Top

Applause has followed the order of the Navy high command amending its officer-rating system to include "cost-consciousness" in the qualities which will be marked in reporting a man's efficiency. This is plainly a move in the right direction and if rigidly followed up will put an end to much extravagance and carelessness in the use of government property.

Whether it represents "a new era in military operations," as Senator Johnson of Texas suggests, is however a question which cannot be answered at this time. A great deal will depend on the attitude of the naval leaders themselves. If they set the right example to the officers below them the program will have a chance of success. If they are personally wasteful and grasping, nothing of consequence will come from the reform.

Here distinctly is a case whether it is not sufficient for the teacher merely to tell the pupil to do "as I say." Teacher must actually do what he asks the pupil to do.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Spots And Fevers

Spots go with some fevers like belles with beaus. In many diseases the rash is the distinguishing feature and offers the only clue to the diagnosis. The contrary also is true, as in other ailments the blemishes are of the garden variety and may confuse rather than help the practitioner.

The best known diseases accompanied by a rash are those produced by the virus. These include measles, German measles, smallpox, and chickenpox. Blood poisoning is another cause, especially when the meningococcus, staphylococcus, or the streptococcus is the culprit. Here the spots are made by small hemorrhages into the skin and if the tiny clots are dissected and studied under the microscope the causative germ often can be seen.

• — • — •

The "rose spot" of typhoid fever is another example. This rash generally breaks out on the chest and abdomen, lasts for three days, then disappears. The rickettsial organisms also are spot producers. Included in this type of disorder is Rocky Mountain spotted fever which has the most descriptive term. The only inconsistency in the name is that the infection is not confined to the Rocky Mountain area; it is just as prevalent on the east coast of the United States, in western Canada, Brazil, and Colombia. The malady was discovered originally in Idaho and we now know that transmission occurs through the bite of an infected tick. The skin lesions are small, brownish in color, and have a tendency to be more numerous and prominent on the extremities, particularly about the wrists and ankles. The victim has fever associated with aching, restlessness, insomnia, and prostration. In the days when there was no specific remedy, many failed to survive the first week. Good reports are being obtained on the use of the newer antibiotics, chloromycetin and aureomycin. These preparations shorten the course of the disease and lessen the risk of death.

Typhus fever is a near relative of Rocky Mountain spotted fever. It is acquired through the bite of a rat flea that is harboring the causative virus. It begins like an ordinary attack of flu, with chills, headache, and nausea. Within a few days an eruption appears that is red at first and becomes darker in the next 24 to 72 hours. Meanwhile, fever, dullness, lack of appetite, and now and then complete disorientation follow. Those who survive this period are rewarded by spontaneous recovery in the third week of illness.

• — • — •

Rickettsial infections are becoming more and more prevalent. Modern transportation is responsible in some instances because it is bringing more and more travelers from distant lands. Rickettsialpox is one of the newest diseases traceable to these germs. There were a number of cases in a limited area in New York City and a few also were encountered in Boston. The medical profession is not satisfied with this name but the "pox" suffix describes the spots that developed over the skin of the victim. Most rickettsail disorders are diagnosed by studying the blood but because such tests usually take several days to a week to become positive they are of little practical value so far as treatment is concerned.

New Administrations Feature Graft Clean-ups; Major Tax Cases Settled Under Morgenthau Regime; Inadequate Truman Appointees Please Gamblers.

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of Drew Pearson's penetrating columns on the subject uppermost in the nation's mind—graft in the collection of income taxes.

WASHINGTON — Almost every administration when it first takes office uses a new broom when it comes to tax evasion. It cleans up at the expense of the administration which preceded it. Then it leans on the broom.

Part of this broom-leaning, of course, is because the graft it would have to clean out later is its own graft; and the clean-up would hurt people in high places.

Thus, just as Roosevelt came into office, an important start was made toward a tax-fraud clean-up. Actually, it was started by Republican Progressive Senators Blaine of Wisconsin and Brookhart of Iowa two months before Roosevelt was inaugurated, but continued by FDR with the prosecution of Andrew Mellon, the man entrusted with collecting taxes under Hoover and Coolidge; and of Charles E. Mitchell, president of the National City Bank. A total of $6,387,137 was also collected from Benedum Trees, the Pittsburgh oil millionaire, and public attention was called to the legal tax-dodging schemes of James Forrestal and various J. P. Morgan partners.

Today, Washington has the famed Mellon Art Gallery because the former secretary of the treasury realized he would have to win public support with a magnificent gesture if he were to escape criminal prosecution for tax evasion.

Morgenthau's Tax System

Following this tax clean-up, the Roosevelt administration settled down to a long period of reasonably honest tax-collecting. There were some tax cases fixed in Roosevelt's day—to be discussed in a later column. But eager-beaver Henry Morgenthau made such a squawk about them that even FDR was reluctant to arouse Henry's ire.

Furthermore, Morgenthau built up the most efficient tax-collecting system this country had ever seen. His counsel of Internal Revenue was Robert Jackson, who did such an outstanding job that he was later elevated to the Supreme Court; while the chief of his intelligence unit was an incorruptible old tyrant named Elmer Irey.

In Jackson's old place, Truman appointed weak-sister Charles Oliphant, recently a pathetic witness before the King committee; and in Irey's place he appointed W. H. Woolf, honest but not vigilant.

As commissioner of internal revenue, Truman appointed a mediocrity named George Schoeneman, who previously had been mixed up in a matter which could not bear the light of day; while as deputy commissioner he appointed Dan Bolich, who, when he took the oath of office, received so many flowers that the swearing-in ceremony looked like a gangster's funeral. Obviously a lot of people were overjoyed that Bolich should be collecting taxes, and some of them later turned out to be gangsters.

All these appointments were made after Bob Hannegan, friend of the big-city bosses, took over the Democratic National Committee and the political fortunes of Harry Truman.

Sacrosanct Frankie Costello

When Hannegan was promoted from commissioner of Internal Revenue to national chairman, he appointed as his successor Joseph Nunan, who had been collector in New York. Nunan, in turn, retired Hugh McQuillen, forthright chief of the New York Intelligence Unit, replacing him with Dan Bolich. In this key spot Bolich had the power of tax life or death over big-shot gamblers, big business, or anyone else in New York.

Later, Nunan stepped out to practice law, leaving behind him his friend Dan Bolish, who became deputy commissioner in Washington the No. 2 spot for collecting the taxes of the entire nation.

Among Nunan's clients, incidentally, were the night-club owners of New York, which includes the king of the gamblers, Frankie Costello.

At about this time, also, Harry Apslinger, narcotics commissioner, was watching Costello for possible connection with the dope rackets, but, because of his limited staff, he had the help of 12 Internal Revenue agents. This was a natural cooperation, since both narcotics and revenue are under the treasury.

But suddenly Bolich demanded that the 12 revenue men be taken off the Costello assignment. Anslinger protested, but it did no good.

I had been following Costello for some time, and reported Bolich's lack of interest in Costello to Tom Clark, then attorney general, who promised to see that the agents were kept on Costello.

However, the Justice Department has not even moved to deport Costello for perjury in connection with his naturalization; meanwhile, Bolich played a part in delaying prosecution of one of the biggest gambling cases—The Guaranty Finance Company of California.

Shot Morale

Naturally, all this makes for discouragement among the many tax agents whose job it is to collect the nation's taxes. Backbone of the tax organization is the Intelligence

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Return Of Eisenhower

It is generally accepted that General Dwight Eisenhower will resign from NATO on February 21 and will return to the United States. That date will mark the first anniversary of his assumption of the Supreme Command of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It is generally assumed that by March 1, General Eisenhower will be back at Columbia University and will declare himself to be a candidate for the nomination for president as a Republican. There seems to be no prospect of General Eisenhower being a Democratic candidate under any circumstances.

Two problems face General Eisenhower in this connection:

1. As architect of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, he must assume responsibility for its success or failure. In the event that he can report success, criticism will not be possible of his leaving the task before it is completed. He can say that he started it; that it got off to a good start; and that he can leave it in good hands while he runs for president.

On the other hand, if the course of events shows that NATO is a flop, then he will have to assume responsibility for leaving so great a venture hanging in the air.

2. European cooperation with the United States in NATO is of such a character that it may become a serious campaign issue. The plan has been that this is not to be another Korea; that there will be genuine manpower cooperation among the nations composing NATO.

British Share

But we discover that Great Britain is not providing additional troops for NATO. Churchill is either playing cagey, that is, he is holding up cooperation until he gets more dollars here, or he actually, in the face of troubles in Egypt, Burma, Malaya and other places, cannot commit Great Britain any further.

Equally, France can afford no more commitments than at present available. The French insist that they spend as much on the defense of Indo-China as they get out of the Marshall Plan. Also, the French are making no profits out of their colony.

So, Eisenhower will have to depend upon Western Germany, which is being supported financially by the United States. The burden of German rearmament—12 divisions—for the first year has been estimated at $14,000,000,000. The NATO powers have already estimated $45,000,000,000 American aid will be essential for the next three years.

The question arises whether the German people will stand for 12 divisions to be used by NATO without important benefits accruing to the German people. For instance, will Western Germany agree to remilitarization, in the face of probable Russian reprisals, without full acceptance of the economic rehabilitation of Western Germany?

So far only the Americans are providing important air power. Can NATO provide sufficient air power to neutralize Russian air power? In what plans and budgets of any nation, including the United States, is anything being said about the extent and capacity of the Russian air arm and the need for neutralizing it and its costs? True, General Vandenberg made a statement on the subject and we witness the astonishing Russian build-up and performance in Korea. But what of the plans for neutralizing Russian air power?

Will Have To Report

The problem then that faces General Eisenhower is that he will have to report that the United States has been let down by our European allies and has to depend upon the remilitarization of Germany, which France fears as much as Russia objects to it. The cost of the entire proposition must fall on the American taxpayer at a time when the aforesaid taxpayer is becoming more conscious of taxes, waste and futility than ever before.

When General Eisenhower is out of uniform, in the give and take of a competitive campaign, these problems will be thrown at him for answer. He may have the answers, in which case his candidacy will be strengthened. He may not have the answers, in which case his reputation may suffer.

He will be asked:

1. How many American troops will NATO require?

2. How does that compare with the contributions of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

3. How much money will the American taxpayer have to contribute to NATO?

4. How will that compare with the contributions of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

5. How much American sovereignty have we sacrificed?

6. How does that compare with the sacrifices of other countries, particularly Great Britain and France?

The Korean fiasco raises issues not only of competent planning by our military politicians but also as to the sincerity of their public pronouncements.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17 — The "left wing" apologists have already begun to nibble away at the verdict rendered by the U. S. Loyalty Review Board in holding that there is "reasonable doubt" as to the loyalty to the United States government of John S. Service, one of the experts on Far Eastern Policy in the Department of State for several years, who now has been dismissed.

The argument is made that Mr. Service was indiscreet, of course, but that he has an extensive knowledge of the Far East, and presumably should have been retained, that all he did was to lend to someone outside the department documents he himself had written anyway, that this was the usual way to keep newspapermen informed in those days; that after all he wasn't proved or found to be a Communist and that the action taken just helps Senator McCarthy's crusade.

Actually the words of the Loyalty Review Board demolish every one of those points. The board says Service was a trusted officer, that he had no business lending any State Department documents to a man whom he himself suspected from his first meeting to be a Communist and yet had several meetings thereafter with him. Nor can there be disregarded the actual words of a recording made by the FBI of what went on in the hotel room of a suspected Communist who was being visited by Service. That record shows incidentally a discussion of a military "plan" by Service. The famous "whitewash" by the Tydings subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee brushed all this aside by declaring that Service wasn't a military expert and that matters he referred to were not within his scope anyway. The Tydings subcommittee cleared Service.

The defense of Service may be expected now to pour forth from the "left wing" side because at last someone who helped and supported the policy under which Chiang Kai-Shek was undermined in his relationship with the State Department has been dismissed from the government. The panel which condemned Service, it is known, consists of three eminent members of the bar but their names have been kept confidential.

The McCarran Internal Security Committee of the Senate has gone deeply into the relations of the "Amerasia" clique with the Institute of Pacific Relations and the government. More will doubtless be brought out in subsequent hearings. But it is important now for a distinction to be made between the facts on which the Loyalty Review Board based its findings and the oft-repeated charge that not one of the persons involved is a Communist, either card-carrying or otherwise—as if that were the sole criterion.

What is involved in many of these disloyalty cases is contact with, association with, intimacy with persons who have been mentioned in congressional testimony as part of a Soviet espionage ring by witnesses who are ex-communists. Service admits he asked a friend after his first meeting on April 20, 1945, if Jaffe was a Communist. He was told by a Naval intelligence officer that Jaffe was extremely sympathetic to the Communists. Yet, though Jaffe was a man that Service professed not to know intimately, he went to his hotel room and met with him several times thereafter and loaned him his own confidential reports that reflected on Chiang Kai-Shek's regime and spoke favorably of the Reds in China. The FBI raided the "Amerasia" offices and found many State Department documents that had been obtained from him and from persons other than Service. Some were highly secret.

This can't be excused on the ground that State Department officers were in the habit of "briefing" the press. Brooks Atkinson, reputable correspondent of the New York Times, testified that he couldn't get information from Service. The clandstine meetings in which Service and Jaffe participated and the nature of the conversations recorded by the FBI and the evidence all point clearly to the fact that, at best, Service may have been duped, or may have been carried away by his partisanship for the Chinese Communists who he thought were better than Chiang's Nationalists, and that he did use bad judgment. Yet, the State Department's loyalty board cleared him five times and it is reported the board did so because his colleagues in the State Department who passed on the case thought him to be a "nice fellow" who wouldn't do it again. The debacle in Korea in which 100,000 casualties have happened is the direct result of faulty American policy in China. They were nice fellows, too. Mistakes have to be punished and that's why the U. S. Loyalty Review Board summed up the case of Service as follows:

"We are not requested to find Service guilty of disloyalty, and we do not do so; but for a trusted representative of our State Department to so far forget his duty to his trust as his conduct with Jaffe so clearly indicates, forces us with great regret to conclude that there is reasonable doubt as to his loyalty. The favorable finding of the Loyalty Security Board of the State Department is accordingly reversed."

Does this mean that Service is not today a loyal citizen of his country? Not at all. It merely means his conduct, consciously or unconsciously, aided at one time those who were on the Communist side and that his judgment or discretion is not of a nature which warrants his continuance in the State Department. It is a harsh verdict to impose on anybody but, read in its true context, it is in reality a penalty for bad judgment in disclosing Secret State Department papers and for associating with suspected Communists about whom he had been twice warned.

As for the argument that this verdict helps the McCarthy side, too many persons in the government and in the "left wing" seem to be more interested in proving that the Wisconsin senator isn't right about anything than they are in protecting the rightful interests of the United States. That kind of extreme tactics can only build up the case for McCarthy and arouse suspicions instead of impartial judgment as to wherein the accuser is right or wrong in specific cases.

On The Line

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK—(INS)—India has invited 48 nations to send their best recent motion pictures to New Delhi for an international film festival. Forty-six nations have accepted the invitation and the challenge. Russia, for one, is sending not only its top films but 17 of its outstanding artists, producers and directors.

We, the greatest film-producing country in the world, are one of the two countries which have not yet responded to the invitation. Entries close this week. The State Department, when approached, said it was sorry but it had no appropriation for such foreign relations, though the cost of sending a few films and a few people to explain them to India would be only $25,000.

When the festival in New Delhi ends, the pictures will be taken on the road through India and will be seen in time by perhaps twice as many people as live in the United States. These people happen to stand at a momentous cross-roads in history, ideologically.

Hollywood, as an industry, regards $25,000 as something considerably less than peanuts. The exploitation of the dreariest class C "they-went-that-way" cost more than that.

It is not really the job of the film industry to see to it that U. S. films are represented at New Dehli in what is essentially a governmental competition. At great majority of the 46 governments which have accepted the challenge, if not all of them, are in the film business themselves—considering it a basic part of their governmental budget, propaganda division.

One can readly imagine that the Russians, who have the fish eye on India, will do with perhaps 300,000,000 receptive viewers suddenly delivered to it for cinematic treatment. The commissars of the Red film industry must be happy people tonight, filled as they are with the assurance that the U. S. will not send anything to compete against their own fare.

They could have their brains knocked out, of course. But it will take the U. S. film industry itself to do the job. The only accredited arm of the American government tooled to cope with such things pleads poverty.

This would appear to be a job for Eric Johnston on an industry level. That failing, it should be a job to concern individual producers who not only want to see this country's product in the competition but also want to see themselves pile up good will for future profit in a country which, among other things, is the second largest movie-producing nation in the world.

I've seen four pictures lately which I'm sure could hold their own in any competition. In fact, I'm sure they'd be the Yankees of the competition offered.

Sam Goldwyn made the best post-war picture that had to do with American interests, "Best Years," a story of men returning from war to find insecurity, uncertainty, infidelity and either too much or too little sympathy for the wounded.

In his new one, "I Want You," Goldwyn has translated another deeply intimate American theme to the screen. "I Want You" concerns itself with an event of grave importance to every American home: The intrusion of the Korean war into the peaceful intentions of the people. The strengths and weaknesses of a typical American family, if there is such a clan, are brought into sharp and honest focus: The concern of parents for sons about to be drafted, the doubts of re-treads who are developing a paunch and a static state of mind, the efforts of some to avoid the draft, the determination of others to serve.

It's a genuine bell-ringer. Not many American theaters have shown it yet, but it is creating endless queues in London.

Indian or Eskimo, a movie-goer recognizes honesty when he sees it on the screen, and if the festival had a chance to see Columbia's version of "Death Of A Salesman" there could be only plaudits for this almost grimly earnest effort to tell the truth about the failure of a defeated little man. This is about a four handkerchief job, superbly cast and played by Kevin McCarthy, Mildred Dunnock, Frederic March and Cameron Mitchell.

No nation on earth could make (or afford) a picture as massive as Metro's "Quo Vadis." It came in for the same kind of humorous criticism that was directed toward Rockefeller Center when it was built. And it will do as much business, and probably lift as many hearts.

In recent years America has produced the best explorers, archaeologists, and other probers of the unknown. A symbol is Amateur Explorer Lewis Cotlow's trip up the remotest reaches of the Amazon, "Jungle Headhunters," released through RKO. Never has such life in the raw been better photographed, or edited.

We're suckers to default in that New Dehli competition.

Nevada JPs Profit Up To $40,000 Yearly In Marriage Trade Fees

(This is the second in a series of stories on the fee system in government in the U. S.)

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Staff Writer

The jingle of cash mingles with the merry peal of wedding bells.

It is sweet music to the ears of justices of the peace and judges who tie the nuptial knot—for a fee.

Take, for example, the bustling business in Nevada.

An Associated Press survey of the fee system in public office in the U. S. brought this report from the AP bureau in Reno:

"Nevada JPs, like those in most other places, keep marriage fees. The big marriage trade in Reno and Las Vegas makes these jobs worth a gross of some $20,000 a year in Reno and up to $40,000 in Las Vegas.

"There are more marriages in Reno than in Las Vegas, but the Reno district judges participate in the marrying merry-go-round more than the district judges in Las Vegas.

"The current marriage fee, a gratuity and not a legal stipend, is $10 per couple. This is in addition to the $5 marriage license fee that goes partly into county and state treasuries.

"The JPs and judges have expenses in connection with the marriages—payment of witnesses, etc.—so they do not pocket all of the $10. Nobody—with the exception of the Internal Revenue Bureau—knows exactly how much they do pocket."

The fee for a wedding is, of course, as legitimate as the institution of marriage.

Fees of any kind usually are set by statute. In some cases they can add up to a sizable sum.

Here is a report from the New Haven, Conn., AP bureau on the fee system for probate judges in Connecticut.

"The state has 120 of them. Efforts have been made unsuccessfully for years in the legislature to put them on salary.

"Their net earnings from fees range from a few hundred dollars in small probate courts to $30,000 in richer communities like Greenwich, Hartford and New Haven.

"Critics point out some probate judge get more than the state supreme court's chief justice, who gets $15,500."

In Mississippi, the sheriff-tax collectors (a combined office), circuit and chancery clerks, justices of the peace, constables and coroners operate on the fee system exclusively.

But some of them are not very happy about the arrangement.

The AP bureau in Jackson reports:

"There is a constant simmering opposition on the part of rural (smaller) county officials since they make much less than officials in larger counties who, in some cases, make up three times the salary paid the governor."

The governor's salary is $10,000 a year.

In many states ceilings have been placed on the amount of fees an official can keep. But the AP bureau in Tallahassee, Fla., reports:

"Harbormasters have a real plum. The Miami harbormasters gets up to $20 for every vessel that ties up at any wharf in Miami, and there is no limit to his total annual compensation. He turns no excess fees back to anyone, and there is no provision for any audit of his books."

The fee system flourishes chiefly at the county level, but some state offices and many local offices function on a fee basis. Fee offices are most common in the smaller, rural counties.

There is no nationwide pattern. It's more like a crazy quilt. Counties within the same states may have different setups.

The nationwide survey indicates the most numerous fee-paid officials, in order, are justices of the peace, constables, sheriffs and coroners.

Others include various types of town and court clerks, county, probate and police judges, county treasurers, clerks and recorders, registrars of deeds and wills, tax collectors and assessors, notaries public, auto license distributors and pound-masters.

Nevada JPs Profit Up To $40,000 Yearly In Marriage Trade Fees

By WILLIAM J. CONWAY
Associated Press Staff Writer

The jingle of cash mingles with the merry peal of wedding bells.

It is sweet music to the ears of justices of the peace and judges who tie the nuptial knot—for a fee.

Take, for example, the bustling business in Nevada.

An Associated Press survey of the fee system in public office in the U. S. brought this report from the AP bureau in Reno:

"Nevada JPs, like those in most other places, keep marriage fees. The big marriage trade in Reno and Las Vegas makes these jobs worth a gross of some $20,000 a year in Reno and up to $40,000 in Las Vegas.

"There are more marriages in Reno than in Las Vegas, but the Reno district judges participate in the marrying merry-go-round more than the district judges in Las Vegas.

"The current marriage fee, a gratuity and not a legal stipend, is $10 per couple. This is in addition to the $5 marriage license fee that goes partly into county and state treasuries.

"The JPs and judges have expenses in connection with the marriages—payment of witnesses, etc.—so they do not pocket all of the $10. Nobody—with the exception of the Internal Revenue Bureau—knows exactly how much they do pocket."

The fee for a wedding is, of course, as legitimate as the institution of marriage.

Fees of any kind usually are set by statute. In some cases they can add up to a sizable sum.

Here is a report from the New Haven, Conn., AP bureau on the fee system for probate judges in Connecticut.

"The state has 120 of them. Efforts have been made unsuccessfully for years in the legislature to put them on salary.

"Their net earnings from fees range from a few hundred dollars in small probate courts to $30,000 in richer communities like Greenwich, Hartford and New Haven.

"Critics point out some probate judge get more than the state supreme court's chief justice, who gets $15,500."

In Mississippi, the sheriff-tax collectors (a combined office), circuit and chancery clerks, justices of the peace, constables and coroners operate on the fee system exclusively.

But some of them are not very happy about the arrangement.

The AP bureau in Jackson reports:

"There is a constant simmering opposition on the part of rural (smaller) county officials since they make much less than officials in larger counties who, in some cases, make up three times the salary paid the governor."

The governor's salary is $10,000 a year.

In many states ceilings have been placed on the amount of fees an official can keep. But the AP bureau in Tallahassee, Fla., reports:

"Harbormasters have a real plum. The Miami harbormasters gets up to $20 for every vessel that ties up at any wharf in Miami, and there is no limit to his total annual compensation. He turns no excess fees back to anyone, and there is no provision for any audit of his books."

The fee system flourishes chiefly at the county level, but some state offices and many local offices function on a fee basis. Fee offices are most common in the smaller, rural counties.

There is no nationwide pattern. It's more like a crazy quilt. Counties within the same states may have different setups.

The nationwide survey indicates the most numerous fee-paid officials, in order, are justices of the peace, constables, sheriffs and coroners.

Others include various types of town and court clerks, county, probate and police judges, county treasurers, clerks and recorders, registrars of deeds and wills, tax collectors and assessors, notaries public, auto license distributors and pound-masters.

Pre-Nuptial Parties For Miss Fulton

Pre-nuptial parties in compliment to Miss Barbara Fulton, fiancee of Harry Roger Davis, are being given by her friends.

Miss Fulton, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Kyle Fulton, 164 North Mechanic Street, is to become the bride of Mr. Davis, son of Mrs. Harry Davis, Keyser, W. Va., December 29 in First Baptist Church, with Rev. O. Afton Linger officiating.

Miss Doris Brown was hostess at a personal shower and pre-nuptial party, last evening at her home, 30 Arch Street. The personal shower theme was carried out in a white and gold color scheme, and was combined with the Christmas motif of pine, balls, bells and poinsettias. The shower gifts were arranged in a box, covered with white and trimmed in gold ribbons and bells. The refreshment table centerpiece was a small white house among green trees.

Guests were Miss Betty Boor, Miss Doris Messman, Miss Betty Stump, Miss Ruth Farrell, Miss Ruth Hersh, Mrs. Margaret Beck, Mrs. Fulton, Miss Elva Jean Taylor, Mrs. Mary Jane Stewart, Miss Rosemarie Everstine, Mrs. Angela Jenkins, Miss Ann Mooney and Miss Christine Alderton.

Tomorrow evening Miss Boor is entertaining at her home, 640 Bedford Street; and Friday, Miss Ruth Farrell, at her home, Mechanic Street.

Prizes For Benefit Party To Be Given

A full Master Point Night and the fourth session of the Fort Cumberland series will be played by the Western Maryland Bridge Association tomorrow night. Play will be in the ballroom of the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

Dr. Paul Castelle, chairman of the Damon Runyon Cancer Benefit, last week, asks the following place winners to attend tomorrow's session, so he can distribute the prizes. The prizes will be selected by the winners according to how they finished. Mrs. Gladys Grove, Mrs. Fuller Whitworth; Mrs. Howard Hirsh, Mrs. Robert Gerson; Ben Franklin, George Hetzel; Chester Abramson, Rudolph Mendelsohn; Russ Minter, Gassaway Shores; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Paddleford; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fuller; Stanley Bulbin, Nelson Marean; Mrs. Milton Gerson and Mrs. David Sigel.

December 27 will also be a Full Master Point Night, and the annual Christmas party, under the chairmanship of Mrs. John Schaidt. January 3 will be a Special Winner's Game; and January 17th a Knockout Team of Four tournament will start.

The Knockout Team of Four contest will open with 64 players or 16 teams. The first week will be at the regular session and successive sessions will be at members homes as teams are eliminated. This will be a club championship and will carry club championship ratings. All teams are permitted an extra player for reserve.

Albert Heacox announced word has been received from New York that the second Annual Western Maryland Sectional Bridge tournament will be held April 19 and 20.

Majority Dance To Be December 28

The annual Christmas dance of the DeMolay Majority Association is being planned for December 28.

It will be at the Ali Ghan Country Club with Jimmy Andrews and his orchestra playing. Dancing will be from 9 until 1 o'clock.

Raymond C. Dorn is chairman. He is being assisted by Lloyd Stevens and Francis Cook.

The club's annual toy drive for Christmas distribution was reported upon at the meeting of the association last evening. The toys will be given to charity later this week.

Memorial Nurses Have Yule Program

A group of students of Memorial Hospital School of Nursing entertained with a Christmas program and party last evening at the nurses' home. It was held for the student and graduate nurses and the teaching staff.

Miss Hilda Stump was moderator for the program, which consisted of Christmas carols by a robed choir; duets and the playlet of the Christmas story. Miss Lois Niner was pianist and the directors were Miss Lois Newman, clinical supervisor at the hospital and Miss Mary Ann Galloway, president of the student government.

Characters in the Christmas story play were Mary, portrayed by Miss Catherine Mallow; Joseph, Miss Emily Hout; the Angel Gabriel, Fae Berkey; the Wisemen, Miss Joann Coyle, Miss Joan Martin and Miss Catherine Morton, who sang "We Three Kings." The shepherds were played by Miss Deloris Vernall, Miss Doris Dawson, Miss Lois Skidmore and Miss Frances Willison.

Musical selections included "O Holy Night," a duet by Miss Joan Shaffer and Miss Betty Clapp; "Jesu Bambino," by Miss Susan Millholland and Miss Morton; carols, "O Come All Ye Faithful," the processional for the choir, carols and the final number, "Joy to the World."

Choir members were Miss Eileen Ort, Miss Patricia Coleman, Miss Joan Clark, Miss Janet Martin, Miss Rachael Sultzer, Miss Joyce Shanski, Miss Deloris Beeman, Miss Doris Twigg, Miss Darlene Wright, Miss Jane Chappel, Miss Anita Turner, Miss Joan Martin, Miss Dorothy Werner, Miss Patricia O'Donnell and Miss Winifred Trout.

Christmas scenes formed the background for the play and a false ceiling was formed of white and blue crepe paper. Candelabra were on either side of the choir and a floodlight was focused on the manger scene.

Concluding the evening refreshments were served. Miss Galloway presided at the punch bowl. The committee in charge was Miss Jean Keifer, Miss Nancy Largent and Miss Esther Lewis.

Dinner, Shower Given In Compliment To Miss Geatz

Miss Louise McMullen and Miss Betsy Walsh entertained with a buffet dinner and miscellaneous shower in compliment to Miss Patricia Geatz, fiancee of Henry Burk FitzPatrick, Jr., last evening at the latter's home, Fayette Street.

Miss Geatz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Geatz, Sr., 11 South Smallwood Street, is to become the bride of Mr. FitzPatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burk FitzPatrick, Waynnewood, Pa., December 27.

A candelabra with red tapers and encirlced with a wreath of holly centered the dinner table. The Christmas decorations were repeated throughout the house with holly wreaths, pine and red carnations.

The evening was spent informally.

Guests were Miss Josephine Wilson, Mrs. Norman F. Geatz, Jr., Mrs. Eugene Gunning, Mrs. Van H. Parson, Mrs. Norman Geatz, Sr., Mrs. William Firlie, Mrs. Betty Scott Mills, Miss Carolyn Murray, Mrs. C. L. Kitzmiller, Miss Jane Averman, Miss Jeanne Lippold, Miss Patricia Stegmaier, Mrs. Peck Mills, Mrs. Casper Taylor, Mrs. Fred Mills, Mrs. Samuel DeLuca, Mrs. Michael O'Neal, Miss Ann Shireman, Mrs. Boyd Marstons, Mrs. William C. Walsh, Mrs. John J. McMullen and Miss Mary McMullen.

PYW Club Entertains

The Progressive Young Women's Club of Potomac Valley entertained 52 husbands and friends at its annual Christmas party recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. William Loar, Rawlings.

Starting the party, there were games under the direction of Mrs. Harry Barton. Prizes for contests were won by Edward Shaffer, Harry Grimes and Mrs. Ruth Lee Barton.

The Christmas program consisted of caroling, directed by Mrs. Barton; a group of songs by Downey Price, Linda Loar and Dorothy Sheets, in costume, sang and tap danced; the former, "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas," and the latter, "Peggy O'Neil." Miss Ula Evans gave a Christmas reading; Miss Margaret Ringler, told of the "Other Wise Man;" and John Yoder sang, "Because of You," and "I'll Be Home for Christmas."

The group then went into the dining room which was elaborately decorated with candles, pine and wreaths, there in the candlelight John Yoder sang, "The Lord's Prayer," after which refreshments were served.

Memorial Day was first celebrated in 1868 to honor those who fell in the War Between the States.

The stroke of a whale's tail is the fiercest blow that can be struck by an animal.

Social Chart

Rhett Rathbone, Mrs. Harry Holsinger and Mrs. John Newhouse. Following the dinner jingle gifts were exchanged.

Memorial Nurses Have Yule Program

A group of students of Memorial Hospital School of Nursing entertained with a Christmas program and party last evening at the nurses' home. It was held for the student and graduate nurses and the teaching staff.

Miss Hilda Stump was moderator for the program, which consisted of Christmas carols by a robed choir; duets and the playlet of the Christmas story. Miss Lois Niner was pianist and the directors were Miss Lois Newman, clinical supervisor at the hospital and Miss Mary Ann Galloway, president of the student government.

Characters in the Christmas story play were Mary, portrayed by Miss Catherine Mallow; Joseph, Miss Emily Hout; the Angel Gabriel, Fae Berkey; the Wisemen, Miss Joann Coyle, Miss Joan Martin and Miss Catherine Morton, who sang "We Three Kings." The shepherds were played by Miss Deloris Vernall, Miss Doris Dawson, Miss Lois Skidmore and Miss Frances Willison.

Musical selections included "O Holy Night," a duet by Miss Joan Shaffer and Miss Betty Clapp; "Jesu Bambino," by Miss Susan Millholland and Miss Morton; carols, "O Come All Ye Faithful," the processional for the choir, carols and the final number, "Joy to the World."

Choir members were Miss Eileen Ort, Miss Patricia Coleman, Miss Joan Clark, Miss Janet Martin, Miss Rachael Sultzer, Miss Joyce Shanski, Miss Deloris Beeman, Miss Doris Twigg, Miss Darlene Wright, Miss Jane Chappel, Miss Anita Turner, Miss Joan Martin, Miss Dorothy Werner, Miss Patricia O'Donnell and Miss Winifred Trout.

Christmas scenes formed the background for the play and a false ceiling was formed of white and blue crepe paper. Candelabra were on either side of the choir and a floodlight was focused on the manger scene.

Concluding the evening refreshments were served. Miss Galloway presided at the punch bowl. The committee in charge was Miss Jean Keifer, Miss Nancy Largent and Miss Esther Lewis.

Dinner, Shower Given In Compliment To Miss Geatz

Miss Louise McMullen and Miss Betsy Walsh entertained with a buffet dinner and miscellaneous shower in compliment to Miss Patricia Geatz, fiancee of Henry Burk FitzPatrick, Jr., last evening at the latter's home, Fayette Street.

Miss Geatz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Geatz, Sr., 11 South Smallwood Street, is to become the bride of Mr. FitzPatrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burk FitzPatrick, Waynnewood, Pa., December 27.

A candelabra with red tapers and encirlced with a wreath of holly centered the dinner table. The Christmas decorations were repeated throughout the house with holly wreaths, pine and red carnations.

The evening was spent informally.

Pre-Nuptial Parties For Miss Fulton

Pre-nuptial parties in compliment to Miss Barbara Fulton, fiancee of Harry Roger Davis, are being given by her friends.

Miss Fulton, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Kyle Fulton, 164 North Mechanic Street, is to become the bride of Mr. Davis, son of Mrs. Harry Davis, Keyser, W. Va., December 29 in First Baptist Church, with Rev. O. Afton Linger officiating.

Miss Doris Brown was hostess at a personal shower and pre-nuptial party, last evening at her home, 30 Arch Street. The personal shower theme was carried out in a white and gold color scheme, and was combined with the Christmas motif of pine, balls, bells and poinsettias. The shower gifts were arranged in a box, covered with white and trimmed in gold ribbons and bells. The refreshment table centerpiece was a small white house among green trees.

Guests were Miss Betty Boor, Miss Doris Messman, Miss Betty Stump, Miss Ruth Farrell, Miss Ruth Hersh, Mrs. Margaret Beck, Mrs. Fulton, Miss Elva Jean Taylor, Mrs. Mary Jane Stewart, Miss Rosemarie Everstine, Mrs. Angela Jenkins, Miss Ann Mooney and Miss Christine Alderton.

Tomorrow evening Miss Boor is entertaining at her home, 640 Bedford Street; and Friday, Miss Ruth Farrell, at her home, Mechanic Street.

Mapleside Group Has Club Parody

A mock club meeting featured the entertainment at the annual turkey dinner and Christmas party of the Mapleside Homemakers' Club, recently at Central YMCA.

All reports and the lament for the parody on the club meeting were original. The skit was under the direction of Mrs. M. H. Burgess and Mrs. Harold Bell. Those taking part were Mrs. Anna Morin, ways and means chairman; Mrs. Leroy Jewell, home management; Mrs. Frank White, gave the treasurer's report; Mrs. Joseph Kuhlman, art chairman; Mrs. Emory Showman, secretary's report; Mrs. Bell, family life chairman and Mrs. Walter Long, presented the Homemaker's Lament.

All 48 members present sang the Homemaker's blessing, "Happy Birthday" and "Merry Christmas". Christmas carols included "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "Silent Night" with Mrs. Long at the piano.

Going around the tables each member introduced herself and her guest to the others. Jingle gifts were exchanged and secret sisters were revealed. New ones were selected for the coming year.

Miss Maude A. Bean made a few remarks and thanked the club for making her an honorary member and including her in the party.

The tables were decorated in the Christmas theme. Favors were Christmas bookmark, miniature candles in the form of angels, snowmen, Santa Claus, reindeer, choir singer, and snowman on a rocking horse, there also were red and green baskets of candy sticks.

Library Staff Entertained

Miss Mary Earnestine Davis was hostess to the staff of the Cumberland Free Public Library for a Christmas party, recently at her home, Maryland Avenue.

A miniature Christmas tree centered the refreshment table where the hostess carried out the Christmas theme with red and green favors and red candles.

The evening was spent informally.

Attending were Miss Mary G. Walsh, Miss Margaret Walsh, Mrs. Robert Troxell, Mrs. Clinton Cage, Miss Jean Bittinger, Miss Mary Etta Boyle, Miss Ella Hodgson and Miss Josephine Coleman.

SECRETS OF CHARM

By JOHN ROBERT POWERS

To allow yourself to become tired enough to drop in your tracks puts a dangerous strain on your health, outlook, and happiness. Where is the accomplishment in ending with a crack-up? Actually, as the motion-study experts have proved, you get more done by spending more time preventing and relieving strain.

Here's a routine that will do that for you. The instructions are no more important than the reasoning behind them, so take both seriously.

Refreshing Routine

The instructions: Before you get to the point where the pace is "killing," lie down. A firm bed is a fine place. The floor is better. Place a tightly rolled towel under the small of your back and the bend of your knees. Arrange your body in a straight line with your arms at your sides. Close your eyes, relax, and do not move for five minutes. If you fidget or squirm even once, start over. And for the whole five minutes, make blanks of your mind and your muscles.

When the time's up, gradually tense (contract) every muscle in your body and hold the tension of each. Start by tightening up your foot muscles. Hold, while you contract your leg muscles. Still maintaining the tension in your feet and legs, pull in your abdominal and hip muscles, keeping a vice-like grip on all body muscles, clamp your jaw and purse your lips. Silently count a slow three and gradually release the tension you've created from your feet upward to your jaw.

Now, erase all tension—go limp as a rag doll and rest quietly for another five minutes. You'll get up more refreshed than you've been in a long while!

Two-Way Strains

The reasoning: You cannot separate physical and mental strain. You cannot move a muscle without the brain knowing it, because each muscle is connected with your brain by a network of nerves. An over-strained body results in mental strain. An over-pressured mind creates physical tensions — some are responsible for actual pains and aches of the body!

The ability to prevent this vicious circle is a greater gift than rubies in the toe of your Christmas stocking! Teach your body and mind to relax; to go limp and blank as needed in the manner of today's routine.

FASHIONS — SECOND FLOOR

Mapleside Group Has Club Parody

A mock club meeting featured the entertainment at the annual turkey dinner and Christmas party of the Mapleside Homemakers' Club, recently at Central YMCA.

All reports and the lament for the parody on the club meeting were original. The skit was under the direction of Mrs. M. H. Burgess and Mrs. Harold Bell. Those taking part were Mrs. Anna Morin, ways and means chairman; Mrs. Leroy Jewell, home management; Mrs. Frank White, gave the treasurer's report; Mrs. Joseph Kuhlman, art chairman; Mrs. Emory Showman, secretary's report; Mrs. Bell, family life chairman and Mrs. Walter Long, presented the Homemaker's Lament.

All 48 members present sang the Homemaker's blessing, "Happy Birthday" and "Merry Christmas". Christmas carols included "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," and "Silent Night" with Mrs. Long at the piano.

Going around the tables each member introduced herself and her guest to the others. Jingle gifts were exchanged and secret sisters were revealed. New ones were selected for the coming year.

Miss Maude A. Bean made a few remarks and thanked the club for making her an honorary member and including her in the party.

The tables were decorated in the Christmas theme. Favors were Christmas bookmark, miniature candles in the form of angels, snowmen, Santa Claus, reindeer, choir singer, and snowman on a rocking horse, there also were red and green baskets of candy sticks.

Library Staff Entertained

Miss Mary Earnestine Davis was hostess to the staff of the Cumberland Free Public Library for a Christmas party, recently at her home, Maryland Avenue.

A miniature Christmas tree centered the refreshment table where the hostess carried out the Christmas theme with red and green favors and red candles.

The evening was spent informally.

Attending were Miss Mary G. Walsh, Miss Margaret Walsh, Mrs. Robert Troxell, Mrs. Clinton Cage, Miss Jean Bittinger, Miss Mary Etta Boyle, Miss Ella Hodgson and Miss Josephine Coleman.

FASHIONS — SECOND FLOOR

Court Ruling Nullifies Bus Line Sale

The sale of the Martinsburg, W. Va., bus line that formerly served the Cumberland area, to the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh was in effect nullified yesterday by the West Virginia Supreme Court in Charleston.

The bank bought Emery's Motor Coach Line, Inc., on October 31, 1949, and sold the property the same day to Potomac Lines, Inc.

The sale to the bank was carried out under a deed of trust covering loans totaling $127,000 which the bank made to the Emery Line.

The Supreme Court's unanimous opinion written by Judge W. T. Lovins noted that the trust agreement that any two of the three trustees could act in selling the property in case of default.

The owner of the bus line, Robert L. Emery, Jr., filed a bill of complaint in Mineral County Circuit Court seeking to prevent the sale. Among his contentions was an argument that proper notice was not given.

The lower court sustained the bank's demurrer to the bill of complaint. After Emery declined to amend his pleadings, the circuit court dissolved his complaint. It was from those actions that Emery carried his appeal to the Supreme Court.

The opinion by Judge Lovins related that the sale to the bank was carried out by one trustee, L. I. Price, acting alone. It said also that notice was published in a newspaper October 28, 1949, three days before the sale.

Must Be Reasonable

The appellate court held that although parties to a deed of trust may waive provision of state law and agree to only one publication of notice in a newspaper, "the time between publication and sale must be sufficient to give the debtor reasonable notice of the sale."

The court held also that where a deed of trust provides that two of three trustees may act, "it is necessary that two of such trustees be personally present at any sale and supervise the same."

The court said that the Circuit Court erred in sustaining the bank's demurrer.

The decree of the lower court was reversed and the case was remanded with directions that the Circuit Court proceed with the case on the pleadings filed by Emery.

It was further directed by the Supreme Court that in the event sale of the property seems warranted, the Circuit Court supervise such sale.

Two Local Offices Report Entries

A set of silverware was reported stolen early Monday from the Home Consolidated Equipment Company, 328 Virginia Avenue.

Investigation disclosed entrance was gained by breaking a glass in the front door. The same method of entry was used at the store of David Saville, 14 Fourth Street, where considerable merchandise was taken.

The office of the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, 116 Wineow Street, also was entered over the weekend. Three sets of truck keys, pipes, cigarets, tobacco and pencils were taken.

Yule Party For Children Planned By Moose Club

A Christmas party will be held next Monday, December 24, from 1 to 3 p. m. by Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, for children of members.

A program of entertainment will be presented and Santa Claus will hand out treats to the children.

Reexamination Of 4-Fs Set By Draft Board Next Month

Draft registrants who have been rejected and classified 4-F for failure to meet minimum mental standards of the armed forces will be reexamined, beginning next month.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator here, yesterday received orders to forward to examining stations all men in that category, including those whose liability have been extended until they reach the age of 35.

Fahey stated the directive pointed out approximately 300,000 registrants have failed to achieve the prescribed percentile score on the Armed Forces Qualification Test or other prescribed qualification exams.

Local boards will not reopen the classification of these registrants. They will remain in Class 4-F and will not be reclassified prior to reexamination.

The order of selection will be by date of birth, the oldest registrant going first. The initial group to be examined will report in January with Selective Service officials issuing calls on the states.

Boards have been directed to reopen and consider anew the classification of every registrant who is found acceptable for military service.

Those registrants who, after reclassification, are placed in Class 1-A or Class 1-A-O by local boards will be sent for induction.

Fahey will report to the state director of Selective Service the total number of Class 4-F registrants who previously have failed to pass mental standards tests.

Daylight saving time was adopted in 1918 in New York City.

Court Ruling Nullifies Bus Line Sale

The sale of the Martinsburg, W. Va., bus line that formerly served the Cumberland area, to the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh was in effect nullified yesterday by the West Virginia Supreme Court in Charleston.

The bank bought Emery's Motor Coach Line, Inc., on October 31, 1949, and sold the property the same day to Potomac Lines, Inc.

The sale to the bank was carried out under a deed of trust covering loans totaling $127,000 which the bank made to the Emery Line.

The Supreme Court's unanimous opinion written by Judge W. T. Lovins noted that the trust agreement that any two of the three trustees could act in selling the property in case of default.

The owner of the bus line, Robert L. Emery, Jr., filed a bill of complaint in Mineral County Circuit Court seeking to prevent the sale. Among his contentions was an argument that proper notice was not given.

The lower court sustained the bank's demurrer to the bill of complaint. After Emery declined to amend his pleadings, the circuit court dissolved his complaint. It was from those actions that Emery carried his appeal to the Supreme Court.

The opinion by Judge Lovins related that the sale to the bank was carried out by one trustee, L. I. Price, acting alone. It said also that notice was published in a newspaper October 28, 1949, three days before the sale.

Must Be Reasonable

The appellate court held that although parties to a deed of trust may waive provision of state law and agree to only one publication of notice in a newspaper, "the time between publication and sale must be sufficient to give the debtor reasonable notice of the sale."

The court held also that where a deed of trust provides that two of three trustees may act, "it is necessary that two of such trustees be personally present at any sale and supervise the same."

The court said that the Circuit Court erred in sustaining the bank's demurrer.

The decree of the lower court was reversed and the case was remanded with directions that the Circuit Court proceed with the case on the pleadings filed by Emery.

It was further directed by the Supreme Court that in the event sale of the property seems warranted, the Circuit Court supervise such sale.

Two Local Offices Report Entries

A set of silverware was reported stolen early Monday from the Home Consolidated Equipment Company, 328 Virginia Avenue.

Investigation disclosed entrance was gained by breaking a glass in the front door. The same method of entry was used at the store of David Saville, 14 Fourth Street, where considerable merchandise was taken.

The office of the Feldstein Iron and Metal Company, 116 Wineow Street, also was entered over the weekend. Three sets of truck keys, pipes, cigarets, tobacco and pencils were taken.

Yule Party For Children Planned By Moose Club

A Christmas party will be held next Monday, December 24, from 1 to 3 p. m. by Cumberland Lodge No. 271, Loyal Order of Moose, for children of members.

A program of entertainment will be presented and Santa Claus will hand out treats to the children.

Reexamination Of 4-Fs Set By Draft Board Next Month

Draft registrants who have been rejected and classified 4-F for failure to meet minimum mental standards of the armed forces will be reexamined, beginning next month.

P. Emmett Fahey, clerk co-ordinator here, yesterday received orders to forward to examining stations all men in that category, including those whose liability have been extended until they reach the age of 35.

Fahey stated the directive pointed out approximately 300,000 registrants have failed to achieve the prescribed percentile score on the Armed Forces Qualification Test or other prescribed qualification exams.

Local boards will not reopen the classification of these registrants. They will remain in Class 4-F and will not be reclassified prior to reexamination.

The order of selection will be by date of birth, the oldest registrant going first. The initial group to be examined will report in January with Selective Service officials issuing calls on the states.

Boards have been directed to reopen and consider anew the classification of every registrant who is found acceptable for military service.

Those registrants who, after reclassification, are placed in Class 1-A or Class 1-A-O by local boards will be sent for induction.

Fahey will report to the state director of Selective Service the total number of Class 4-F registrants who previously have failed to pass mental standards tests.

Daylight saving time was adopted in 1918 in New York City.

Tucker County Grand Jury Indicts Seven

Gillis Named In Two True Bills

PARSONS, W. Va. — A former Parsons service station operator was indicted on two felony charges and two motorists were named in involuntary manslaughter indictments returned yesterday by the Tucker County Circuit Court grand jury.

The grand jury headed by Foreman Harry Nutter, returned eight indictments, four felonies and four misdemeanors.

The former service station operator, Joe K. Gillis, was named in two of the four felony true bills. In one he was charged with obtaining an $800 three-ton truck under false pretenses last January from A. D. Pittman, Parsons trucker. In another he was charged with grand larceny of an automobile belonging to Leo A. Casey, United States marshal in Parsons. Larceny of the $1,450 automobile allegedly occurred sometime in 1950.

In another felony indictment Harry Flanagan was charged with stealing a $65 camera November 19. In the fourth, Anthony Cook of Thomas was charged with knowingly receiving stolen goods, automobile accessories, from a juvenile in October.

Named in the misdemeanor involuntary manslaughter indictments were Mrs. Ruby Flanagan, Parsons, and Earl Eugene Black, Huntington, both of whom were involved in fatal accidents on U. S. Route 219 within a few miles of Thomas. Mrs. Flanagan is charged in the death September 29 of Glendie E. Mosser, who had served as Thomas fire chief 28 years.

Also facing misdemeanor charges are Calvin Harsh, Parsons, charged with driving November 26 while under the influence of alcohol, and Boyd Wise, Davis, charged with assault and battery on Lucille Damiano.

Judge Ernest A. See will call the court docket this morning and will set trial dates.

Members with Nutter on the grand jury were G. D. Cade, Robert Minear, Harold Barb, Carl Lanham, Minor Nestor, Roy Burns, Howard Pinney, C. B. Currence, Earl E. Fike, Omer Carr, Riley Bonner, A. C. Shoemaker, Edgar Breedlove, C. L. Pifer and Okey J. Stiles.

Medical Care

Medical Care, they are told to select their own physician and to take any prescriptions to the druggist of their choice.

The program does not include free hospitalization, which must be provided through the County Welfare Board. The agency pays only hospital fees, and any medical or surgical services for one so hospitalized is donated by the doctors who are on service.

$8,530 Received In TB Seal Sale

At the close of the fourth week of the Allegany County 1951 Christmas Seal Sale, a total of $8,530.95 has been received in contributions so far.

Glenn K. Davis, county seal sale chairman, announced this was 56 per cent of the $15,000 goal. A breakdown shows that $6,846.90 has been collected in Cumberland, $1,061.05 in Frostburg, and $623 in Westernport.

Sponsored by the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association, the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale funds will be used to support the 1952 Tuberculosis Prevention and Control program.

Welch To Face Grand Jury In Theft Cases

George McKinley Welch, 944 Gay Street, was ordered held under $500 bond on two theft counts yesterday after he waived a preliminary hearing before Trial Magistrate Wililam J. Gunter.

Welch's brothers, Robert and James, arrested with him Sunday morning in connection with a series of thefts here and in Hagerstown, are being held for Hagerstown authorities.

Another youth, Ralph Leo Wharton, will be charged with violation of his parole, the State's Attorney's Office said yesterday.

present guarantee or commitment that a new industry will be provided. We wish to be amply prepared if the opportunity to get one arises.

"All information should be directed, in writing, and as soon as possible, to Anthony Saeli, manager of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce."

Sudden Storm

motorists to use chains and drive with caution.

Rising temperatures earlier in the day had made highways a slushy mess. Although much of it was ploughed off by SRC crews, enough remained to freeze as new snow fell.

A near-blizzard raged in the Elkins area and visibility was poor. Within one hour of the day, two inches of snow fell in the mountains.

Road Commission crews sanded roads in the area but snow covered the brasive faster than it could be put down. Commission officials warned against mountain travel while the snow continued.

In the Eastern Panhandle, two roads along the Allegheny Plateau were particularly hazardous. Both U. S. Route 50 and State Route 42 in the area of Mount Storm (Grant County) and Elk Garden (Mineral) were dangerous.

Snowfall in the Panhandle totaled eight to 10 inches during the day. The Road Commission said visibility was "almost nil" in the area.

The Weston SRC office reported a very high wind in Barbour and Webster counties with more snow falling in Webster. Visibility was poor as temperatures dropped.

One Fatality

One highway fatality resulted from the storm. Melvin Palmer, 25, of Girdletree, was killed when a pickup truck in which he was riding skidded and overturned southeast of Salisbury.

In Baltimore, weather put the Christmas mailing schedule behind by about two million pieces.

There were no serious weather-caused accidents in the area, but there were dozens of exasperating, time-consuming incidents.

A big Cumberland Transit Lines bus rounded a steep curve at the top of a long, steep hill, skidded into a drift and was caught for several minutes between a utility pole and a small truck without striking either.

Cars in many spots, skidded, turned sideways and blocked streets for several minutes.

No Relief Seen

There were a few amusing happenings, too:

A portly man was walking up Baltimore Street when a sharp gust of wind lifted his hat from his head and sent it sailing over a two-story building. He kept on walking, without even looking up.

Several pedestrians were waiting for a traffic light to change yesterday afternoon when a deluge of snow hit them. Looking up, they found it had been blown from the Christmas decorations over the busy intersection.

One local woman, unable to find a bus or taxi yesterday morning, tried to thumb a ride unsuccessfully—on a passing milk truck.

The Weather Bureau predicted clearing skies and colder for today, except for snow flurries in the mountains. It's expected to be fair and colder tonight.

The long range forecast doesn't look very heartening, either. Increasing cloudiness and more snow are seen for late Thursday or Friday.

It will warm up a bit for Friday and will be still warmer by Sunday, the weather man predicts. But snow or rain are due again Sunday.

In one he was charged with obtaining an $800 three-ton truck under false pretenses last January from A. D. Pittman, Parsons trucker. In another he was charged with grand larceny of an automobile belonging to Leo A. Casey, United States marshal in Parsons. Larceny of the $1,450 automobile allegedly occurred sometime in 1950.

In another felony indictment Harry Flanagan was charged with stealing a $65 camera November 19. In the fourth, Anthony Cook of Thomas was charged with knowingly receiving stolen goods, automobile accessories, from a juvenile in October.

Named in the misdemeanor involuntary manslaughter indictments were Mrs. Ruby Flanagan, Parsons, and Earl Eugene Black, Huntington, both of whom were involved in fatal accidents on U. S. Route 219 within a few miles of Thomas. Mrs. Flanagan is charged in the death September 29 of Glendie E. Mosser, who had served as Thomas fire chief 28 years.

Also facing misdemeanor charges are Calvin Harsh, Parsons, charged with driving November 26 while under the influence of alcohol, and Boyd Wise, Davis, charged with assault and battery on Lucille Damiano.

Judge Ernest A. See will call the court docket this morning and will set trial dates.

Members with Nutter on the grand jury were G. D. Cade, Robert Minear, Harold Barb, Carl Lanham, Minor Nestor, Roy Burns, Howard Pinney, C. B. Currence, Earl E. Fike, Omer Carr, Riley Bonner, A. C. Shoemaker, Edgar Breedlove, C. L. Pifer and Okey J. Stiles.

Medical Care, they are told to select their own physician and to take any prescriptions to the druggist of their choice.

The program does not include free hospitalization, which must be provided through the County Welfare Board. The agency pays only hospital fees, and any medical or surgical services for one so hospitalized is donated by the doctors who are on service.

$8,530 Received In TB Seal Sale

At the close of the fourth week of the Allegany County 1951 Christmas Seal Sale, a total of $8,530.95 has been received in contributions so far.

Glenn K. Davis, county seal sale chairman, announced this was 56 per cent of the $15,000 goal. A breakdown shows that $6,846.90 has been collected in Cumberland, $1,061.05 in Frostburg, and $623 in Westernport.

Sponsored by the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association, the 1951 Christmas Seal Sale funds will be used to support the 1952 Tuberculosis Prevention and Control program.

Welch To Face Grand Jury In Theft Cases

George McKinzey Welch, 944 Gay Street, was ordered held under $500 bond on two theft counts yesterday after he waived a preliminary hearing before Trial Magistrate William J. Gunter.

Welch's brothers, Robert and James, arrested with him Sunday morning in connection with a series of thefts here and in Hagerstown, are being held for Hagerstown authorities.

Another youth, Ralph Leo Wharton, will be charged with violation of his parole, the State's Attorney's Office said yesterday.

Sudden Storm

motorists to use chains and drive with caution.

Rising temperatures earlier in the day had made highways a slushy mess. Although much of it was ploughed off by SRC crews, enough remained to freeze as new snow fell.

A near-blizzard raged in the Elkins area and visibility was poor. Within one hour of the day, two inches of snow fell in the mountains.

Road Commission crews sanded roads in the area but snow covered the brasive faster than it could be put down. Commission officials warned against mountain travel while the snow continued.

In the Eastern Panhandle, two roads along the Allegheny Plateau were particularly hazardous. Both U. S. Route 50 and State Route 42 in the area of Mount Storm (Grant County) and Elk Garden (Mineral) were dangerous.

Snowfall in the Panhandle totaled eight to 10 inches during the day. The Road Commission said visibility was "almost nil" in the area.

The Weston SRC office reported a very high wind in Barbour and Webster counties with more snow falling in Webster. Visibility was poor as temperatures dropped.

One Fatality

One highway fatality resulted from the storm. Melvin Palmer, 25, of Girdletree, was killed when a pickup truck in which he was riding skidded and overturned southeast of Salisbury.

In Baltimore, weather put the Christmas mailing schedule behind by about two million pieces.

There were no serious weather-caused accidents in the area, but there were dozens of exasperating, time-consuming incidents.

A big Cumberland Transit Lines bus rounded a steep curve at the top of a long, steep hill, skidded into a drift and was caught for several minutes between a utility pole and a small truck without striking either.

Cars in many spots, skidded, turned sideways and blocked streets for several minutes.

No Relief Seen

There were a few amusing happenings, too:

A portly man was walking up Baltimore Street when a sharp gust of wind lifted his hat from his head and sent it sailing over a two-story building. He kept on walking, without even looking up.

Several pedestrians were waiting for a traffic light to change yesterday afternoon when a deluge of snow hit them. Looking up, they found it had been blown from the Christmas decorations over the busy intersection.

One local woman, unable to find a bus or taxi yesterday morning, tried to thumb a ride unsuccessfully—on a passing milk truck.

The Weather Bureau predicted clearing skies and colder for today, except for snow flurries in the mountains. It's expected to be fair and colder tonight.

The long range forecast doesn't look very heartening, either. Increasing cloudiness and more snow are seen for late Thursday or Friday.

It will warm up a bit for Friday and will be still warmer by Sunday, the weather man predicts. But snow or rain are due again Sunday.

Tucker County Grand Jury Indicts Seven

Gillis Named In Two True Bills

PARSONS, W. Va. — A former Parsons service station operator was indicted on two felony charges and two motorists were named in involuntary manslaughter indictments returned yesterday by the Tucker County Circuit Court grand jury.

The grand jury headed by Foreman Harry Nutter, returned eight indictments, four felonies and four misdemeanors.

The former service station operator, Joe K. Gillis, was named in two of the four felony true bills. In one he was charged with obtaining an $800 three-ton truck under false pretenses last January from A. D. Pittman, Parsons trucker. Kefauver Says Bookie Tax Congress' "Worst" Action

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)— Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) said tonight the $50 tax on bookies is "the worst thing Congress ever did."

"It will rise up to haunt Congress in the years to come," said Kefauver, former head of the Senate Crime Committee.

He spoke over WOR-TV and the Dumont television network. Later he talked to a reporter and told him:

"The tax gives the sanction of the United States to something that is wrong. It makes it awfully hard for the states to say to gamblers 'we are going to put in jail' if the U. S. gives its approval to gambling."

The new law requires a bookie to register and pay the federal tax. However, it was not intended to give him immunity from prosecution.

With a taste of bookies' tax money, Kefauver said, the government will eventually sanction all gambling in its greed for "more and more revenue."

Hhis Senate committee, he added, never wanted to see the federal government get into the business of local law enforcement.

Kefauver maintained that commercial gambling is immoral whether it is sponsored by the government or legalized and operated by private interests.

Taking the opposite view, State Sen. Francis J. Mahoney advocated a state-sponsored lottery.

Kefauver held that church-sponsored lotteries and gambling games are just as immoral as any other kind.

Turkey Given Truman

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — President Truman received his Christmas turkey today.

A 35-pound Missouri-grown tom was presented to Mr. Truman by a delegation headed by R. M. Calbert, president of the National Turkey Federation.

Sears Auto On Sale Tomorrow

CHICAGO, Dec. 18 (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Company's automobile, the Allstate, will go on sale Thursday in 19 cities in 10 states. The outlets are in the South, Southwest and West.

Sears said the new car is the lowest priced full size 1952 model sedan in the United States. It said this is the first extensive department store merchandising of an automobile in the history of the industry.

Basic factory-delivered prices, including federal tax but not including state taxes, will range from $1,395 for the standard four cylinder model to $1,796 for the deluxe six cylinder model equipped with overdrive, Sears said.

The car will be sold, serviced and guaranteed by Sears and will be handled through its retail division only. The car also can be financed through Sears under its regular program of time payments. Used cars will be taken in trade.

The automobile is being produced for Sears by Kaiser-Frazier Corp. and is similar to Kaiser-Frazer's "Henry J" model. The motor is made by Willys-Overland Motors, Inc. Sears said it is engineered to deliver gasoline economy in the 30 to 35 miles per gallon range .

Ex-Maid Gives Tallulah Big Hand

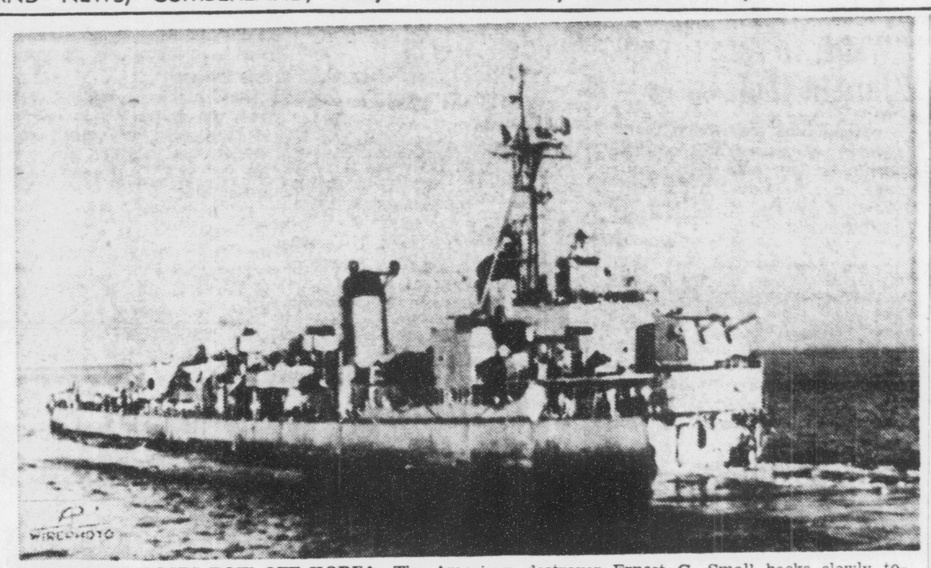
NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Mink-clad Tallulah Bankhead played the role of stern accuser today and won the biggest hand from the woman she accused, her former maid-secretary.

"Didn't she look beautiful?" gushed 59-year-old Mrs. Evyleen Cronin. "She is a beautiful woman and has a wonderful voice.

"I have no ill feelings of any kind toward Miss Bankhead. She's a wonderful woman."

Mrs. Cronin is accused of raising 26 of Miss Bankhead's checks and pocketing $4,284. The charge is forgery and larceny. She has admitted hiking the checks but said she did it for the actress' benefit and with Miss Bankhead's authorization. She has offered partial restitution.

Actually, Tallulah's long awaited witness stand appearance didn't even win her a curtain call. She was only on the stand 25 minutes to deny she ever gave Mrs. Cronin permssiion to raise the checks.



DESTROYER LOSES BOW OFF KOREA—The American destroyer Ernest G. Small backs slowly toward Japan with her bow missing after hitting a mine off the Korea coast on October 7. The blast loosened the bow, which started to shake itself to pieces, endangering the rest of the ship. The captain stopped the ship and backed it away from the bow to break it off ahead of a watertight bulkhead. Nine sailors were killed and 18 injured by the blast. The ship, fitted with a makeshift bow, reached Long Beach, Calif., safely. This photo was released yesterday by the Navy in Washington.

Girl Crosses Europe On Lone Global Trip

LONDON, Dec. 18 (AP)—Elizabeth Bean, 9, Kansas City, flew across Europe tonight on her lone round-the-world trip. So far she has seen nothing but airport waiting rooms.

Because bad weather delayed her plane, the airline cut its stop here and rerouted it to by-pass Brussels and Frankfurt as well.

Elizabeth's next stop is Istanbul.

Her parents said before she took off from New York last night that they let her make the trip because they thought it would be "a wonderful experience for a child."

OPS Begins Survey Of Grocers' Prices

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) —The Office of Price Stabilization began a special survey today to determine whether the nation's food stores are entitled to raise prices.

Retail food merchants said two weeks ago they needed to charge 10 per cent more to prevent thousands of grocers from being squeezed, due to increased operating costs.

OPS mailed 1,500 survey forms to what it termed a representative cross section of the country's food wholesalers and retailers. They asked for specific information on earnings, operating expenses and other factors in the last five years.

The information will permit OPS to determine whether grocers need higher prices and, if so, how much higher, an announcement said.

Bedford Appointed "Defense Expediter"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Lovett today named Clay Bedford, industrial engineer, as "special expediter" to speed up military production which has been lagging.

Lovett said the appointment was made with agreement of Charles E. Wilson, director of defense mobilization, and Manly Fleischmann, defense production administrator.

Bedford will serve as Lovett's special assistant.

For six months Bedford has been assistant to Wilson and has served as deputy administrator of the Defense Production Administration.

Lovett already has instructed Bedford to "give particular attention" to speeding production of major items of military equipment that are of critical urgency. These items were not named.

Morgantown Ordnance Plant Lease Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Army was reported today to have signed an agreement to lease the Morgantown, W. Va., ordnance plant to Mathieson Chemical Corp. of Baltimore.

Rep. Staggers (D-WVa) said he was advised this action was taken immediately after the Army's plans received final congressional committee approval.

A seventh vote for the plans came today from a Senate Armed Services Committee member to give a majority vote for approal in that group.

Basic factory-delivered prices, including federal tax but not including state taxes, will range from $1,395 for the standard four cylinder model to $1,796 for the deluxe six cylinder model equipped with overdrive, Sears said.

The car will be sold, serviced and guaranteed by Sears and will be handled through its retail division only. The car also can be financed through Sears under its regular program of time payments. Used cars will be taken in trade.

The automobile is being produced for Sears by Kaiser-Frazier Corp. and is similar to Kaiser-Frazer's "Henry J" model. The motor is made by Willys-Overland Motors, Inc. Sears said it is engineered to deliver gasoline economy in the 30 to 35 miles per gallon range .

Ex-Maid Gives Tallulah Big Hand

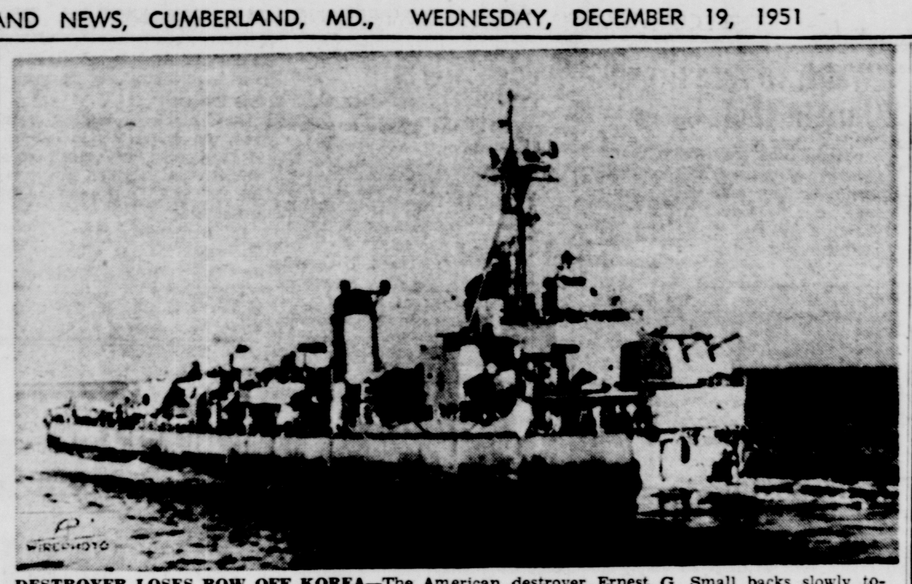
NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Mink-clad Tallulah Bankhead played the role of stern accuser today and won the biggest hand from the woman she accused, her former maid-secretary.

"Didn't she look beautiful?" gushed 59-year-old Mrs. Evyleen Cronin. "She is a beautiful woman and has a wonderful voice.

"I have no ill feelings of any kind toward Miss Bankhead. She's a wonderful woman."

Mrs. Cronin is accused of raising 26 of Miss Bankhead's checks and pocketing $4,284. The charge is forgery and larceny. She has admitted hiking the checks but said she did it for the actress' benefit and with Miss Bankhead's authorization. She has offered partial restitution.

Actually, Tallulah's long awaited witness stand appearance didn't even win her a curtain call. She was only on the stand 25 minutes to deny she ever gave Mrs. Cronin permssiion to raise the checks.



DESTROYER LOSES BOW OFF KOREA—The American destroyer Ernest G. Small backs slowly toward Japan with her bow missing after hitting a mine off the Korea coast on October 7. The blast loosened the bow, which started to shake itself to pieces, endangering the rest of the ship. The captain stopped the ship and backed it away from the bow to break it off ahead of a watertight bulkhead. Nine sailors were killed and 18 injured by the blast. The ship, fitted with a makeshift bow, reached Long Beach, Calif., safely. This photo was released yesterday by the Navy in Washington.

Girl Crosses Europe On Lone Global Trip

LONDON, Dec. 18 (AP)—Elizabeth Bean, 9, Kansas City, flew across Europe tonight on her lone round-the-world trip. So far she has seen nothing but airport waiting rooms.

Because bad weather delayed her plane, the airline cut its stop here and rerouted it to by-pass Brussels and Frankfurt as well.

Elizabeth's next stop is Istanbul.

Her parents said before she took off from New York last night that they let her make the trip because they thought it would be "a wonderful experience for a child."

OPS Begins Survey Of Grocers' Prices

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) —The Office of Price Stabilization began a special survey today to determine whether the nation's food stores are entitled to raise prices.

Retail food merchants said two weeks ago they needed to charge 10 per cent more to prevent thousands of grocers from being squeezed, due to increased operating costs.

OPS mailed 1,500 survey forms to what it termed a representative cross section of the country's food wholesalers and retailers. They asked for specific information on earnings, operating expenses and other factors in the last five years.

The information will permit OPS to determine whether grocers need higher prices and, if so, how much higher, an announcement said.

Bedford Appointed "Defense Expediter"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18. (AP) — Secretary of Defense Lovett today named Clay Bedford, industrial engineer, as "special expediter" to speed up military production which has been lagging.

Lovett said the appointment was made with agreement of Charles E. Wilson, director of defense mobilization, and Manly Fleischmann, defense production administrator.

Bedford will serve as Lovett's special assistant.

For six months Bedford has been assistant to Wilson and has served as deputy administrator of the Defense Production Administration.

Lovett already has instructed Bedford to "give particular attention" to speeding production of major items of military equipment that are of critical urgency. These items were not named.

Morgantown Ordnance Plant Lease Approved

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Army was reported today to have signed an agreement to lease the Morgantown, W. Va., ordnance plant to Mathieson Chemical Corp. of Baltimore.

Rep. Staggers (D-WVa) said he was advised this action was taken immediately after the Army's plans received final congressional committee approval.

A seventh vote for the plans came today from a Senate Armed Services Committee member to give a majority vote for approal in that group.

Kefauver Says Bookie Tax Congress' "Worst" Action

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)— Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn) said tonight the $50 tax on bookies is "the worst thing Congress ever did."

"It will rise up to haunt Congress in the years to come," said Kefauver, former head of the Senate Crime Committee.

He spoke over WOR-TV and the Dumont television network. Later he talked to a reporter and told him:

"The tax gives the sanction of the United States to something that is wrong. It makes it awfully hard for the states to say to gamblers 'we are going to put in jail' if the U. S. gives its approval to gambling."

The new law requires a bookie to register and pay the federal tax. However, it was not intended to give him immunity from prosecution.

With a taste of bookies' tax money, Kefauver said, the government will eventually sanction all gambling in its greed for "more and more revenue."

Hhis Senate committee, he added, never wanted to see the federal government get into the business of local law enforcement.

Kefauver maintained that commercial gambling is immoral whether it is sponsored by the government or legalized and operated by private interests.

Taking the opposite view, State Sen. Francis J. Mahoney advocated a state-sponsored lottery.

Kefauver held that church-sponsored lotteries and gambling games are just as immoral as any other kind.

Sears Auto On Sale Tomorrow

CHICAGO, Dec. 18 (AP) — Sears, Roebuck and Company's automobile, the Allstate, will go on sale Thursday in 19 cities in 10 states. The outlets are in the South, Southwest and West.

Sears said the new car is the lowest priced full size 1952 model sedan in the United States. It said this is the first extensive department store merchandising of an automobile in the history of the industry.

Basic factory-delivered prices, including federal tax but not including state taxes, will range from $1,395 for the standard four cylinder model to $1,796 for the deluxe six cylinder model equipped with overdrive, Sears said.

The car will be sold, serviced and guaranteed by Sears and will be handled through its retail division only. The car also can be financed through Sears under its regular program of time payments. Used cars will be taken in trade.

The body will remain at the Spriggle Funeral Home in Davis until this afternoon when it will be brought to the Aurora Lutheran Church for a funeral service at 2 p. m. Rev. H. Shiley, pastor of the Aurora Methodist Church, will officiate. Interment will follow in the Aurora Cemetery.

Keyser Man Held For County Officers

Harry Eversole, of the Keyser section, was arrested Monday night by West Virginia State Police and is being held for Allegany county authorities.

The State's Attorney's office here reported that Eversole is wanted in connection with the alleged theft of coal in this county.

Benson Pays Fine On Gaming Charge

George Benson, 1509 Lexington Avenue, paid a $50 fine yesterday morning in police court on charges of maintaining a gaming device at his place of business.

Benson pleaded not guilty at a hearing before Police Magistrate William J. Gunter, was found guilty and paid the fine. He was taken into custody at 11:15 p. m. Monday upon complaint received by city police. Arresting officers were Ernest M. Powell and Ralph M. Buser, Jr.

Record Number

She said the heavy influx of calls yesterday was just too much to handle for the equipment on hand, causing the delay in service. The number of operators on duty varies from day to day and from hour to hour.

At an emergency such as yesterday, all switchboards are put to use. The peak hours at the office are from 10-11:30 a. m. and from 4-8 p. m. With each call placed the operator meters it and at the end of each hour a master board of meters is checked for the number of calls daily.

GRANTSVILLE — Services for Edward J. Beachy, 82, who died Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Keister, near here, were conducted Monday afternoon in the Witnerberg Funeral Home by Rev. Roy Kinsinger. Burial was in Folk Cemetery.

Mr. Beachy was born April 1, 1869, near Grantsville, a son of the late Jonas and Anna (Yutzy) Beachy. He had resided at the Keister residence the past four years.

Surviving are two sisters, Miss Kate Beachy and Mrs. Mary Orendorf, Grantsville, and a number of nieces and nephews.

MRS. FANNIE LAIRD

LONACONING — Mrs. Fannie Moffat Laird, 78, died Monday in Montgomery Hospital, Norristown, Pa., where she had been a patient for two weeks.

A native of Lonaconing, Mrs. Laird was a daughter of the late Mrs. Savannah Moffat Timney. She was a member of the Lonaconing Homemakers Club, the Pythian Sisters, the Auxiliary of Good Will Fire Company, and the Daughters of Rebekah.

In September, Mrs. Laird went to Conshohocken, Pa., to spend the winter with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Bell, and a son, Virgil Laird.

She is survived by another son, Robert T. Laird, Wrights Crossing; two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Rennie, West Frankfort, Ill., and Mrs. Cora Hoover, Midland, five grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The body will arrive here today and will be at the Eichhorn Funeral Home. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

PLUMMER INFANT

FROSTBURG—Harold C. Plummer, Jr., 4½-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Plummer, 84 Bowery Street, died yesterday at home. The child had been under a physician's care since birth. A private funeral service will be held at Frostburg Memorial Park. The infant was the Plummers' only child.

HUGH GUY MOATS

AURORA, W. Va. — Hugh Guy Moats, 48, died suddenly Monday night of a heart attack at his home here.

Born here May 22, 1903, he was a son of William and Margaret Moats. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Ises Bohan Moats; seven sons, George Arley, Kenneth, Harold, Herbert, Ralph and Dale, all at home; three daughters, Bessie, Mary and Beulah, all at home; four brothers, Oscar, Julius, Summers and Eli, all of here.

The body will remain at the Spriggle Funeral Home in Davis until this afternoon when it will be brought to the Aurora Lutheran Church for a funeral service at 2 p. m. Rev. H. Shiley, pastor of the Aurora Methodist Church, will officiate. Interment will follow in the Aurora Cemetery.

Keyser Man Held For County Officers

Harry Eversole, of the Keyser section, was arrested Monday night by West Virginia State Police and is being held for Allegany county authorities.

The State's Attorney's office here reported that Eversole is wanted in connection with the alleged theft of coal in this county.

Benson Pays Fine On Gaming Charge

George Benson, 1509 Lexington Avenue, paid a $50 fine yesterday morning in police court on charges of maintaining a gaming device at his place of business.

Benson pleaded not guilty at a hearing before Police Magistrate William J. Gunter, was found guilty and paid the fine. He was taken into custody at 11:15 p. m. Monday upon complaint received by city police. Arresting officers were Ernest M. Powell and Ralph M. Buser, Jr.

She said the heavy influx of calls yesterday was just too much to handle for the equipment on hand, causing the delay in service. The number of operators on duty varies from day to day and from hour to hour.

At an emergency such as yesterday, all switchboards are put to use. The peak hours at the office are from 10-11:30 a. m. and from 4-8 p. m. With each call placed the operator meters it and at the end of each hour a master board of meters is checked for the number of calls daily.

Potomac Yule Plans Progress

Christmas plans at Potomac Park are nearing completion.

The annual community tree has been placed along Route 220 and lights will be placed on the 30-foot fir.

Holiday plans are being sponsored jointly by the Improvement Association and the Evangelical United Brethren Church. A Nativity scene is being placed in front of the church and upon completion, tree lighting ceremonies will be held.

On Sunday at 7:30 p. m. the church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Mills, will present "A King is Given." The Nativity scene will be dramatized by a group of adults and children, while the choir sings the musical numbers.

The Improvement Association is joining with the Sunday School in purchasing and distributing a Christmas treat for the community. On December 23 at 7:30 p. m., the Sunday School will present a program by the children's division. After the program treats will be given out by personnel of the Sunday School and the association.

The village of Hurley, N. Y., was the capital of the state for a month in 1777.

Potomac Yule Plans Progress

Christmas plans at Potomac Park are nearing completion.

The annual community tree has been placed along Route 220 and lights will be placed on the 30-foot fir.

Holiday plans are being sponsored jointly by the Improvement Association and the Evangelical United Brethren Church. A Nativity scene is being placed in front of the church and upon completion, tree lighting ceremonies will be held.

On Sunday at 7:30 p. m. the church choir, under the direction of Mrs. Alice Mills, will present "A King is Given." The Nativity scene will be dramatized by a group of adults and children, while the choir sings the musical numbers.

The Improvement Association is joining with the Sunday School in purchasing and distributing a Christmas treat for the community. On December 23 at 7:30 p. m., the Sunday School will present a program by the children's division. After the program treats will be given out by personnel of the Sunday School and the association.

The village of Hurley, N. Y., was the capital of the state for a month in 1777.

ABL Workers Share $50,000 Compensation

A total of 405 employes of Allegany Ballistics Laboratory share $50,000 under the Hercules Powder Company's year-end compensation plan, O. B. Case, manager, announced.

Checks were distributed Saturday. Employes hired on or before June 30, 1951, received one week's pay and those hired on or before December 1, 1950, two weeks' pay.

Plant employes will be guests of the company at a holiday dinner Saturday at 11 a. m.

Wiley Ford Church Plans Yule Program

The Young People of Wiley Ford Church of the Brethren will present a dramatization, "Glory To God" Friday at 7:30 p. m. The Youth Choir will participate.

The annual Sunday School Christmas program scheduled for Sunday at 7:30 p. m. will include recitations, exercises, a short play and musical selections by the junior department.

Guard Plans Charity Dance Saturday

The two local National Guard companies will use their Saturday night dance this week to collect Christmas package items for the Associated Charities.

Instead of money for admission, toys, clothes and food will be accepted as "tickets."

Music will be furnished by Bill Higgs and his Melody Rangers. "Uncle Russ" and Jack Gale will also be on the program.

The event is being sponsored by Company C and Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 115th Infantry Regiment, Maryland National Guard.

In Vesper Service

Miss Carol Reith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Reith, Bedford Street, sang the solo part in "Shepherds On This Hill" in the Christmas vesper service at Indiana (Pa.) State Teachers College, Sunday. Carol is a freshman in the music department at Indiana.

Spas To Open At Home Against Clarksburg Quint Sunday

Cumberland Seeks Third Straight Win

Holds 69-57 Victory Over Tiremen; Game To Start At 8:30

The Cumberland Spas, victorious in their first two encounters on the road, will host the Clarksburg, W. Va., Tiremen in their first home engagement Sunday at 8:30 p. m. on SS. Peter and Paul court, Roger Day, player-manager of the Spas announced last night.

Roger Day

The visit of the Tiremen here will be a return tussle for the two teams as the Spas defeated the Clarksburg quint last Sunday in West Virginia, 69-57. The locals also hold a decision over Johnson Coals of Morgantown, W. Va., 66-58.

Sponsored By Tire Company

The Clarksburg team is composed of several top-notch college stars and professionals and were ahead of the Spas most of the way in their initial meeting before bowing to the sharp-shooting Cumberland aggregation. George Geatz and Bob Pence starred with 23 and 17 points respectively for the Spas and newcomers Bob Lookabaugh and Jack Stotler played excellent floor games against the Tiremen.

The Tiremen, sponsored by the B. F. Goodrich Company of Clarksburg, are headed by Jack Hines, who is player-coach of the quintet for the fourth season. Other members of the squad are Clyde "Hard Times" Green, ex-West Virginia University and Wheeling Blues ace; Ed Reed of Princeton; Bob Hardman, former Glenville College flash; Benny Swiger from Salem College; Joe Pelaez, of Alderson-Broaddus College; Hank Ellis, coach at West Virginia Wesleyan and former player for the professional Wheeling Blues; Cottrell Schmidle of Fairmont State and Fred Morecraft.

Preliminary At 7 O'clock

Morecraft and Hines both play for the Johnson Coals also. Morecraft was the leading scorer for the Coals when the Morgantown five lost to the Spas earlier this year.

Arrangements for the game were completed by Day and Frank Carpenter of Clarksburg. A preliminary contest will be scheduled at 7 p. m.

The Spas also hope to book the Broadway Clowns, noted road team, for Sunday, December 30, Day said, on the SS. Peter and Paul court.

Petersburg Wins Second, 69 To 45

Mathias Drops PVC Game To Vikings

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 18—Carroll Michael scored 21 points as Petersburg High's Vikings captured their opening Potomac Valley Conference game with a 69-45 decision over Mathias High here tonight.

It was the second straight win for Coach Jesse Riggleman's charges who defeated an Alumni quint 60-49 earlier in the season.

The game was close the first half with Petersburg holding a 14-10 and 27-23 edge at the quarters but a 14-point spurt in the third period gave the winners a 41-30 margin and the Vikings turned the game into a rout with 28 tallies in the final canto.

J. Dove garnered high scoring honors for the game with 22 tallies on six fielders and 10 of 15 fouls for Mathias.

The Petersburg girls defeated the Mathias girls in the preliminary 45-18 as Betty Brill scored 14 points for the winners. The lineups:

Joe Bach Appointed Coach Of Pittsburgh's Steelers

Succeeds Michelosen Who Quits Under Fire

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League fired head coach Johnny Michelosen today and hired Joe Bach in his stead.

Michelosen resigned after Owner Art Rooney notified him his contract would not be renewed for the job he has held the last four years. His two-year contract expired at the end of the current season.

Nine Years As Pro

Bach, head coach at St. Bonaventure College the last two seasons, has been coaching 26 years, nine of them in professional football.

He graduated in 1924 from Notre Dame University, where he was a right tackle in the "Seven Mule" line that supported the school's famed "Four Horsemen."

The Pittsburgh job is really a return to duty for Bach. He coached the Steelers, then known as the Pirates, in 1935 and 1936.

Thirty-five-year-old Michelosen, one of the youngest pro football coaches, said he stepped down as coach "because of financial pressure in pro football" and "I feel the fans and owners want a change."

No Immediate Plans

"I have no immediate plans for the future," said Michelosen in his letter of resignation to Rooney, "but I feel I shall remain in coaching."

The former University of Pittsburgh star took over the Steelers coaching reins in 1948 after the death of Dr. Jock Sutherland. In four seasons with the Steelers, his teams won 20, lost 26 and tied two. The Steelers copped four and tied one in 12 starts during the 1951 campaign.

Fans began the clamour for ouster of Michelosen after midseason. Several weeks ago end Val Jansante quit, saying he was forced to do so because of the abuse of Pittsburgh fans."

Shinkoff Was Right

By C. V. BURNS

Yesterday's snowstorm resulted in postponement of a flock of basketball games in Cumberland and vicinity.

In fact, two Cumberland teams scheduled to play right here in town, called off their game even though it was nice and comfortable indoors and the gym roof didn't leak.

The payoff however, came last evening when Brother Joseph, director of athletics at LaSalle High School, told of receiving a phone call at 7 o'clock from Coach Joseph O'Donnell of Altoona Catholic High School, who informed Bro. Joseph that he had his varsity and jayvee teams here ready to play LaSalle.

Yes, the Altoona teams had traveled 68 miles through the storm to keep their date with the Explorers only to discover that someone had committed a blunder.

Altoona Catholic is not scheduled to play LaSalle here until January 18. The Marauders not only braved a snowstorm to play basketball but they arrived in Cumberland a month ahead of schedule.

• — • — •

The current edition of the Cumberland Spas is most unusual because the team has won its first two games — of all places — away from home.

Postwar pro basketball was revived here in the 1946-47 season by the Amvets. The Dukes held sway three years and the Spas were in operation last winter.

During the five seasons the local clubs played 55 games on the road, winning seven and losing 48. A total of 172 games were played, of which 91 were wins and 81 losses.

The 1947-48 team had an 0-11 record on the road while the 1948-49 club had a 2-16 mark off the home court. The 1949-50 quint won three and lost nine and last year the Spas' away-from-home record was 2-10.

None of the teams of the past five years ever won two in a row on the road. That's why the present Spas team is deserving of a few bouquets for its winning performances in Morgantown and Clarksburg.

Allegany High School will not sponsor a girls' basketball team this season and we understand that some of the grads, incensed by the action, are planning to circulate a petition in an effort to persuade school officials to change their plans.

Could it be another one of those petitions such as the one that was being circulated last fall to remove a certain out-of-town high school grid coach who was accused of cussing his players too freely? The instigators got cold feet on that one.

'Tis said that Allegany is giving up interscholastic basketball in favor of an intramural program.

Beall, Central, Bruce, Ursuline and Fort Hill are sponsoring sextets this season. It does seem kind of odd with Allegany listed "among the missing."

Remember Dick Wehr, star pivot man of the Wheeling Blues of the All-American Basketball League of several years ago?

Dick is now coach of West Liberty College which has bagged four straight in the West Virginia Inter-Collegiate Conference, including a 77-59 decision over Potomac State at Keyser last Saturday.

Among the Christmas cards we've received is one from Nick Shinkoff, scout of the New York Giants, who comes through this section every summer looking for baseball ivory.

The last time we saw Nick was in the press box at Fairgo during the Cumberland Fair Association race meeting in July.

At that time the Dodgers were leading the Giants by 9½ games (July 28) and Nick told me the Giants would win the pennant.

"I wouldn't be surprised if this race goes right down to the final day of the season, Shinkoff declared, "but the Giants will finish on top."

That's what happened.

And we were sitting in the left field stands at the Polo Grounds the afternoon Bobby Thomson belted the homer that beat the Dodgers and won the pennant for the Giants.

• — • — •

How's this for coincidence?

At the same time we received Nick Shinkoff's Yule greetings came a copy of the Staten Island Advance telling about the Bobby Thomson celebration there on December 6. The newspaper was sent by John Somma, one-time Ridgeley citizen who now resides on Staten Island, N. Y.

Somma attended the testimonial affair for the New York Giants' slugger.

Optimist Club To Honor Team

15 Boys Are Guests At Party Tonight

The Optimist Club will honor its Hot Stove League baseball team tonight at 6:15 at Central YMCA during the club's annual Christmas dinner and party.

Norman Ward, chairman of the boy's committee of the organization, is in charge of arrangements and the 15 members of the team will be presented individual awards on behalf of the club.

Earl M. Nonnenmann and Bill Underdonk were co-managers of the Optimist Club team in the junior boys' circuit and the team finished fourth in the circuit with a 12-9 record.

VMI Basketeers Lose To Maryland, 57-39

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 18 (AP) — Virginia Military Institute's basketball team tried to go along with the University of Maryland in its "control" game here tonight, but the Terps made good 21 of 43 shots to defeat the Keydets 57-39.

Winless VMI sank only 11 of 65 tries from the floor and made good only 17 of 36 tried from the free throw line in absorbing its fifth straight loss of the season and its fourth in conference competition.

Brawley's 13 points topped scorers of both teams.

Tatum Says "No"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Athletic Director Jim Tatum tonight rejected a persistent report that Maryland would bolt the Southern Conference because of the post-season bowl controversy.

Lt. Col. Harry E. Flook, now general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association, was the executive officer of the outfit in which Shinkoff served during the Second World War.

Henry "Dutch" Dehnert's Toledo (Ohio) Mercurys walloped the Cabineers in Hagerstown Sunday by the score of 106 to 94. Johnny Payak, former Bowling Green University player, scored 15 goals and 34 points for the Ohioans.

Jule Rivlin, who has retired from basketball about a half dozen times, is back in the Wheeling Blues' lineup.

Wheeling whipped "Red" Klotz's Philadelphia Sphas Sunday at Bellaire, Ohio, by the score of 76-66.

Eddie Sterling collected 24 points for the Blues, including 10 foul goals in 11 tries. Tonkovich, Britt, Herman and Mohan also appeared in the Wheeling lineup.

NEW COACH — Murray Warmath, assistant coach at the U. S. Military Academy, is shown at West Point, N. Y., where word was received that he has accepted the post of head grid coach at Mississippi State. Warmath, graduate of Tennessee, served under Bob Neyland at his alma mater for five years and also was an assistant at Mississippi State for three years.

Legion Wins Three

Frostburg American Legion defeated Pocahontas 3-0 last night in a Women's National Shuffleboard League match. G. Geis paced the winners with 23 points while Edith Smith had 15 for the losers.

Sentinels Host To Moorefield Quint Tonight

Storm Keeps Teams Idle; LaSalle Plays At Altoona Friday

Moorefield High School's basketeers will come here tonight to play Fort Hill's Sentinels on the Fort Hill court at 8 o'clock, weather permitting, Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh announced last night.

Yesterday's snowstorm resulted in postponement of the game originally set for last night.

Other postponement's last night included the LaSalle-Bruce game in Westernport and the Somerset-Allegany game at Campobello. No new dates for these games were announced.

Ridgeley High's engagement with Elk Garden at the latter place also was postponed.

LaSalle's next game is Friday night with Altoona Catholic High School at Altoona, Pa., while Allegany battles the Alumni December 26. Ridgeley plays Fort Hill on the Sentinels' court Friday night.

Other games "snowed out" included:

West Virginia Deaf at Fort Ashby.
Wardensville at Berkley Springs.
Beall at Piedmont.
Barton at Hyndman.
Thomas at Bayard.
Kitzmiller at Oakland.
Ursuline at Fort Hill (girls).

In addition to the Fort Hill-Moorefield tilt, Parsons is slated to play Coalton High School tonight on the Parson's court.

Workman Gets West Virginia Award 2nd Time

Voted Outstanding Amateur Athlete

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 18 (AP) — West Virginia University's record-breaking Mark Workman for the second time in his career has been named West Virginia's outstanding amateur athlete.

The West Virginia Sports Writers Association, in its 18th annual poll, selected the Charleston student for the 1951 honors. Workman received the award in 1948 when he was a senior at Charleston High School. He now plays center on the WVU basketball squad.

In two varsity seasons at WVU, Workman already has chalked up university records for the most points in a single season (705); most field goals of a season (273), and most free throws in a single season (159).

The only remaining individual record at West Virginia fell to Workman Dec. 3 when he broke the all-time total for scoring. At present, his mark is 1,094 points for two years plus, shattering Fred Schaus' old record of 1,009 tallies.

Terra Alta Stops Davis

Wildcats Defeated By 54-48 Score

DAVIS, W. Va., Dec. 18—A fast-stepping Terra Alta quint stopped Davis High's Wildcats' three-game winning streak with a thrilling 54-48 victory here tonight in Davis' first home game of the season.

The lead see-sawed back and forth before Terra Alta was able to pull away in the final period. Davis held a 17-16 lead at the close of the first stanza but Terra Alta led 30-28 and 43-41 in the next two periods.

Everley and Groves paced the winners with 19 and 12 points respectively while Raese collected 24 for Davis. The lineups:

Morecraft and Hines both play for the Johnson Coals also. Morecraft was the leading scorer for the Coals when the Morgantown five lost to the Spas earlier this year.

Arrangements for the game were completed by Day and Frank Carpenter of Clarksburg. A preliminary contest will be scheduled at 7 p. m.

The Spas also hope to book the Broadway Clowns, noted road team, for Sunday, December 30, Day said, on the SS. Peter and Paul court.

Mathias Drops PVC Game To Vikings

PETERSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 18—Carroll Michael scored 21 points as Petersburg High's Vikings captured their opening Potomac Valley Conference game with a 69-45 decision over Mathias High here tonight.

It was the second straight win for Coach Jesse Riggleman's charges who defeated an Alumni quint 60-49 earlier in the season.

The game was close the first half with Petersburg holding a 14-10 and 27-23 edge at the quarters but a 14-point spurt in the third period gave the winners a 41-30 margin and the Vikings turned the game into a rout with 28 tallies in the final canto.

J. Dove garnered high scoring honors for the game with 22 tallies on six fielders and 10 of 15 fouls for Mathias.

The Petersburg girls defeated the Mathias girls in the preliminary 45-18 as Betty Brill scored 14 points for the winners. The lineups:

Joe Bach Appointed Coach Of Pittsburgh's Steelers

Succeeds Michelosen Who Quits Under Fire

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 18 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League fired head coach Johnny Michelosen today and hired Joe Bach in his stead.

Michelosen resigned after Owner Art Rooney notified him his contract would not be renewed for the job he has held the last four years. His two-year contract expired at the end of the current season.

Nine Years As Pro

Bach, head coach at St. Bonaventure College the last two seasons, has been coaching 26 years, nine of them in professional football.

He graduated in 1924 from Notre Dame University, where he was a right tackle in the "Seven Mule" line that supported the school's famed "Four Horsemen."

The Pittsburgh job is really a return to duty for Bach. He coached the Steelers, then known as the Pirates, in 1935 and 1936.

Thirty-five-year-old Michelosen, one of the youngest pro football coaches, said he stepped down as coach "because of financial pressure in pro football" and "I feel the fans and owners want a change."

No Immediate Plans

"I have no immediate plans for the future," said Michelosen in his letter of resignation to Rooney, "but I feel I shall remain in coaching."

The former University of Pittsburgh star took over the Steelers coaching reins in 1948 after the death of Dr. Jock Sutherland. In four seasons with the Steelers, his teams won 20, lost 26 and tied two. The Steelers copped four and tied one in 12 starts during the 1951 campaign.

Fans began the clamour for ouster of Michelosen after midseason. Several weeks ago end Val Jansante quit, saying he was forced to do so because of the abuse of Pittsburgh fans."

Yesterday's snowstorm resulted in postponement of a flock of basketball games in Cumberland and vicinity.

In fact, two Cumberland teams scheduled to play right here in town, called off their game even though it was nice and comfortable indoors and the gym roof didn't leak.

The payoff however, came last evening when Brother Joseph, director of athletics at LaSalle High School, told of receiving a phone call at 7 o'clock from Coach Joseph O'Donnell of Altoona Catholic High School, who informed Bro. Joseph that he had his varsity and jayvee teams here ready to play LaSalle.

Yes, the Altoona teams had traveled 68 miles through the storm to keep their date with the Explorers only to discover that someone had committed a blunder.

Altoona Catholic is not scheduled to play LaSalle here until January 18. The Marauders not only braved a snowstorm to play basketball but they arrived in Cumberland a month ahead of schedule.

The current edition of the Cumberland Spas is most unusual because the team has won its first two games — of all places — away from home.

Postwar pro basketball was revived here in the 1946-47 season by the Amvets. The Dukes held sway three years and the Spas were in operation last winter.

During the five seasons the local clubs played 55 games on the road, winning seven and losing 48. A total of 172 games were played, of which 91 were wins and 81 losses.

The 1947-48 team had an 0-11 record on the road while the 1948-49 club had a 2-16 mark off the home court. The 1949-50 quint won three and lost nine and last year the Spas' away-from-home record was 2-10.

None of the teams of the past five years ever won two in a row on the road. That's why the present Spas team is deserving of a few bouquets for its winning performances in Morgantown and Clarksburg.

Allegany High School will not sponsor a girls' basketball team this season and we understand that some of the grads, incensed by the action, are planning to circulate a petition in an effort to persuade school officials to change their plans.

Could it be another one of those petitions such as the one that was being circulated last fall to remove a certain out-of-town high school grid coach who was accused of cussing his players too freely? The instigators got cold feet on that one.

'Tis said that Allegany is giving up interscholastic basketball in favor of an intramural program.

Beall, Central, Bruce, Ursuline and Fort Hill are sponsoring sextets this season. It does seem kind of odd with Allegany listed "among the missing."

Remember Dick Wehr, star pivot man of the Wheeling Blues of the All-American Basketball League of several years ago?

Dick is now coach of West Liberty College which has bagged four straight in the West Virginia Inter-Collegiate Conference, including a 77-59 decision over Potomac State at Keyser last Saturday.

Among the Christmas cards we've received is one from Nick Shinkoff, scout of the New York Giants, who comes through this section every summer looking for baseball ivory.

The last time we saw Nick was in the press box at Fairgo during the Cumberland Fair Association race meeting in July.

At that time the Dodgers were leading the Giants by 9½ games (July 28) and Nick told me the Giants would win the pennant.

"I wouldn't be surprised if this race goes right down to the final day of the season, Shinkoff declared, "but the Giants will finish on top."

That's what happened.

And we were sitting in the left field stands at the Polo Grounds the afternoon Bobby Thomson belted the homer that beat the Dodgers and won the pennant for the Giants.

• — • — • •

How's this for coincidence?

At the same time we received Nick Shinkoff's Yule greetings came a copy of the Staten Island Advance telling about the Bobby Thomson celebration there on December 6. The newspaper was sent by John Somma, one-time Ridgeley citizen who now resides on Staten Island, N. Y.

Somma attended the testimonial affair for the New York Giants' slugger.

The Optimist Club will honor its Hot Stove League baseball team tonight at 6:15 at Central YMCA during the club's annual Christmas dinner and party.

Norman Ward, chairman of the boy's committee of the organization, is in charge of arrangements and the 15 members of the team will be presented individual awards on behalf of the club.

Earl M. Nonnenmann and Bill Underdonk were co-managers of the Optimist Club team in the junior boys' circuit and the team finished fourth in the circuit with a 12-9 record.

VMI Basketeers Lose To Maryland, 57-39

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 18 (AP) — Virginia Military Institute's basketball team tried to go along with the University of Maryland in its "control" game here tonight, but the Terps made good 21 of 43 shots to defeat the Keydets 57-39.

Winless VMI sank only 11 of 65 tries from the floor and made good only 17 of 36 tried from the free throw line in absorbing its fifth straight loss of the season and its fourth in conference competition.

Brawley's 13 points topped scorers of both teams.

Tatum Says "No"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Athletic Director Jim Tatum tonight rejected a persistent report that Maryland would bolt the Southern Conference because of the post-season bowl controversy.

Lt. Col. Harry E. Flook, now general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association, was the executive officer of the outfit in which Shinkoff served during the Second World War.

Jule Rivlin, who has retired from basketball about a half dozen times, is back in the Wheeling Blues' lineup.

Wheeling whipped "Red" Klotz's Philadelphia Sphas Sunday at Bellaire, Ohio, by the score of 76-66.

Sentinels Host To Moorefield Quint Tonight

Storm Keeps Teams Idle; LaSalle Plays At Altoona Friday

Moorefield High School's basketeers will come here tonight to play Fort Hill's Sentinels on the Fort Hill court at 8 o'clock, weather permitting, Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh announced last night.

Yesterday's snowstorm resulted in postponement of the game originally set for last night.

Other postponement's last night included the LaSalle-Bruce game in Westernport and the Somerset-Allegany game at Campobello. No new dates for these games were announced.

Ridgeley High's engagement with Elk Garden at the latter place also was postponed.

LaSalle's next game is Friday night with Altoona Catholic High School at Altoona, Pa., while Allegany battles the Alumni December 26. Ridgeley plays Fort Hill on the Sentinels' court Friday night.

Other games "snowed out" included:

West Virginia Deaf at Fort Ashby.
Wardensville at Berkley Springs.
Beall at Piedmont.
Barton at Hyndman.
Thomas at Bayard.
Kitzmiller at Oakland.
Ursuline at Fort Hill (girls).

In addition to the Fort Hill-Moorefield tilt, Parsons is slated to play Coalton High School tonight on the Parson's court.

Workman Gets West Virginia Award 2nd Time

Voted Outstanding Amateur Athlete

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 18 (AP) — West Virginia University's record-breaking Mark Workman for the second time in his career has been named West Virginia's outstanding amateur athlete.

The West Virginia Sports Writers Association, in its 18th annual poll, selected the Charleston student for the 1951 honors. Workman received the award in 1948 when he was a senior at Charleston High School. He now plays center on the WVU basketball squad.

In two varsity seasons at WVU, Workman already has chalked up university records for the most points in a single season (705); most field goals of a season (273), and most free throws in a single season (159).

The only remaining individual record at West Virginia fell to Workman Dec. 3 when he broke the all-time total for scoring. At present, his mark is 1,094 points for two years plus, shattering Fred Schaus' old record of 1,009 tallies.

Terra Alta Stops Davis

Wildcats Defeated By 54-48 Score

DAVIS, W. Va., Dec. 18—A fast-stepping Terra Alta quint stopped Davis High's Wildcats' three-game winning streak with a thrilling 54-48 victory here tonight in Davis' first home game of the season.

The lead see-sawed back and forth before Terra Alta was able to pull away in the final period. Davis held a 17-16 lead at the close of the first stanza but Terra Alta led 30-28 and 43-41 in the next two periods.

Spas To Open At Home Against Clarksburg Quint Sunday

Cumberland Seeks Third Straight Win

Holds 69-57 Victory Over Tiremen; Game To Start At 8:30

The Cumberland Spas, victorious in their first two encounters on the road, will host the Clarksburg, W. Va., Tiremen in their first home engagement Sunday at 8:30 p. m. on SS. Peter and Paul court, Roger Day, player-manager of the Spas announced last night.

Roger Day

The visit of the Tiremen here will be a return tussle for the two teams as the Spas defeated the Clarksburg quint last Sunday in West Virginia, 69-57. The locals also hold a decision over Johnson Coals of Morgantown, W. Va., 66-58.

Sponsored By Tire Company

The Clarksburg team is composed of several top-notch college stars and professionals and were ahead of the Spas most of the way in their initial meeting before bowing to the sharp-shooting Cumberland aggregation. George Geatz and Bob Pence starred with 23 and 17 points respectively for the Spas and newcomers Bob Lookabaugh and Jack Stotler played excellent floor games against the Tiremen.

The Tiremen, sponsored by the B. F. Goodrich Company of Clarksburg, are headed by Jack Hines, who is player-coach of the quintet for the fourth season. Other members of the squad are Clyde "Hard Times" Green, ex-West Virginia University and Wheeling Blues ace; Ed Reed of Princeton; Bob Hardman, former Glenville College flash; Benny Swiger from Salem College; Joe Pelaez, of Alderson-Broaddus College; Hank Ellis, coach at West Virginia Wesleyan and former player for the professional Wheeling Blues; Cottrell Schmidle of Fairmont State and Fred Morecraft.

Preliminary At 7 O'clock

Morecraft and Hines both play for the Johnson Coals also. Morecraft was the leading scorer for the Coals when the Morgantown five lost to the Spas earlier this year.

Arrangements for the game were completed by Day and Frank Carpenter of Clarksburg. A preliminary contest will be scheduled at 7 p. m.

The Spas also hope to book the Broadway Clowns, noted road team, for Sunday, December 30, Day said, on the SS. Peter and Paul court.

VMI Basketeers Lose To Maryland, 57-39

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 18 (AP) — Virginia Military Institute's basketball team tried to go along with the University of Maryland in its "control" game here tonight, but the Terps made good 21 of 43 shots to defeat the Keydets 57-39.

Winless VMI sank only 11 of 65 tries from the floor and made good only 17 of 36 tried from the free throw line in absorbing its fifth straight loss of the season and its fourth in conference competition.

Brawley's 13 points topped scorers of both teams.

Tatum Says "No"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18 (AP) — Athletic Director Jim Tatum tonight rejected a persistent report that Maryland would bolt the Southern Conference because of the post-season bowl controversy.

Lt. Col. Harry E. Flook, now general manager of the Cumberland Fair Association, was the executive officer of the outfit in which Shinkoff served during the Second World War.

Henry "Dutch" Dehnert's Toledo (Ohio) Mercurys walloped the Cabineers in Hagerstown Sunday by the score of 106 to 94. Johnny Payak, former Bowling Green University player, scored 15 goals and 34 points for the Ohioans.

• — • — •

Jule Rivlin, who has retired from basketball about a half dozen times, is back in the Wheeling Blues' lineup.

Wheeling whipped "Red" Klotz's Philadelphia Sphas Sunday at Bellaire, Ohio, by the score of 76-66.

Eddie Sterling collected 24 points for the Blues, including 10 foul goals in 11 tries. Tonkovich, Britt, Herman and Mohan also appeared in the Wheeling lineup.

NEW COACH — Murray Warmath, assistant coach at the U. S. Military Academy, is shown at West Point, N. Y., where word was received that he has accepted the post of head grid coach at Mississippi State. Warmath, graduate of Tennessee, served under Bob Neyland at his alma mater for five years and also was an assistant at Mississippi State for three years.

Legion Wins Three

Frostburg American Legion defeated Pocahontas 3-0 last night in a Women's National Shuffleboard League match. G. Geis paced the winners with 23 points while Edith Smith had 15 for the losers.

Sentinels Host To Moorefield Quint Tonight

Storm Keeps Teams Idle; LaSalle Plays At Altoona Friday

Moorefield High School's basketeers will come here tonight to play Fort Hill's Sentinels on the Fort Hill court at 8 o'clock, weather permitting, Coach John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh announced last night.

Yesterday's snowstorm resulted in postponement of the game originally set for last night.

Other postponement's last night included the LaSalle-Bruce game in Westernport and the Somerset-Allegany game at Campobello. No new dates for these games were announced.

Ridgeley High's engagement with Elk Garden at the latter place also was postponed.

LaSalle's next game is Friday night with Altoona Catholic High School at Altoona, Pa., while Allegany battles the Alumni December 26. Ridgeley plays Fort Hill on the Sentinels' court Friday night.

Other games "snowed out" included:

West Virginia Deaf at Fort Ashby.
Wardensville at Berkley Springs.
Beall at Piedmont.
Barton at Hyndman.
Thomas at Bayard.
Kitzmiller at Oakland.
Ursuline at Fort Hill (girls).

In addition to the Fort Hill-Moorefield tilt, Parsons is slated to play Coalton High School tonight on the Parson's court.

Workman Gets West Virginia Award 2nd Time

Voted Outstanding Amateur Athlete

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Dec. 18 (AP) — West Virginia University's record-breaking Mark Workman for the second time in his career has been named West Virginia's outstanding amateur athlete.

The West Virginia Sports Writers Association, in its 18th annual poll, selected the Charleston student for the 1951 honors. Workman received the award in 1948 when he was a senior at Charleston High School. He now plays center on the WVU basketball squad.

In two varsity seasons at WVU, Workman already has chalked up university records for the most points in a single season (705); most field goals of a season (273), and most free throws in a single season (159).

The only remaining individual record at West Virginia fell to Workman Dec. 3 when he broke the all-time total for scoring. At present, his mark is 1,094 points for two years plus, shattering Fred Schaus' old record of 1,009 tallies.

Terra Alta Stops Davis

Wildcats Defeated By 54-48 Score

DAVIS, W. Va., Dec. 18—A fast-stepping Terra Alta quint stopped Davis High's Wildcats' three-game winning streak with a thrilling 54-48 victory here tonight in Davis' first home game of the season.

The lead see-sawed back and forth before Terra Alta was able to pull away in the final period. Davis held a 17-16 lead at the close of the first stanza but Terra Alta led 30-28 and 43-41 in the next two periods.

Everley and Groves paced the winners with 19 and 12 points respectively while Raese collected 24 for Davis. The lineups:

Nichols Cops Earned Run Title In NL

Chet Is Youngest To Win With 2.88

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Chet Nichols, 20-year-old Boston Braves southpaw, today became the youngest pitcher ever to win the National League earned run title.

CHET NICHOLS
Braves

The poised youngster from Pawtucket, R. I., completing his third year of pro ball, allowed 50 earned runs in 156 innings for an average of 2.88 per nine-inning game. Although he ranked ninth on a won - and - lost basis with an 11-8 record, he finished with a rush to win seven of his last 11 starts.

Not since Jim Turner, also a Brave, led in earned runs in 1937 had a first year man been the most effective pitcher in the league. And Turner, now a New York Yankee coach, was 33 when he broke into the big league from Indianapolis.

Despite a painful blister on his curve ball finger, Nichols took the starch out of Brooklyn by beating Preather Roe, 4-3, in a vital Sept. 27 game. The loss cost the Preacher a chance to beat Freddy Fitzsimmons' record won-lost percentage of .889 in 1940. Roe wound up with a 22-3 mark for .880, best in the league.

Nichols' feat of leading the pitchers was surprising because he performed steadily with a fourth-place club and was overlooked in the general excitement about New York's Sal Maglie and Larry Jansen and the Dodgers' Roe.

Maglie Is Runner-Up

Maglie, won-and-lost leader in 1950, finished second to Nichols with a 2.93 earned run average. Maglie was second in the earned run averages last year behind Jim Hearn of the Giants, who was way down the list in 16th place with 3.63 this year.

Warren Spahn of the Braves, third in earned run average with 2.98, pitched the most complete games 26, most shutouts 7, gave the most walks 109 and tied with Brooklyn's Don Newcombe for most strikeouts, 164. Spahn won the strikeout title in 1949 and 1950.

Back of Nichols, Maglie and Spahn there was a three way tie for fourth place at 3.03 among Roe, Jansen and Robin Roberts of the Phils. Al Brazle of St. Louis and Vern Bickford of Boston followed.

Maglie and Jansen, bulwarks of the pennant-winning Giants, tied for most victories with 23 each. Ken Raffensberger and Willard Ramsdell of Cincinnati and Paul Minner of Chicago tied for most defeats with 17 each.

Seven Win 20 Games

There were seven 20-game winners in the league led by Maglie (23-6) and Jansen (23-11). Others were Roe (22-3), Spahn (22-14), Roberts (21-15), Newcombe (20-9) and Murry Dickson (20-16) of the seventh place Pittsburgh Pirates. It was the largest 20-game delegation since 1923.

Dickson also was tagged with the league lead for allowing most hits, 294, most runs, 151, and most earned runs, 129. Russ Meyer of the Phils and Ramsdell each threw nine wild pitches, tops in the league. Frank Hiller of Chicago and Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati each hit nine batsmen.

Roberts started the most games, 39, and worked most innings, 315.

The busiest workman was Ted Wilks of St. Louis and Pittsburgh who appeared in 65 games, nine short of the all-time record set by the Phils' Jim Konstanty in 1950. Although Konstanty slumped badly off his fine '50 season, he did salvage one distinction by finishing the most games, 45.

Cliff Chambers of Pittsburgh, later traded to St. Louis, pitched the only no-hit, no-run game of the National Season May 6 against Boston. There were eight one-hitters.

As a staff the Giants were most effective with a combined earned run average of 3.48.

Tony Zale's Wife Is Given Divorce

CROWN POINT, Ind., Dec. 18 (AP)—The wife of Tony Zale, former world's middleweight boxing champion, was granted a divorce in Lake County Circuit Court yesterday.

She charged cruelty in her suit. She was awarded custody of their two children, Mary Aline, 8, and Theresa Louisa, 6. Zale was ordered to pay Mrs. Zale $108 monthly. Their property will be divided equally.

Cincinnati Adds Four And Drops Two Farms

CINCINNATI, Dec. 18 (AP) — Four new links have been added to the Cincinnati Reds farm chain and two old ones have been dropped, the ball club announced today.

The Reds reported that working agreements have been signed with these four minor league clubs for the first time: Burlington, Iowa, of the Class B Three-Eye League; Gadsden, Ala. of the Class D Georgia-Alabama loop; Lawton, Okla. of the Class D Sooner State League; and Salisbury, Md. of the Class B Interstate League.

Cincinnati has dropped Charleston, W. Va. of the Class A Central League, which it owned outright, and Welch, W. Va. of the Class D Appalachian League, which had a working agreement with the Reds.

Mike Blazo will take over the reins at Salisbury.

Weinheimer Succumbs

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—John J. (Jack) Weinheimer, 55, business manager of athletics at New York University, died today of a heart attack.

Weinheimer, who entered NYU in 1916, had been connected with the college since 1922. He was head football coach in 1944 and 1945.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 18 (AP)—Chet Nichols, youthful Boston Braves southpaw pitcher who led the National League in earned runs last season, was selected as Rhode Island' athlete of the year. Nichols is a resident of Pawtucket, R. I.

Dressen Signs Blank Contract

Eager To Return As Manager Of Dodgers

BROOKLYN, Dec. 18 (AP)—Chuck Dressen returned a signed blank contract to the Brooklyn Dodgers today to show how eager he is to tackle the job of managing the club in 1952.

Dressen is willing to let President Walter O'Malley and vice-president E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi fill in the salary terms when they get ready.

O'Malley announced Dressen's rehiring at a press conference on Nov. 5 after Jackie Robinson had let the cat out of the bag in a California interview.

When the salary is written into the contract it probably will be about $30,000 on a one-year basis. Dressen was hired for one year last winter as successor to Burt Shotton.

In the letter to Bavasi, Dressen wrote:

"I am glad to return to Brooklyn—the best club in our league."

Dressen's "best club in our league" blew a 13½ game lead last fall and finished second to the New York Giants after a three-game tie playoff. The Dodgers and Dressen have spent most of their time since trying to explain what happened. Nobody is sure yet.

Of more concern to the Dodgers is the military status of Don Newcombe, still pending. If Newcombe goes into service, the Brooks must deal for a pitcher. If he stays they might get home free with what they have.

Efforts by Dressen and Bavasi to land Pitcher Howie Fox from Cincinnati collapsed at Columbus. Later the Reds traded Fox to the Phillies.

New York Bets Up 12 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Wagering at New York's running tracks and revenue to the state both increased by 12 per cent this year compared with 1950, the State Racing Commission disclosed today in its anual report which attributed the rise to the crackdown on bookmakers.

Attendance for the 197 New York racing days was up 3.5 per cent.

The state collected $22,853,393 this year compared with $20,451,236 in 1950. A total of $345,292,092 was wagered compared with $308,501,464 in 1950. Attendance was up from 4,240,184 last year to 4,386,315 in 1951.

Gary Heads Golfers

BALTIMORE, Dec. 18 (AP)—Emmett Gary of Hillendale is to become president of the Maryland State Golf Association after serving 21 years as secretary.

Vejar And Fiore Fight In Garden

Welters Meet Tonight In Ten-Round Contest

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Chico Vejar, promising young welterweight from Stamford, Conn., meets Carmine Fiore of Brooklyn tomorrow night at St. Nicholas Arena in the mid-week television network (CBS) offering.

The 20-year-old Vejar is in line for a Madison Square Garden date with a top ranking welter if he gets past the ex-shoeshine boy from Brooklyn's Greenpoint section in the 10-rounder at 10:00 p. m. (EST).

Vejar's brilliant record shows only one loss in 36 pro starts since he started commuting from his Stamford home to a downtown gym. Now a freshman at New York University, Chico is eager to push into the top ranks.

Fiore, 21-year-old slugger, is an aggressive fighter. His record for 48 fights is 35-9-4.

Blaik Not Seeking Another Coach Job

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18 (AP)—Coach Earl (Red) Blaik of the U. S. Military Academy, said today he's not interested in any other coaching job except the position he holds at Army.

BROOKLYN, Dec. 18 (AP)—Chuck Dressen returned a signed blank contract to the Brooklyn Dodgers today to show how eager he is to tackle the job of managing the club in 1952.

Dressen is willing to let President Walter O'Malley and vice-president E. J. (Buzzy) Bavasi fill in the salary terms when they get ready.

O'Malley announced Dressen's rehiring at a press conference on Nov. 5 after Jackie Robinson had let the cat out of the bag in a California interview.

When the salary is written into the contract it probably will be about $30,000 on a one-year basis. Dressen was hired for one year last winter as successor to Burt Shotton.

In the letter to Bavasi, Dressen wrote:

"I am glad to return to Brooklyn—the best club in our league."

Dressen's "best club in our league" blew a 13½ game lead last fall and finished second to the New York Giants after a three-game tie playoff. The Dodgers and Dressen have spent most of their time since trying to explain what happened. Nobody is sure yet.

Of more concern to the Dodgers is the military status of Don Newcombe, still pending. If Newcombe goes into service, the Brooks must deal for a pitcher. If he stays they might get home free with what they have.

Efforts by Dressen and Bavasi to land Pitcher Howie Fox from Cincinnati collapsed at Columbus. Later the Reds traded Fox to the Phillies.

New York Bets Up 12 Per Cent

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Wagering at New York's running tracks and revenue to the state both increased by 12 per cent this year compared with 1950, the State Racing Commission disclosed today in its anual report which attributed the rise to the crackdown on bookmakers.

Attendance for the 197 New York racing days was up 3.5 per cent.

The state collected $22,853,393 this year compared with $20,451,236 in 1950. A total of $345,292,092 was wagered compared with $308,501,464 in 1950. Attendance was up from 4,240,184 last year to 4,386,315 in 1951.

Joe Smolen, ABC registrar, voiced the opinion and indicated also that the entry list will set a new record.

The present record for prize money is $410,958, awarded after the 1948 tournament in Detroit.

Team entries hit the 7,003 figure today, with Feb. 1 the closing date for the books.

Vejar And Fiore Fight In Garden

Welters Meet Tonight In Ten-Round Contest

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Chico Vejar, promising young welterweight from Stamford, Conn., meets Carmine Fiore of Brooklyn tomorrow night at St. Nicholas Arena in the mid-week television network (CBS) offering.

The 20-year-old Vejar is in line for a Madison Square Garden date with a top ranking welter if he gets past the ex-shoeshine boy from Brooklyn's Greenpoint section in the 10-rounder at 10:00 p. m. (EST).

Vejar's brilliant record shows only one loss in 36 pro starts since he started commuting from his Stamford home to a downtown gym. Now a freshman at New York University, Chico is eager to push into the top ranks.

Fiore, 21-year-old slugger, is an aggressive fighter. His record for 48 fights is 35-9-4.

Blaik Not Seeking Another Coach Job

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18 (AP)—Coach Earl (Red) Blaik of the U. S. Military Academy, said today he's not interested in any other coaching job except the position he holds at Army.

"I'm not shopping around for a coaching job and I'm not interested," he said.

Blaik and his wife arrived today to watch their son, Bob, play quarterback for the North team in the Shrine North-South all-star college football game in the Orange Bowl Christmas night.

Nichols Cops Earned Run Title In NL

Chet Is Youngest To Win With 2.88

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Chet Nichols, 20-year-old Boston Braves southpaw, today became the youngest pitcher ever to win the National League earned run title.

CHET NICHOLS
Braves

The poised youngster from Pawtucket, R. I., completing his third year of pro ball, allowed 50 earned runs in 156 innings for an average of 2.88 per nine-inning game. Although he ranked ninth on a won - and - lost basis with an 11-8 record, he finished with a rush to win seven of his last 11 starts.

Not since Jim Turner, also a Brave, led in earned runs in 1937 had a first year man been the most effective pitcher in the league. And Turner, now a New York Yankee coach, was 33 when he broke into the big league from Indianapolis.

Despite a painful blister on his curve ball finger, Nichols took the starch out of Brooklyn by beating Preather Roe, 4-3, in a vital Sept. 27 game. The loss cost the Preacher a chance to beat Freddy Fitzsimmons' record won-lost percentage of .889 in 1940. Roe wound up with a 22-3 mark for .880, best in the league.

Nichols' feat of leading the pitchers was surprising because he performed steadily with a fourth-place club and was overlooked in the general excitement about New York's Sal Maglie and Larry Jansen and the Dodgers' Roe.

Maglie Is Runner-Up

Maglie, won-and-lost leader in 1950, finished second to Nichols with a 2.93 earned run average. Maglie was second in the earned run averages last year behind Jim Hearn of the Giants, who was way down the list in 16th place with 3.63 this year.

Warren Spahn of the Braves, third in earned run average with 2.98, pitched the most complete games 26, most shutouts 7, gave the most walks 109 and tied with Brooklyn's Don Newcombe for most strikeouts, 164. Spahn won the strikeout title in 1949 and 1950.

Back of Nichols, Maglie and Spahn there was a three way tie for fourth place at 3.03 among Roe, Jansen and Robin Roberts of the Phils. Al Brazle of St. Louis and Vern Bickford of Boston followed.

Maglie and Jansen, bulwarks of the pennant-winning Giants, tied for most victories with 23 each. Ken Raffensberger and Willard Ramsdell of Cincinnati and Paul Minner of Chicago tied for most defeats with 17 each.

Seven Win 20 Games

There were seven 20-game winners in the league led by Maglie (23-6) and Jansen (23-11). Others were Roe (22-3), Spahn (22-14), Roberts (21-15), Newcombe (20-9) and Murry Dickson (20-16) of the seventh place Pittsburgh Pirates. It was the largest 20-game delegation since 1923.

Dickson also was tagged with the league lead for allowing most hits, 294, most runs, 151, and most earned runs, 129. Russ Meyer of the Phils and Ramsdell each threw nine wild pitches, tops in the league. Frank Hiller of Chicago and Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati each hit nine batsmen.

Roberts started the most games, 39, and worked most innings, 315.

The busiest workman was Ted Wilks of St. Louis and Pittsburgh who appeared in 65 games, nine short of the all-time record set by the Phils' Jim Konstanty in 1950. Although Konstanty slumped badly off his fine '50 season, he did salvage one distinction by finishing the most games, 45.

Cliff Chambers of Pittsburgh, later traded to St. Louis, pitched the only no-hit, no-run game of the National Season May 6 against Boston. There were eight one-hitters.

As a staff the Giants were most effective with a combined earned run average of 3.48.

Tony Zale's Wife Is Given Divorce

Cincinnati Adds Four And Drops Two Farms

CINCINNATI, Dec. 18 (AP) — Four new links have been added to the Cincinnati Reds farm chain and two old ones have been dropped, the ball club announced today.

The Reds reported that working agreements have been signed with these four minor league clubs for the first time: Burlington, Iowa, of the Class B Three-Eye League; Gadsden, Ala. of the Class D Georgia-Alabama loop; Lawton, Okla. of the Class D Sooner State League; and Salisbury, Md. of the Class B Interstate League.

Cincinnati has dropped Charleston, W. Va. of the Class A Central League, which it owned outright, and Welch, W. Va. of the Class D Appalachian League, which had a working agreement with the Reds.

Mike Blazo will take over the reins at Salisbury.

Weinheimer Succumbs

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—John J. (Jack) Weinheimer, 55, business manager of athletics at New York University, died today of a heart attack.

Weinheimer, who entered NYU in 1916, had been connected with the college since 1922. He was head football coach in 1944 and 1945.

Nichols Is Best

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 18 (AP)—Chet Nichols, youthful Boston Braves southpaw pitcher who led the National League in earned runs last season, was selected as Rhode Island' athlete of the year. Nichols is a resident of Pawtucket, R. I.

St. John's Named Top Cage Team

Ballots Cast Before Kentucky Massacre

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—The No. 1 jinx has caught up with St. John's of Brooklyn.

A week ago, Kentucky was picked as the top college basketball team in the country by sportswriters and sportscasters in the Associated Press poll. Minnesota then lowered the boom on Kentucky, 61-57.

Taking that defeat into consideration along with St. John's fine victory string, the balloteers boosted the Redmen and selected them first with Kentucky second.

The votes had just about been counted last night when rebounding Kentucky massacred the Redmen, 81-40, in Lexington, Ky. It was the 100th consecutive home victory for the Wildcats.

St. Louis, another previously undefeated team, had been picked for fourth place. So what happened? Wisconsin edged the Billikins, 55-54. Wisconsin wasn't even listed in the first 20. There'll be some changes made next week, and probably right through the year. It looks like that kind of a season.

St. John's received 36 first place votes of the 103 cast and 837 points on a basis of ten points for first, nine for second, eight for third and so on. Kentucky was named first on 15 ballots and accumulated 687 points.

The top 10, with first-place votes in parentheses:

KID GAVILAN PULLS A CLOSE ONE FROM THE FIRE

SPORTS GRILL

by Pat Robinson

International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (INS)—All nations expect that if Russia does show up for the Olympic Games in Finland next summer, the Soviets will be loaded for bear.

Every other nation will have to take it for granted that all the Russian athletes will be amateurs in the strictest sense of the word although nobody will know for sure because the iron curtain blacks out all in sports as in everything else.

For all we know to the contrary, the Russians may have been training and paying athletes on a full-time basis to assure themselves a good showing in the Olympics.

They are sure to make a good showing at any rate because of a preponderance of numbers and the fact they are only a short distance away.

Reminds us of the time a few years ago when Minnesota could finish only fourth in a Big Ten track meet but later when the nationals were held, Minnesota won because the meet was staged in Minneapolis. The Gophers had everybody and his brother in there earning points or fractions of points.

There should be a universal code of amateurism with the word strictly defined.

If you think we already have such a code you are merely kidding yourself. The word amateur has more stretch than a chorus girl's girdle. It is defined differently in different countries and even in our own country it has a different meaning between sports.

For instance, amateur golfers may ply aagainst pros in an open tournament without hurting their amateur status but tennis looks with horror on such a procedure.

Up in Canada it is possible for a sportsman to play in the professional ranks for years, then quit and resume his amateur standing. That is as if Joe DiMaggio, having quit professional baseball, were to be allowed to compete in an amateur league.

The British Lawn Tennis Association recently made what we consider a smart move when they passed a rule permitting a professional in one sport to play as an amateur in another.

We hvea advocated such a move for many years. For instance, using DiMaggio again as an example, we can see no reason why he shouldn't have been permitted to play amateur tennis, although he was a professional ball player.

The fact that he was a great ball player wouldn't mean that he had any advantage over anybody if he plyed amateur tennis. Nor would Joe Louis, a professional fighter, have any advantage if he cared to compete in a track and field meet as an amateur.

In other words, the fact that a man earns his living as a pro in one sport should not stop him from competing as an amateur in another.

If the amateurs were smart, they would adopt such a rule. Imagine what it would mean to an amateur gate to have, say, Stan Musial, Jack Dempsey, Joe Louis and Ted Williams competing in an amateur tennis tournament.

Bowl Bound Terps Hold Indoor Drill

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Dec. 18 (AP)—Maryland's bowl-bound Terrapins were forced to work out again today indoors for the New Year's Day game with Tennessee in New Orleans.

Coach Jim Tatum has about given up hope he'll get his football squad outside for some heavy work before they leave Thursday night for the Christmas holiday.

Today a freezing rain pelted the practice field, already under several inches of snow.

The undefeated Terps leave for Biloxi, Miss., the day after Christmas, where they will remain until the march into the Sugar Bowl.

Uncashed Tickets At N. Y. Tracks Worth $137,561

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (INS)—Excited or forgetful bettors failed to cash in an estimated $137,561 worth of winning pari-mutuel tickets in 1951 at New York race tracks.

The state racing commission's annual report said tonight this sum represented 40 cents out of every $1,000 wagered.

The report placed the total value of uncashed tickets since pari-mutuel betting was legalized in 1940 at $1,579,178. Approximately all such unclaimed winnings go in to the general fund of the state treasury.

Ballots Cast Before Kentucky Massacre

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—The No. 1 jinx has caught up with St. John's of Brooklyn.

A week ago, Kentucky was picked as the top college basketball team in the country by sportswriters and sportscasters in the Associated Press poll. Minnesota then lowered the boom on Kentucky, 61-57.

Taking that defeat into consideration along with St. John's fine victory string, the balloteers boosted the Redmen and selected them first with Kentucky second.

The votes had just about been counted last night when rebounding Kentucky massacred the Redmen, 81-40, in Lexington, Ky. It was the 100th consecutive home victory for the Wildcats.

St. Louis, another previously undefeated team, had been picked for fourth place. So what happened? Wisconsin edged the Billikins, 55-54. Wisconsin wasn't even listed in the first 20. There'll be some changes made next week, and probably right through the year. It looks like that kind of a season.

St. John's received 36 first place votes of the 103 cast and 837 points on a basis of ten points for first, nine for second, eight for third and so on. Kentucky was named first on 15 ballots and accumulated 687 points.

The top 10, with first-place votes in parentheses:

	Points
1. St. John's (36)	837

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (INS)—All nations expect that if Russia does show up for the Olympic Games in Finland next summer, the Soviets will be loaded for bear.

Every other nation will have to take it for granted that all the Russian athletes will be amateurs in the strictest sense of the word although nobody will know for sure because the iron curtain blacks out all in sports as in everything else.

For all we know to the contrary, the Russians may have been training and paying athletes on a full-time basis to assure themselves a good showing in the Olympics.

They are sure to make a good showing at any rate because of a preponderance of numbers and the fact they are only a short distance away.

Reminds us of the time a few years ago when Minnesota could finish only fourth in a Big Ten track meet but later when the nationals were held, Minnesota won because the meet was staged in Minneapolis. The Gophers had everybody and his brother in there earning points or fractions of points.

There should be a universal code of amateurism with the word strictly defined.

If you think we already have such a code you are merely kidding yourself. The word amateur has more stretch than a chorus girl's girdle. It is defined differently in different countries and even in our own country it has a different meaning between sports.

For instance, amateur golfers may ply aagainst pros in an open tournament without hurting their amateur status but tennis looks with horror on such a procedure.

Up in Canada it is possible for a sportsman to play in the professional ranks for years, then quit and resume his amateur standing. That is as if Joe DiMaggio, having quit professional baseball, were to be allowed to compete in an amateur league.

The British Lawn Tennis Association recently made what we consider a smart move when they passed a rule permitting a professional in one sport to play as an amateur in another.

We hvea advocated such a move for many years. For instance, using DiMaggio again as an example, we can see no reason why he shouldn't have been permitted to play amateur tennis, although he was a professional ball player.

The fact that he was a great ball player wouldn't mean that he had any advantage over anybody if he plyed amateur tennis. Nor would Joe Louis, a professional fighter, have any advantage if he cared to compete in a track and field meet as an amateur.

The New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs are tied for the honor of capturing the most pennants in the National League. Both have won 16.

The New York Yankees are the only team to play through a World Series without committing an error. The 1937 Yanks played perfectly in beating the Giants four out of five games.

Although Tulane University is nicknamed "The Green Wave", the official colors of the school are olive green and Columbia blue.

City Refuses To Take Action On Noise Issue

Piedmont Revises Police Schedule

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Noel Obenshain appeared again before Mayor Allan Hill and the City Council protesting the unnecessary blowing of horns of diesel engines of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

A motion made by Councilman Eugene W. Paxton that the city officials go on record at this time that no letter be written to the railroad relative to any direction o them how they should operate their trains while passing through the corporate limits of Piedmont, The motion was seconded by Councilman Mervin High and passed by the council.

The one dissenting vote was made by Councilman Garland Cheshire, who later stated he opposed the order since in some future time the council might feel it necessary to communicate with the railroad relative to it.

Obenshain promised the council he would appear before them again at the next meeting.

Harry F. Smith, Front Street, Westernport, a former resident of Piedmont, complained also. He said that not all engineers blow whistles unnecessarily.

The Mayor and Council said they feel the majority of the people are not concerned about the issue.

A revised schedule of hours for police to work was agreed on by city officials. The plan is effective December 30.

It was decided to place a flicker light on the top of the city building. The light will flicker when a call is made to the city police until they answer the telephone and by placing the proposed light in that position, the police may see it from all sections of the town.

It was decided that councilmen will solicit business places for donations to help defray expenses for colored Christmas lights during the Christmas holiday season.

4-H Club Has Yule Meeting

LONACONING—The Lonaconing Senior 4-H club held a Christmas meeting at the home of Miss Patsy Murphy, Charlestown Street.

A candlelight service was held to install the new club officers. They were Shirley Schaidt, president; Khrista McKenzie, vice president; Helen Crable, secretary, and Mary Elizabeth Braskey, treasurer.

Plans were made for a formal dance to be held at the V. F. W. Thursday at 8 p. m. Each member may bring another couple.

Gifts were exchanged and carols were sung. The next meeting will be held at the Red Cross room, Main Street.

Goodwill Club Holds Dinner

FROSTBURG — The Goodwill Club of Shaft Methodist Church recently held a turkey dinner at the Moon dining room, Cumberland.

Carol singing was a feature of the evening. The program also included a reading, "The Christmas Story," by Mrs. Elizabeth Layman and other selections by Mrs. Arliss Grimes, Mrs. Rose Bean, Mrs. Mildred Landefelt, Mrs. Clarence Miller; a vocal solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Rev. Louis Emerick, the playing of games and a jingle party.

Attending were Rev. and Mrs. Louis Emerick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevanus, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Layman, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Landefelt, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George Tennant, Mrs. Rose Bean, Mrs. Dorothy Brode, Mrs. Jean Kirkwood, Mrs. Bessie McKenzie, Mrs. Mary Shirey, Mrs. Pearl Monahan, Mrs. Arliss Grimes, Mrs. Hazel Tennant, Miss Alice Stevanus and Miss Mildred Stevanus.

The ceremony was performed December 10, in the rectory of the Nativity Church, 6000 Georgia Avenue, N. W. Washington, D. C., with Rev. Walter Norris, officiating.

Miss Ruby Bonner, cousin of the bride of Washington, D. C. was maid of honor and the brides' only attendant. Charles W. Crause, Atlanta, Georgia, served as best man.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McKnew, 236 Longfellow Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Palmer is a graduate of Bruce High School, Westernport, Md. class of 1948 and is employed by the U. S. Government at Washington, D. C.

Palmer is a graduate of Buffalo High School, class of 1947 and attended college a year before joining the navy.

The couple left for a wedding trip to New York after which she will return to Washington, D. C. and he will report for duty with the navy at Norfolk, Va.

City Is Praised For Safety Work

WESTERNPORT — A communication from Lynn Walker, president of the Western Maryland Safety Council, was read at the meeting of Mayor George P. Kight and City Commissioners Monday.

The letter expressed appreciation for the city's assistance in making the Allegany County third annual safety week a success.

Mayor Kight, reported that Harry F. Smith had complained about unnecessary blowing of whistles of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

He also stated Smith complained that when employes cleaned the snow from their Washington Street crossing, some was left where people walk. It was stated they thought the condition could be remedied.

Keyser PO Has Record Rush

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Keyser Post Office broke all mail handling records Monday, when 36,000 pieces of first class mail were cancelled in addition to 5,000 to 6,000 parcels.

On Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. the working force at the Keyser office was caught up with the holiday rush, but Postmaster Thomas F. Ward said that 'anything can happen" from now on, because of the snow.

He said there have been some delays in distributing mail due to snow, but that snow is also handicapping persons who may have packages and first class mail to be sent through the local office.

In referring to the volume of mail handled in the local office Monday, Ward said those figures do not include incoming mail or mail handled in the local office from Petersburg and Maysville. On Monday a night shift worked until 11 p. m. to clear up the heavy volume.

Farm Bureau To Open Annual Member Drive

Kickoff Meeting Set Next Week

KEYSER, W. Va.—A number of activities are being planned by the Mineral County Farm Bureau in the near future, according to Lawrence Idleman, president.

The annual membership training drive will open Friday, January 4, in the office of the county agent in the Court House at 7:30 p. m.

F. L. Miles, organization supervisor for the West Virginia Farm Bureau, Morgantown, will assist in the drive.

Another of the activities will be a meeting December 28, at 9:30 a. m. in the county agent's office, at which time Clarence Fields, information specialist for the West Virginia Farm Bureau, will meet with the county directors to plan publicity in connection with the membership drive.

These meetings will focus attention on the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau, to be held in the Old Homestead Hotel, Monday, January 7, at 6:30 p. m. This is one of the highlights of the year for members of the bureau. Dinner will be prepared and served by the Headsville Farm Women's Club to bureau members and their wives.

Wade Tyler, organization director of the American Farm Bureau, Washington, will be guest speaker.

Officers will be elected for the coming year and plans will be outlined for the 1952 membership drive. Idleman has been urging all members to prepare to attend these meetings.

School Scene Of Yule Program

LONACONING—A Christmas party was held Monday evening by the Boys 4-H Club at Central High School. Kendrick Y. Hodgdon is 4-H leader. Ronald Warnick and Harold Doolan are his assistants.

There was group singing and Hodgdon told two Christmas stories. Joseph Steger, county 4-H agent, addressed the group. Allan Abbott, Mackey Phillips and Lloyd Robertson sang.

Shaw Will Head Oldtown Drive

OLDTOWN — Ross F. Shaw has been appointed community chairman for the 1952 March of Dimes campaign.

The Oldtown chairman will ask C. F. Reiter, principal of Oldtown High School, and Rev. William Anderson, pastor of the Oldtown Methodist Church, to assist in leading the campaign.

Keyser PO Has Record Rush

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Keyser Post Office broke all mail handling records Monday, when 36,000 pieces of first class mail were cancelled in addition to 5,000 to 6,000 parcels.

On Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. the working force at the Keyser office was caught up with the holiday rush, but Postmaster Thomas F. Ward said that 'anything can happen" from now on, because of the snow.

He said there have been some delays in distributing mail due to snow, but that snow is also handicapping persons who may have packages and first class mail to be sent through the local office.

In referring to the volume of mail handled in the local office Monday, Ward said those figures do not include incoming mail or mail handled in the local office from Petersburg and Maysville. On Monday a night shift worked until 11 p. m. to clear up the heavy volume.

City Refuses To Take Action On Noise Issue

Piedmont Revises Police Schedule

PIEDMONT, W. Va.—Noel Obenshain appeared again before Mayor Allan Hill and the City Council protesting the unnecessary blowing of horns of diesel engines of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

A motion made by Councilman Eugene W. Paxton that the city officials go on record at this time that no letter be written to the railroad relative to any direction o them how they should operate their trains while passing through the corporate limits of Piedmont, The motion was seconded by Councilman Mervin High and passed by the council.

The one dissenting vote was made by Councilman Garland Cheshire, who later stated he opposed the order since in some future time the council might feel it necessary to communicate with the railroad relative to it.

Obenshain promised the council he would appear before them again at the next meeting.

Harry F. Smith, Front Street, Westernport, a former resident of Piedmont, complained also. He said that not all engineers blow whistles unnecessarily.

The Mayor and Council said they feel the majority of the people are not concerned about the issue.

A revised schedule of hours for police to work was agreed on by city officials. The plan is effective December 30.

It was decided to place a flicker light on the top of the city building. The light will flicker when a call is made to the city police until they answer the telephone and by placing the proposed light in that position, the police may see it from all sections of the town.

It was decided that councilmen will solicit business places for donations to help defray expenses for colored Christmas lights during the Christmas holiday season.

4-H Club Has Yule Meeting

LONACONING—The Lonaconing Senior 4-H club held a Christmas meeting at the home of Miss Patsy Murphy, Charlestown Street.

A candlelight service was held to install the new club officers. They were Shirley Schaidt, president; Khrista McKenzie, vice president; Helen Crable, secretary, and Mary Elizabeth Braskey, treasurer.

Plans were made for a formal dance to be held at the V. F. W. Thursday at 8 p. m. Each member may bring another couple.

Gifts were exchanged and carols were sung. The next meeting will be held at the Red Cross room, Main Street.

Goodwill Club Holds Dinner

FROSTBURG — The Goodwill Club of Shaft Methodist Church recently held a turkey dinner at the Moon dining room, Cumberland.

Carol singing was a feature of the evening. The program also included a reading, "The Christmas Story," by Mrs. Elizabeth Layman and other selections by Mrs. Arliss Grimes, Mrs. Rose Bean, Mrs. Mildred Landefelt, Mrs. Clarence Miller; a vocal solo, "O Little Town of Bethlehem," by Rev. Louis Emerick, the playing of games and a jingle party.

Attending were Rev. and Mrs. Louis Emerick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevanus, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Layman, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Drew, Mr. and Mrs. Landefelt, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George Tennant, Mrs. Rose Bean, Mrs. Dorothy Brode, Mrs. Jean Kirkwood, Mrs. Bessie McKenzie, Mrs. Mary Shirey, Mrs. Pearl Monahan, Mrs. Arliss Grimes, Mrs. Hazel Tennant, Miss Alice Stevanus and Miss Mildred Stevanus.

PIEDMONT, W. Va. — Mr. and Mrs. Glenn H. Bonner Route 3, Keyser, announce the marriage of their daughter Elaine, to Arthur J. Palmer of Buffalo, N. Y.

The ceremony was performed December 10, in the rectory of the Nativity Church, 6000 Georgia Avenue, N. W. Washington, D. C., with Rev. Walter Norris, officiating.

Miss Ruby Bonner, cousin of the bride of Washington, D. C. was maid of honor and the brides' only attendant. Charles W. Crause, Atlanta, Georgia, served as best man.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McKnew, 236 Longfellow Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Palmer is a graduate of Bruce High School, Westernport, Md. class of 1948 and is employed by the U. S. Government at Washington, D. C.

Palmer is a graduate of Buffalo High School, class of 1947 and attended college a year before joining the navy.

The couple left for a wedding trip to New York after which she will return to Washington, D. C. and he will report for duty with the navy at Norfolk, Va.

City Is Praised For Safety Work

WESTERNPORT — A communication from Lynn Walker, president of the Western Maryland Safety Council, was read at the meeting of Mayor George P. Kight and City Commissioners Monday.

The letter expressed appreciation for the city's assistance in making the Allegany County third annual safety week a success.

Mayor Kight, reported that Harry F. Smith had complained about unnecessary blowing of whistles of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

He also stated Smith complained that when employes cleaned the snow from their Washington Street crossing, some was left where people walk. It was stated they thought the condition could be remedied.

Keyser PO Has Record Rush

KEYSER, W. Va. — The Keyser Post Office broke all mail handling records Monday, when 36,000 pieces of first class mail were cancelled in addition to 5,000 to 6,000 parcels.

On Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. the working force at the Keyser office was caught up with the holiday rush, but Postmaster Thomas F. Ward said that 'anything can happen" from now on, because of the snow.

He said there have been some delays in distributing mail due to snow, but that snow is also handicapping persons who may have packages and first class mail to be sent through the local office.

In referring to the volume of mail handled in the local office Monday, Ward said those figures do not include incoming mail or mail handled in the local office from Petersburg and Maysville. On Monday a night shift worked until 11 p. m. to clear up the heavy volume.

Farm Bureau To Open Annual Member Drive

Kickoff Meeting Set Next Week

KEYSER, W. Va.—A number of activities are being planned by the Mineral County Farm Bureau in the near future, according to Lawrence Idleman, president.

The annual membership training drive will open Friday, January 4, in the office of the county agent in the Court House at 7:30 p. m.

F. L. Miles, organization supervisor for the West Virginia Farm Bureau, Morgantown, will assist in the drive.

Another of the activities will be a meeting December 28, at 9:30 a. m. in the county agent's office, at which time Clarence Fields, information specialist for the West Virginia Farm Bureau, will meet with the county directors to plan publicity in connection with the membership drive.

These meetings will focus attention on the annual meeting of the Farm Bureau, to be held in the Old Homestead Hotel, Monday, January 7, at 6:30 p. m. This is one of the highlights of the year for members of the bureau. Dinner will be prepared and served by the Headsville Farm Women's Club to bureau members and their wives.

Wade Tyler, organization director of the American Farm Bureau, Washington, will be guest speaker.

Officers will be elected for the coming year and plans will be outlined for the 1952 membership drive. Idleman has been urging all members to prepare to attend these meetings.

School Scene Of Yule Program

LONACONING—A Christmas party was held Monday evening by the Boys 4-H Club at Central High School. Kendrick Y. Hodgdon is 4-H leader. Ronald Warnick and Harold Doolan are his assistants.

There was group singing and Hodgdon told two Christmas stories. Joseph Steger, county 4-H agent, addressed the group. Allan Abbott, Mackey Phillips and Lloyd Robertson sang.

Shaw Will Head Oldtown Drive

OLDTOWN — Ross F. Shaw has been appointed community chairman for the 1952 March of Dimes campaign.

The Oldtown chairman will ask C. F. Reiter, principal of Oldtown High School, and Rev. William Anderson, pastor of the Oldtown Methodist Church, to assist in leading the campaign.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18—(INS)—The matrimonial plans of Elizabeth Taylor and Michael Wilding are temporarily set for early February. Wilding is trying to postpone his return to England for a few weeks. Elizabeth may have difficulty going to London in February with her bridegroom because "Free Soul" is being readied for her and will start in in the spring.

Elizabeth Taylor

"Free Soul" is a remake of a very successful picture which starred Norma Shearer and Lionel Barrymore, and in which Clark Gable was a smash hit.

The story is supposed to be based on the life of the late Earl Rogers, famous criminal lawyer, and father of Adela Rogers St. John. Liz has read the script of "Free Soul" and likes it.

It was thinking about Rita Hayworth's "Salome" (now that she has made up with Harry Cohn she'll do it right after she finishes "An Affair In Trinidad") and I happened to remember one thing.

A few months ago Harry Cohn bought "The Good Tidings" by William Sidney and Robert Audrey, which was published a few years ago. At that time I thought nothing of it. Now I realize this will be used as the basis of Columbia's "Salome."

It's the story of a girl who lived in the days of John the Baptist, Herod and Barrabas. She seeks religious truths and in it Salome is presented in a way very different from the opera or the Oscar Wilde story.

Ann Sothern stays on in New York despite the closing of "Faithfully Yours," her stage play. Just a few nights ago she made her TV debut and now she's mad for it. More TV bids, plus radio, plus having her little girl back east with her, plus six months more to run on her apartment lease, will keep Annie in the big town considerably longer.

The panning the critics gave her show hasn't soured her about Broadway, either. There is a musical play in the offing—and musical comedy is where Ann started her career.

All homeless actors and actresses (her pals of course) will be invited to her annual open house on Christmas Day.

He adores his little daughter, Maria, and the separation has been very difficult. Pat, who is fundamentally a nice girl, does not want to be responsible for Gary's illness. Furthermore, since it doesn't seem that she and Gary will ever marry, she feels she cannot continue being the "other woman."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Dorothy Parker is back home after being rushed to Midway Hospital a few days ago. Rumors are that it was a heart attack.

Mark Stevens, who has been injured twice in London on the set of his movie, cabled Annelle (Mrs. Stevens) to join him. But Annelle says "no." She and Mark had a disagreement before he left and she wants to talk with him before she leaves Hollywood.

The new Lady Mendl stayed in Hollywood exactly three days and flew out again to get to Paris in time to spend Christmas with Sir Charles. She was the house guest of Arlene Dahl and Lex Barker. She left the day before Arlene and Lex's pre-Christmas party.

The ex-husband of Lady Mendl, Lou Riley, who has lived in Mexico for many years, is madly in love with Dolores Del Rio, and she with him.

At the Dahl-Barker party Ruth Roman and Mortimer Hall celebrated their first wedding anniversary.

Farley Granger came alone, which gave him more chance to talk with the unattached girls.

Ida Lupino, who expects a baby in late summer, has been ordered to remain in bed by her doctors.

At Ciro's Nicky Hilton and Betsy Von Furstenberg were at a table with Liz Dailey and Bob Neal. And what's this I hear about Nicky being at Jack's at the beach the next night with Piper Laurie?

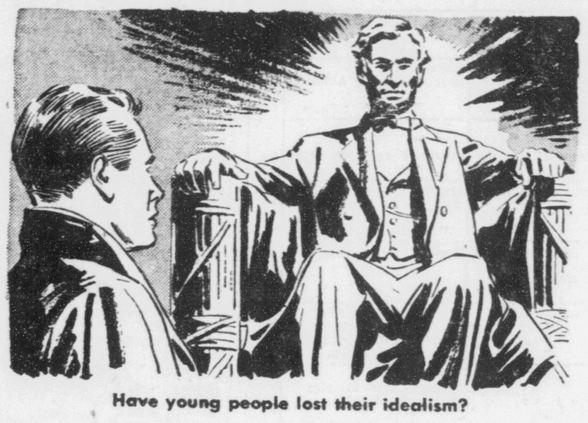
Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist



Have young people lost their idealism?

Answer: I do not believe it for a moment. As a result of a generation of "debunking" some of it well-founded, and a good deal not—young people have lost many of the ideals which their parents cherished, but that does not mean that they have not found or will not continue to find others. The gradual breaking down of racial barriers in college fraternities is one instance of this, and another is the way in which college students pitched in to help victims of last summer's midwest floods. Normal adolescents develop self-confidence through devotion to a "high cause" or "ideal" but are apt to want to choose a new one.

Is a doctor's job curing diseases?

Answer: No. That is the vitally portant task of workers in research laboratories. The job of the practicing physician is to cure sick people, of whom no two are alike even when victims of the same infection or emotional disturbance. If you have a choice of doctors, pick the one who seems to see you as a human being who needs help and reassurance rather than one to whom you are "a case of arthritis." There is no condition of your body that does not affect your mind, and vice versa, and the more effectively a doctor can put your mind at rest—of course, without minimizing facts that must be faced, the sooner you will get well.

Do most aging workers want to retire?

Answer: No, says labor leader Julius Hochman. When given a choice, the majority of older workers, even when they operate under a pension scheme, prefer to hold on to their jobs. For one thing, the smallness of the average pension will necessitate a sharp drop in living standards; for another, being a wage-earner plays a large part in maintaining self-esteem and the sense of one's own value. Furthermore, the fewer opportunities a worker has had to develop interests outside his job, the more "lost" he will feel if forced to retire. No one should be automatically retired on the mere basis of his calendar age.

School Board To Speed Data On Its Budget

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received an answer to its letter to the Board of Education in which the latter agency was requested to have its budget ready "at least by March 26, 1952" so that it could be included in the 1952-53 levy.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, said the Board of Education would make every attempt to have the budget material ready by the date requested.

Kopp in his letter also commented on the annual report of the Board of Education for the fiscal year which under law should be published within 30 days after June 30—the end of the fiscal year.

The county commissioners have in the past given the Board of Education additional time to prepare the report due to the mass of information which must be compiled. Kopp stated that the commissioners "have changed their attitude" in regard to the report and his office will endeavor to have it ready within the required 30 days after the end of the fiscal year next June 30, even though it will work a hardship on his office to do so.

Members of the county board yesterday accepted the bid of the Ankeney Company to furnish a four-drawer file for use in the Juvenile Court room in the Union Street County Building. The Ankeney firm bid $79.30 while the only other bidder was the Marquis Company at $95.

The kindergarten system was founded in Germany.

Church To Hold Christmas Rites

The congregation of First Christian Church will participate in a service of "white gifts" Sunday at the 10:40 a. m. service.

Gifts placed under a tree will be sent to the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church, according to the Rev. E. W. Gearhart, pastor, who will speak on "Christmas, 1951". The choir will sing.

The Bible School program will be held at 7:30 p. m. Directed by Mrs. Joseph Horevay, the Christmas program will include recitations, playlets and a visit from Santa Claus. At 9:30 p. m. the Junior Christian Endeavor will meet at the church to form a group for carol singing at 11 p. m.

On Christmas Eve at 11 p. m., the church will feature a candle lighting and carol program. A tableau, directed by Mrs. Lonnie Jackson, will be presented in three scenes as follows: The Prophecy of the Light of the World; the Preparation for the Gift; and The Fulfillment—The Christ Child.

Miss Mildred Southern, music major at Westminister College, New Wilmington, Pa., will sing "O, Holy Night", and Jesu Bambino". A sermonette, "The Christmas Story" will be given by the pastor followed by a dedication and the service of lights.

Dr. J. Kile Cowherd, 747 Washington Street, is a patient in Allegany Hospital, where he was admitted Monday. His condition is reported good.

School Board To Speed Data On Its Budget

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday received an answer to its letter to the Board of Education in which the latter agency was requested to have its budget ready "at least by March 26, 1952" so that it could be included in the 1952-53 levy.

Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, said the Board of Education would make every attempt to have the budget material ready by the date requested.

Kopp in his letter also commented on the annual report of the Board of Education for the fiscal year which under law should be published within 30 days after June 30—the end of the fiscal year.

The county commissioners have in the past given the Board of Education additional time to prepare the report due to the mass of information which must be compiled. Kopp stated that the commissioners "have changed their attitude" in regard to the report and his office will endeavor to have it ready within the required 30 days after the end of the fiscal year next June 30, even though it will work a hardship on his office to do so.

Members of the county board yesterday accepted the bid of the Ankeney Company to furnish a four-drawer file for use in the Juvenile Court room in the Union Street County Building. The Ankeney firm bid $79.30 while the only other bidder was the Marquis Company at $95.

Church To Hold Christmas Rites

The congregation of First Christian Church will participate in a service of "white gifts" Sunday at the 10:40 a. m. service.

Gifts placed under a tree will be sent to the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church, according to the Rev. E. W. Gearhart, pastor, who will speak on "Christmas, 1951". The choir will sing.

The Bible School program will be held at 7:30 p. m. Directed by Mrs. Joseph Horevay, the Christmas program will include recitations, playlets and a visit from Santa Claus. At 9:30 p. m. the Junior Christian Endeavor will meet at the church to form a group for carol singing at 11 p. m.

On Christmas Eve at 11 p. m., the church will feature a candle lighting and carol program. A tableau, directed by Mrs. Lonnie Jackson, will be presented in three scenes as follows: The Prophecy of the Light of the World; the Preparation for the Gift; and The Fulfillment—The Christ Child.

Miss Mildred Southern, music major at Westminister College, New Wilmington, Pa., will sing "O, Holy Night", and Jesu Bambino". A sermonette, "The Christmas Story" will be given by the pastor followed by a dedication and the service of lights.

Dr. Cowherd In Hospital

Dr. J. Kile Cowherd, 747 Washington Street, is a patient in Allegany Hospital, where he was admitted Monday. His condition is reported good.

When an airplane pilot sets out to break a transcontinental speed record he travels from California to New York instead of vice versa because of the prevailing tail winds.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18—(INS)—The matrimonial plans of Elizabeth Taylor and Michael Wilding are temporarily set for early February. Wilding is trying to postpone his return to England for a few weeks. Elizabeth may have difficulty going to London in February with her bridegroom because "Free Soul" is being readied for her and will start in in the spring.

Elizabeth Taylor

"Free Soul" is a remake of a very successful picture which starred Norma Shearer and Lionel Barrymore, and in which Clark Gable was a smash hit.

The story is supposed to be based on the life of the late Earl Rogers, famous criminal lawyer, and father of Adela Rogers St. John. Liz has read the script of "Free Soul" and likes it.

It was thinking about Rita Hayworth's "Salome" (now that she has made up with Harry Cohn she'll do it right after she finishes "An Affair In Trinidad") and I happened to remember one thing.

A few months ago Harry Cohn bought "The Good Tidings" by William Sidney and Robert Audrey, which was published a few years ago. At that time I thought nothing of it. Now I realize this will be used as the basis of Columbia's "Salome."

It's the story of a girl who lived in the days of John the Baptist, Herod and Barrabas. She seeks religious truths and in it Salome is presented in a way very different from the opera or the Oscar Wilde story.

Ann Sothern stays on in New York despite the closing of "Faithfully Yours," her stage play. Just a few nights ago she made her TV debut and now she's mad for it. More TV bids, plus radio, plus having her little girl back east with her, plus six months more to run on her apartment lease, will keep Annie in the big town considerably longer.

The panning the critics gave her show hasn't soured her about Broadway, either. There is a musical play in the offing—and musical comedy is where Ann started her career.

All homeless actors and actresses (her pals of course) will be invited to her annual open house on Christmas Day.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Pat Neal has definitely decided not to see Gary Cooper anymore. It isn't that she doesn't love him, but she feels his illness is the result of worry. He adores his little daughter, Maria, and the separation has been very difficult. Pat, who is fundamentally a nice girl, does not want to be responsible for Gary's illness. Furthermore, since it doesn't seem that she and Gary will ever marry, she feels she cannot continue being the "other woman."

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Dorothy Parker is back home after being rushed to Midway Hospital a few days ago. Rumors are that it was a heart attack.

Mark Stevens, who has been injured twice in London on the set of his movie, cabled Annelle (Mrs. Stevens) to join him. But Annelle says "no." She and Mark had a disagreement before he left and she wants to talk with him before she leaves Hollywood.

The new Lady Mendl stayed in Hollywood exactly three days and flew out again to get to Paris in time to spend Christmas with Sir Charles. She was the house guest of Arlene Dahl and Lex Barker. She left the day before Arlene and Lex's pre-Christmas party.

The ex-husband of Lady Mendl, Lou Riley, who has lived in Mexico for many years, is madly in love with Dolores Del Rio, and she with him.

At the Dahl-Barker party Ruth Roman and Mortimer Hall celebrated their first wedding anniversary.

Farley Granger came alone, which gave him more chance to talk with the unattached girls.

Ida Lupino, who expects a baby in late summer, has been ordered to remain in bed by her doctors.

At Ciro's Nicky Hilton and Betsy Von Furstenberg were at a table with Liz Dailey and Bob Neal. And what's this I hear about Nicky being at Jack's at the beach the next night with Piper Laurie?

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

A Roman legion in ancient times consisted of a unit of 4,000-6,000 heavy infantry who were, by political status, Roman citizens.

Mirror Of Your Mind

By LAWRENCE GOULD, Consulting Psychologist

Have young people lost their idealism?

Answer: I do not believe it for a moment. As a result of a generation of "debunking" some of it well-founded, and a good deal not—young people have lost many of the ideals which their parents cherished, but that does not mean that they have not found or will not continue to find others. The gradual breaking down of racial barriers in college fraternities is one instance of this, and another is the way in which college students pitched in to help victims of last summer's midwest floods. Normal adolescents develop self-confidence through devotion to a "high cause" or "ideal" but are apt to want to choose a new one.

Is a doctor's job curing diseases?

Answer: No. That is the vitally portant task of workers in research laboratories. The job of the practicing physician is to cure sick people, of whom no two are alike even when victims of the same infection or emotional disturbance. If you have a choice of doctors, pick the one who seems to see you as a human being who needs help and reassurance rather than one to whom you are "a case of arthritis." There is no condition of your body that does not affect your mind, and vice versa, and the more effectively a doctor can put your mind at rest—of course, without minimizing facts that must be faced, the sooner you will get well.

Do most aging workers want to retire?

Answer: No, says labor leader Julius Hochman. When given a choice, the majority of older workers, even when they operate under a pension scheme, prefer to hold on to their jobs. For one thing, the smallness of the average pension will necessitate a sharp drop in living standards; for another, being a wage-earner plays a large part in maintaining self-esteem and the sense of one's own value. Furthermore, the fewer opportunities a worker has had to develop interests outside his job, the more "lost" he will feel if forced to retire. No one should be automatically retired on the mere basis of his calendar age.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

FINEST REASON OF ALL

YOUR partner may have any number of good reasons for playing a high card on your opening lead. The finest reason of all, when you are competing against a No Trump game contract, is that he holds what he considers is probably greater length in the suit than you possess. When that seems possible, your job then is to begin at once to unblock the suit for him, using your highest cards on the next trick or two and trying to retain a low one for your eventual exit into his hand.

	♠ 7 4 ♥ J 4 ♦ A K Q 5 3 ♣ A K 9 5
♠ K 10 9 6 3 ♥ K Q 10 3 ♦ J 6 ♣ 4 2	N W E S	♠ J 2 ♥ A 7 6 5 2 ♦ 10 9 8 4 ♣ 10 7
	♠ A Q 8 5 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 7 2 ♣ Q J 8 6 3

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 NT

South's No Trump game bid was based on his deduction that North's very strong second bid indicated good general strength in his hand and therefore probably some kind of stopper in hearts. If North had made a more generally approved bid, in clubs, it is pretty likely that the final contract would have been a game in the minor that could not be made, since there was no way to avoid losing a trick in spades and two in hearts.

The No Trump game should not have been scored, but was, thanks to unsound defense. West started with his correct lead of the heart K, on which East played the encouraging 7. The suit was therefore repeated, West leading the 3. Since the J went on that from dummy, East had to use his A in order to win the trick. He returned the 5 to the 10 and West also scored the Q. This left East with one more heart, but there was no way for him to use it. No matter what West returned, the declarer could score nine tricks.

West's job, as soon as he decided East's heart 7 was high enough to be a come-on, was to use his remaining honors at once. He should have led the Q to the second trick, next the 10 and then finally the 3. East could have won that and his 6 would have made the fifth trick for the defense to beat the game at the outset.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A Q 7 5 3 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ 7 2 ♣ Q J 4
♠ 10 9 ♥ Q 8 5 ♦ A 10 9 4 3 ♣ 10 8 2	N W E S	♠ K J 6 2 ♥ J 10 4 3 ♦ Q 8 ♣ A 6 5
	♠ 8 4 ♥ A 9 7 ♦ K J 6 5 ♣ K 9 7 3

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What bidding would you prefer on this deal after North's opening 1-Spade?

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Morality And Immorality

Edward R. Murrow got a little curious as to how the Europeans were taking our tax scandals and queried the CBS correspondents about it. The results, as reported on his show the other night, were vastly entertaining though morally, perhaps, a little callous to American ears.

John Crosby

"David Schoenbrun," said Murrow, "cabled from Paris that our boys are strictly amateurs compared to the French when it comes to tax scandals . . . He says the French appear to feel that we ought to be satisfied to be the biggest, richest, strongest power in the West without attempting to challenge the French on their own ground of tax scandals . . .

"Ned Calmer reports from Rome . . . the Italians were somewhat afraid that their tax scandals, which are chronic, would cause us to go slow in giving them more money. They are not displeased that our attention has now been directed or deflected to questions concerning domestic tax scandals."

• — • — •

British indifference toward our tax scandals, Murrow reported, was just as profound as that of the French and Italians but it stemmed from vastly different reasons. "(Howard) Smith (in London) is of the opinion that British indifference probably arises from an overdose of news on public immorality from America during the past six months, plus the fact that they seem to feel that with the world balanced on a razor's edge of peace and war—with America possibly having the power to determine which it will be—there seems, to the people of Britain, the inhabitants of a primary bombing target, that there ought to be a more important issue upon which we could fight our political elections."

• — • — •

So much for public immorality. To turn to an exactly opposite field, I'd like to call your attention to another CBS show, "Lamp Unto My Feet" (CBS-TV 4 p. m. EST Sundays). Religion has always been a difficult and ticklish proposition to put on the air (either radio or television)—difficult because it's hard to avoid dullness, ticklish because the preachments of one sect are likely to inflame the members of all the other sects.

• — • — •

"Lamp Unto My Feet", which is now three years old, is neither dull nor sectually inflammatory; its prime mission, in fact, is to promote understanding between Catholics, Jews and Protestants who alternate on the program. In technique, "Lamp Unto My Feet" employs a highly experimental and refreshing mixture of drama and discussion. Frequently it wanders miles from the tenets of pure religion into the more practical domains of ethics and current social problems.

Not long ago, the drama concerned a priest in the Marshall Islands who devoted much of his time to teaching the natives how to sew their own dresses, how to market their own shells rather than to work for others. In so doing, he wrecked a nice little monopoly enjoyed by a couple of white traders who were naturally a little bitter about it. After the drama—these dramas, incidentally, are very competently written, directed and acted—Lyman Bryson, the moderator, inquired whether the church really had a moral right to invade and rearrange the lives of the islanders, whether the natives were not actually happier leading their simple, non-commercialized lives.

A Catholic missionary bishop replied—a little grimly, I thought—that we white folks harbored a lot of delusions about the happy tropical islanders, that there were, in fact, a lot of very unhappy tropical islanders. Poverty and ignorance, he pointed out, were no more enjoyable or socially acceptable in the tropics than anywhere else. Sound point.

• — • — •

That's just one kind of program. "Lamp Unto My Feet" has done lots of others. Once in a production described as a "television tone poem," John Bunyon's "Pilgrim's Progress" was staged in a stylized impressionistic technique. Physical properties were step-ladders, stage doors labelled "Danger," empty crates, platforms, ashtrays, rubber masks and a Bible. A cast of ten put the ancient story in contemporary terms. Christian was a typical New York commuter; the Evangelist was a workman in overalls; World Wise, the Mephistophelean character, wore a black homburg.

Another program dealt so effectively with teen-age drug addiction that CBS was flooded with calls from people who wanted to contribute their services to help stamp it out. It's a very flexible, imaginative program and sets, I think, not only a high water mark in ethical culture but in television programming.

There's too much petty cash down in Washington and too many guys petting it.

If the great Alexander Hamilton was running the Treasury he could not tell which money was his and which was the government's.

I'm getting up a Washington blue book of dropped names that never hit the floor. A publicity man makes a fortune keeping 'em out of the upstate editions.

Just got a government health release showing that one person out of 20 suffers from rheumatism, spots before his eyes and leaping dandruff. What one person out of 20 suffers from the most is the other 19.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FINEST REASON OF ALL

YOUR partner may have any number of good reasons for playing a high card on your opening lead. The finest reason of all, when you are competing against a No Trump game contract, is that he holds what he considers is probably greater length in the suit than you possess. When that seems possible, your job then is to begin at once to unblock the suit for him, using your highest cards on the next trick or two and trying to retain a low one for your eventual exit into his hand.

	♠ 7 4 ♥ J 4 ♦ A K Q 5 3 ♣ A K 9 5
♠ K 10 9 6 3 ♥ K Q 10 3 ♦ J 6 ♣ 4 2	N W E S	♠ J 2 ♥ A 7 6 5 2 ♦ 10 9 8 4 ♣ 10 7
	♠ A Q 8 5 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 7 2 ♣ Q J 8 6 3

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 NT

South's No Trump game bid was based on his deduction that North's very strong second bid indicated good general strength in his hand and therefore probably some kind of stopper in hearts. If North had made a more generally approved bid, in clubs, it is pretty likely that the final contract would have been a game in the minor that could not be made, since there was no way to avoid losing a trick in spades and two in hearts.

The No Trump game should not have been scored, but was, thanks to unsound defense. West started with his correct lead of the heart K, on which East played the encouraging 7. The suit was therefore repeated, West leading the 3. Since the J went on that from dummy, East had to use his A in order to win the trick. He returned the 5 to the 10 and West also scored the Q. This left East with one more heart, but there was no way for him to use it. No matter what West returned, the declarer could score nine tricks.

West's job, as soon as he decided East's heart 7 was high enough to be a come-on, was to use his remaining honors at once. He should have led the Q to the second trick, next the 10 and then finally the 3. East could have won that and his 6 would have made the fifth trick for the defense to beat the game at the outset.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A Q 7 5 3 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ 7 2 ♣ Q J 4
♠ 10 9 ♥ Q 8 5 ♦ A 10 9 4 3 ♣ 10 8 2	N W E S	♠ K J 6 2 ♥ J 10 4 3 ♦ Q 8 ♣ A 6 5
	♠ 8 4 ♥ A 9 7 ♦ K J 6 5 ♣ K 9 7 3

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What bidding would you prefer on this deal after North's opening 1-Spade?

YOUR partner may have any number of good reasons for playing a high card on your opening lead. The finest reason of all, when you are competing against a No Trump game contract, is that he holds what he considers is probably greater length in the suit than you possess. When that seems possible, your job then is to begin at once to unblock the suit for him, using your highest cards on the next trick or two and trying to retain a low one for your eventual exit into his hand.

	♠ 7 4 ♥ J 4 ♦ A K Q 5 3 ♣ A K 9 5
♠ K 10 9 6 3 ♥ K Q 10 3 ♦ J 6 ♣ 4 2	N W E S	♠ J 2 ♥ A 7 6 5 2 ♦ 10 9 8 4 ♣ 10 7
	♠ A Q 8 5 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 7 2 ♣ Q J 8 6 3

(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 NT

South's No Trump game bid was based on his deduction that North's very strong second bid indicated good general strength in his hand and therefore probably some kind of stopper in hearts. If North had made a more generally approved bid, in clubs, it is pretty likely that the final contract would have been a game in the minor that could not be made, since there was no way to avoid losing a trick in spades and two in hearts.

The No Trump game should not have been scored, but was, thanks to unsound defense. West started with his correct lead of the heart K, on which East played the encouraging 7. The suit was therefore repeated, West leading the 3. Since the J went on that from dummy, East had to use his A in order to win the trick. He returned the 5 to the 10 and West also scored the Q. This left East with one more heart, but there was no way for him to use it. No matter what West returned, the declarer could score nine tricks.

West's job, as soon as he decided East's heart 7 was high enough to be a come-on, was to use his remaining honors at once. He should have led the Q to the second trick, next the 10 and then finally the 3. East could have won that and his 6 would have made the fifth trick for the defense to beat the game at the outset.

Tomorrow's Problem

	♠ A Q 7 5 3 ♥ K 6 2 ♦ 7 2 ♣ Q J 4
♠ 10 9 ♥ Q 8 5 ♦ A 10 9 4 3 ♣ 10 8 2	N W E S	♠ K J 6 2 ♥ J 10 4 3 ♦ Q 8 ♣ A 6 5
	♠ 8 4 ♥ A 9 7 ♦ K J 6 5 ♣ K 9 7 3

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What bidding would you prefer on this deal after North's opening 1-Spade?

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Morality And Immorality

Edward R. Murrow got a little curious as to how the Europeans were taking our tax scandals and queried the CBS correspondents about it. The results, as reported on his show the other night, were vastly entertaining though morally, perhaps, a little callous to American ears.

John Crosby

"David Schoenbrun," said Murrow, "cabled from Paris that our boys are strictly amateurs compared to the French when it comes to tax scandals . . . He says the French appear to feel that we ought to be satisfied to be the biggest, richest, strongest power in the West without attempting to challenge the French on their own ground of tax scandals . . .

"Ned Calmer reports from Rome . . . the Italians were somewhat afraid that their tax scandals, which are chronic, would cause us to go slow in giving them more money. They are not displeased that our attention has now been directed or deflected to questions concerning domestic tax scandals."

•—•—•

British indifference toward our tax scandals, Murrow reported, was just as profound as that of the French and Italians but it stemmed from vastly different reasons. "(Howard) Smith (in London) is of the opinion that British indifference probably arises from an overdose of news on public immorality from America during the past six months, plus the fact that they seem to feel that with the world balanced on a razor's edge of peace and war—with America possibly having the power to determine which it will be—there seems, to the people of Britain, the inhabitants of a primary bombing target, that there ought to be a more important issue upon which we could fight our political elections."

•—•—•

So much for public immorality. To turn to an exactly opposite field, I'd like to call your attention to another CBS show, "Lamp Unto My Feet" (CBS-TV 4 p. m. EST Sundays). Religion has always been a difficult and ticklish proposition to put on the air (either radio or television)—difficult because it's hard to avoid dullness, ticklish because the preachments of one sect are likely to inflame the members of all the other sects.

•—•—•

"Lamp Unto My Feet", which is now three years old, is neither dull nor sectually inflammatory; its prime mission, in fact, is to promote understanding between Catholics, Jews and Protestants who alternate on the program. In technique, "Lamp Unto My Feet" employs a highly experimental and refreshing mixture of drama and discussion. Frequently it wanders miles from the tenets of pure religion into the more practical domains of ethics and current social problems.

Not long ago, the drama concerned a priest in the Marshall Islands who devoted much of his time to teaching the natives how to sew their own dresses, how to market their own shells rather than to work for others. In so doing, he wrecked a nice little monopoly enjoyed by a couple of white traders who were naturally a little bitter about it. After the drama—these dramas, incidentally, are very competently written, directed and acted—Lyman Bryson, the moderator, inquired whether the church really had a moral right to invade and rearrange the lives of the islanders, whether the natives were not actually happier leading their simple, non-commercialized lives.

A Catholic missionary bishop replied—a little grimly, I thought—that we white folks harbored a lot of delusions about the happy tropical islanders, that there were, in fact, a lot of very unhappy tropical islanders. Poverty and ignorance, he pointed out, were no more enjoyable or socially acceptable in the tropics than anywhere else. Sound point.

That's just one kind of program. "Lamp Unto My Feet" has done lots of others. Once in a production described as a "television tone poem," John Bunyon's "Pilgrim's Progress" was staged in a stylized impressionistic technique. Physical properties were step-ladders, stage doors labelled "Danger," empty crates, platforms, ashtrays, rubber masks and a Bible. A cast of ten put the ancient story in contemporary terms. Christian was a typical New York commuter; the Evangelist was a workman in overalls; World Wise, the Mephistophelean character, wore a black homburg.

Another program dealt so effectively with teen-age drug addiction that CBS was flooded with calls from people who wanted to contribute their services to help stamp it out. It's a very flexible, imaginative program and sets, I think, not only a high water mark in ethical culture but in television programming.

There's too much petty cash down in Washington and too many guys petting it.

If the great Alexander Hamilton was running the Treasury he could not tell which money was his and which was the government's.

I'm getting up a Washington blue book of dropped names that never hit the floor. A publicity man makes a fortune keeping 'em out of the upstate editions.

Just got a government health release showing that one person out of 20 suffers from rheumatism, spots before his eyes and leaping dandruff. What one person out of 20 suffers from the most is the other 19.

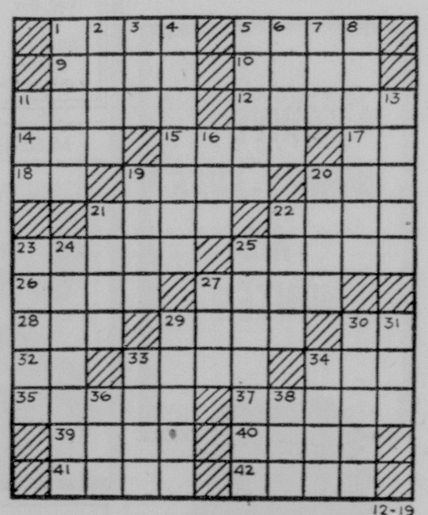
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

"The Great A-Bomb Robbery"

By BOB CONSIDINE

(World Copyright 1951 by INS)

This is the ninth of 11 articles telling the story, as it never has been possible to tell it before, of how Russia stole America's A-bomb secrets, and the people it used in the fantastic cloak-and-dagger conspiracy.

Sgt. David Greenglass, a former member of the Young Communist League who was assigned during the war to work in the world's most sacrosanct tool shop, the one in Building E, Los Alamos, New Mexico, where the "trigger" of the A-bomb was engineered, was a thorough soul.

He was not too bright, but he was thorough. And his great idols in life were his brother-in-law and sister, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg — who now face the electric chair for passing along to Russia what the unhappily-placed sergeant was able to glean at his historic work.

A month after the end of World War II Greenglass came back to New York and gave Julius and his sister enough information to enable them to transcribe notes, descriptions and drawings of the vastly improved "lens" of the Nagasaki bomb.

The pleasure of the Rosenbergs made him feel very proud. And David joined in the laughter when Rosenberg confided to him that he had stolen a complete proximity fuse while on official business at the Emerson Radio Corporation, and had turned it over to the Russians.

Gold Ignored By "John"

David, mustered out with an honorable discharge, went to work for Julius in a machine shop. He had all but forgotten the grave risk he had taken at Los Alamos by the time Dr. Allan Nunn May, the British scientist who had delivered uranium samples and much information to the Russians while working on the A-project in Canada, was apprehended, confessed, and was given 10 years in prison.

But Dr. May and his convicted associates soon faded out of the press. David Greenglass breathed easier. He was making pretty good money working for Julius. In fact, he still had some of the $500 which Harry Gold had given to him, plus a $50 U. S. war bond which Ruth had bought at the time they received the $500.

Gold, in those early months after V-J Day and the return of Dr. Fuchs to England, found himself ignored by the apparatus for which he had been working for more than a decade. Perhaps it was just as well, he reasoned. He had taken many chances. . .

In 1946 Gold was forced to look around for a new job. The Pennsylvania Sugar Co., where he had worked for 17 years as a chemist, except for two brief periods of absence at college, closed the lab in which the gentle little man worked and was well liked.

Gold Makes Blunder

The job he accepted was one of the graver blunders of his life. He hooked on at $100 a week with the Abraham Brothman Associates, chemical research engineers who maintained a laboratory in Elmhurst, Queens. He was "chief chemist." Brothman was an old acquaintance.

Gold, too, noticed with alarm the arrest and conviction of Dr. May, but was relieved when the furore subsided. He had no way of knowing that the word "Fuchs" had appeared in Dr. May's seized notes. Fuchs was a closed incident in the life of Gold. And so, apparently, was "John" — the name by which he had known Soviet Vice Consul Yakovliev. He had not seen or heard from "John" for a long time.

Then, ten months after his last previous meeting with "John," on which occasion Gold turned over the last information Fuchs was to give him, Gold received in the mail two tickets to a boxing match. It was a pre-arranged signal, telling Gold to appear (at 8 p. m. on the date stamped on the tickets) at the Earl movie theater near the Yankee Stadium in New York City.

But the envelope had been addressed incorrectly and had taken too long to reach him. The date on the tickets had already passed. Gold waited tensely for several days, then received a phone call at his New York laboratory. The date was December 26, 1946.

"Harry Gold?" the voice asked.

"Yes."

"Have you been all right?" It was Yakovlev and by that question he was asking if Gold had suspected he was being followed.

"Yes."

"I'll meet you at the theater tonight at 8 o'clock."

Pub Is Meeting Place

Gold appeared, bought a ticket, and took a seat in the upstairs lounge. Presently a huge man approached him and quickly showed him a torn slip of paper which would be recognition signal for "John's" aide.

Silently the man beckoned to Gold to leave, and took him to a pub at the corner of 42nd and Third Ave. Yakovlev was waiting with a smile. He apologized for not having contacted Gold for ten months, inquired if he had heard from Fuchs, and got down to business. He was going to send Gold to Paris in March, 1947, to meet "a prominent physicist" and obtain information from him.

Gold was willing. He nodded, and said, "I think I can arrange for leave as soon as the pressure of work at Abe Brothman's has eased up a bit."

Yakovlev sat up as if struck by an electric charge.

"You fool!" he almost shouted. The Russian dipped in his pocket, slammed down several bills on the table, and charged out of the place. Gold, struggling into his coat, followed him, whining for an explanation.

Brothman Watched By FBI

"You've spoiled 11 years of work!" the Russian thundered, while Gold trotted at his side. "You should have remembered that I told you in 1945 that Brothman was being watched by the F. B. I."

Yakovlev left almost immediately for Russia, and a worried and penitent Gold went back to work for Brothman. He should have remembered and been more careful, Gold conceded. He had served briefly as Brothman's courier in the early 1940's after Elizabeth Bentley — a higher-ranking member on the Communist courier roster — had complained to her boss and lover, Communist Agent Jacob Golos, that Brothman was not delivering enough valuable material for the Russians.

When Miss Bentley broke with communism she told the F. B. I. of her relationship with Brothman and how Gold had succeeded her in her work. Brothman was called before a grand jury in 1947. He told a smooth lie, then coached Gold to confirm it during his own testimony. Gold did so, and both went free.

But the F. B. I. now had a picture of God and a brief dossier, as a resut of that and a subsequent fruitess appearance before the jury. It was to prove one of the traps that caught him — and the historic track-down of Gold, and his confession, meant that the G-men could close in on the Greenglasses and Rosenbergs, the latter couple now standing in the shadow of the electric chair.

Unit, made up of some of the highest type men in Internal Revenue. It is their job to detect fraud. These men are trained in the rules of evidence and know their business.

When they have finished an investigation, and when their recommendation for prosecution has been OK'd by the senior special agent and the special agent in charge of a division, it is almost inconceivable that they have recommended prosecution of an innocent man. Yet during the Truman administration about 60 per cent of the tax-fraud cases later have been quashed in one of three places:

1. The chief counsel's office under Charles Oliphant, now resigned.
2. The Justice Department's tax division, under Lamar Caudle, also resigned.
3. U. S. Attorney's offices in different parts of the U.S.A.

The details of how this has been done will be told in a subsequent column. But meanwhile discouragement and frustration has spread through the ranks of the many honest tax collectors and special agents as never before.

One agent in the field can collect about $80 for every dollar spent on his salary and expenses—one of the biggest untapped sources of revenue in the nation. Yet, thanks to politics and corruption at the top, we have started on the path of the tax-evading nations of Europe where failure to collect taxes is the first step toward inequality and eventually Communism.

Sunday School Plans Party

FROSTBURG — Parents and members of the cradle roll, nursery, beginner, primary and junior classes of First English Baptist Sunday school have been invited to attend the annual Christmas party of the Sunday School to be held Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

The program will include a colored film strip, "The Shepherd's Watch". Refreshments will be served and Santa Claus will distribute gifts.

Mrs. Chester Stewart, cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. Howard Ward, department superintendent, and Mrs. Howard Ward, department superintendent, and Mrs. Neva Geary, general secretary, will be assisted by the following teachers, Misses Vivian Geary, Nona Miller, Della Offman, and Mesdames Charles Wiebrecht, Edgar McFarland, Melvin Ward, John McFarland, Bray Thompson and Thomas Geary.

Lonaconing Choristers Present Carol Service

LONACONING — The Choristers of the First Presbyterian Church presented their Christmas Carol service Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the church.

Characters in the pantomine were Allan Abbott and Johnny Keyes as two soldiers; Bobby Reidler as Joseph; Norma Lee Shaw as Mary; Helen Fairgrieve as an angel; Hugh Atkinson, Ronnie Pase and Jimmie Ritchie as the Three Kings.

Shirley Burt was organist and Dorothy Brown, director. Soloists were Bonnie Sue Lashbaugh, Gail Broadwater, Judy Moffatt, Bonnie Neat, Barbara Moses, Dottie Robertson, Louise Nightengale, Donna Stafford.

Duets were sung by Judy Atkinson and Donna Moffatt; Sally Steiding and Judy Marshall. A quintette composed of Donna Pase, Thelma Hadley, Marion Steiding, Marlene Tipton and Sally Williams, sang on the carol program.

Three Join Air Force, Army At Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Army and Air Force Recruiting Station has announced the enlistment of three Mineral County young men. Two veterans enlisted for the Air Force.

They were James William Bryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bryan, 11 Kenny Street, and William Maxwell Orndorff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orndorff, 3 Dundee Street, both of Piedmont.

Both men enlisted for four years in grade of private first class and were sent to the 1110th Personal Processing Squadron, Bolling Air Force Base, Washington.

Enlisting for his first tour of duty was Joseph Louis Porter, 20, RFD 2, Keyser. He enlisted in the Regular Army for three years and was sent to the 2053rd ASU Reception Center, Fort George G. Meade, for processing and further assignment.

Highest dive on record was made in 1918 from a cliff near Melbourne, Australia, by Alexander Wickham, a champion swimmer, who jumped 206 feet (or as high as a 17-story building).

Market Session Produces Mixture Of Gains, Losses

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Trading was highly selective on the stock market today and the result was strength in a handful of stocks and irregular price changes for most.

The overall statistics reflected the picking and choosing that went on throughout the session.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, for instance, advanced a dime to $97.90, but there were more declines than there were advances.

This simply indicated that the stocks listed in the averages were among the greater gainers.

The volume hit 1,290,000 shares, a little better than yesterday's 1,220,000 but still a slow pace.

There were 387 advances and 436 declines among the 1,131 issues traded. Fifteen stocks reached new highs and 36 dropped to new lows.

In the Associated Press averages, industrials advanced 30 cents utilities moved up a dime and rails remained unchanged.

The most active stock of the day was a normally inactive issue—Clopay Corp. The stock of the company, which manufactures products made from plastic film and paper, advanced 1⅛ at 6¾ on the sale of 25,400 shares.

There were nine advances and four declines among the 15 most active stocks. Also among them were the day's larger gainers and losers.

The 13th most active issue was Amerada Petroleum, which dropped three points at 147¾.

Three of the motor group, which gained strength late in the session, appeared on the list. General Motors, which moved ahead ⅝ at 51⅜, was third most active stocks; Chrysler, up 1⅛ at 70⅝, was tenth most active and Studebaker, ahead ¼ at 33⅜ was eleventh.

Standard Oil (NJ), the sixth most active issue, sold at 73¾, a new yearly high, during the day, but wound up a little under that figure —73⅝ for a gain of ½.

The market for the most part, however, was a mixture of gains and losses with price changes mostly in fractions.

Josephine Lillian Koelker vs. Robert Cornelius Koelker, No. 22499 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the Plaintiff from the Defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The Bill states that parties were married in Cumberland, Maryland, on August 22, 1930; that they lived together in Cumberland, Maryland, until on or about June 11, 1950, on which date defendant's conduct became so cruel and abusive that plaintiff's health, mental and physical, were greatly impaired and defendant thereafter abandoned and deserted the plaintiff; that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly down to the present time, is of at least eighteen months' duration, is deliberate and final and beyond hope of reconciliation.

That one child, Patricia K. Sweitzer, a married daughter aged 20, was born to parties of the marriage, that plaintiff has been a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, for more than one year last passed, and that defendant's whereabouts are unknown to plaintiff but that his last known address was Washington, D. C.

It is thereupon this 17th day of December, 1951, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff cause this order to be inserted in some newspaper publication in Allegany County, once a week for four weeks before the 19th day of January, 1952, giving notice to the said Robert Cornelius Koelker, absent defendant, of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 5th day of February, 1952, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

"The Great A-Bomb Robbery"

By BOB CONSIDINE
(World Copyright 1951 by INS)

This is the ninth of 11 articles telling the story, as it never has been possible to tell it before, of how Russia stole America's A-bomb secrets, and the people it used in the fantastic cloak-and-dagger conspiracy.

Sgt. David Greenglass, a former member of the Young Communist League who was assigned during the war to work in the world's most sacrosanct tool shop, the one in Building E, Los Alamos, New Mexico, where the "trigger" of the A-bomb was engineered, was a thorough soul.

He was not too bright, but he was thorough. And his great idols in life were his brother-in-law and sister, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg — who now face the electric chair for passing along to Russia what the unhappily-placed sergeant was able to glean at his historic work.

A month after the end of World War II Greenglass came back to New York and gave Julius and his sister enough information to enable them to transcribe notes, descriptions and drawings of the vastly improved "lens" of the Nagasaki bomb.

The pleasure of the Rosenbergs made him feel very proud. And David joined in the laughter when Rosenberg confided to him that he had stolen a complete proximity fuse while on official business at the Emerson Radio Corporation, and had turned it over to the Russians.

Gold Ignored By "John"

David, mustered out with an honorable discharge, went to work for Julius in a machine shop. He had all but forgotten the grave risk he had taken at Los Alamos by the time Dr. Allan Nunn May, the British scientist who had delivered uranium samples and much information to the Russians while working on the A-project in Canada, was apprehended, confessed, and was given 10 years in prison.

But Dr. May and his convicted associates soon faded out of the press. David Greenglass breathed easier. He was making pretty good money working for Julius. In fact, he still had some of the $500 which Harry Gold had given to him, plus a $50 U. S. war bond which Ruth had bought at the time they received the $500.

Gold, in those early months after V-J Day and the return of Dr. Fuchs to England, found himself ignored by the apparatus for which he had been working for more than a decade. Perhaps it was just as well, he reasoned. He had taken many chances. . .

In 1946 Gold was forced to look around for a new job. The Pennsylvania Sugar Co., where he had worked for 17 years as a chemist, except for two brief periods of absence at college, closed the lab in which the gentle little man worked and was well liked.

Gold Makes Blunder

The job he accepted was one of the graver blunders of his life. He hooked on at $100 a week with the Abraham Brothman Associates, chemical research engineers who maintained a laboratory in Elmhurst, Queens. He was "chief chemist." Brothman was an old acquaintance.

Gold, too, noticed with alarm the arrest and conviction of Dr. May, but was relieved when the furore subsided. He had no way of knowing that the word "Fuchs" had appeared in Dr. May's seized notes. Fuchs was a closed incident in the life of Gold. And so, apparently, was "John" — the name by which he had known Soviet Vice Consul Yakovliev. He had not seen or heard from "John" for a long time.

Then, ten months after his last previous meeting with "John," on which occasion Gold turned over the last information Fuchs was to give him, Gold received in the mail two tickets to a boxing match. It was a pre-arranged signal, telling Gold to appear (at 8 p. m. on the date stamped on the tickets) at the Earl movie theater near the Yankee Stadium in New York City.

But the envelope had been addressed incorrectly and had taken too long to reach him. The date on the tickets had already passed. Gold waited tensely for several days, then received a phone call at his New York laboratory. The date was December 26, 1946.

"Harry Gold?" the voice asked.

"Yes."

"Have you been all right?" It was Yakovlev and by that question he was asking if Gold had suspected he was being followed.

"Yes."

"I'll meet you at the theater tonight at 8 o'clock."

Pub Is Meeting Place

Gold appeared, bought a ticket, and took a seat in the upstairs lounge. Presently a huge man approached him and quickly showed him a torn slip of paper which would be recognition signal for "John's" aide.

Silently the man beckoned to Gold to leave, and took him to a pub at the corner of 42nd and Third Ave. Yakovlev was waiting with a smile. He apologized for not having contacted Gold for ten months, inquired if he had heard from Fuchs, and got down to business. He was going to send Gold to Paris in March, 1947, to meet "a prominent physicist" and obtain information from him.

Gold was willing. He nodded, and said, "I think I can arrange for leave as soon as the pressure of work at Abe Brothman's has eased up a bit."

Yakovlev sat up as if struck by an electric charge.

"You fool!" he almost shouted. The Russian dipped in his pocket, slammed down several bills on the table, and charged out of the place. Gold, struggling into his coat, followed him, whining for an explanation.

Brothman Watched By FBI

"You've spoiled 11 years of work!" the Russian thundered, while Gold trotted at his side. "You should have remembered that I told you in 1945 that Brothman was being watched by the F. B. I."

Yakovlev left almost immediately for Russia, and a worried and penitent Gold went back to work for Brothman. He should have remembered and been more careful, Gold conceded. He had served briefly as Brothman's courier in the early 1940's after Elizabeth Bentley — a higher-ranking member on the Communist courier roster — had complained to her boss and lover, Communist Agent Jacob Golos, that Brothman was not delivering enough valuable material for the Russians.

When Miss Bentley broke with communism she told the F. B. I. of her relationship with Brothman and how Gold had succeeded her in her work. Brothman was called before a grand jury in 1947. He told a smooth lie, then coached Gold to confirm it during his own testimony. Gold did so, and both went free.

But the F. B. I. now had a picture of God and a brief dossier, as a resut of that and a subsequent fruitess appearance before the jury. It was to prove one of the traps that caught him — and the historic track-down of Gold, and his confession, meant that the G-men could close in on the Greenglasses and Rosenbergs, the latter couple now standing in the shadow of the electric chair.

Merry-Go-Round

Unit, made up of some of the highest type men in Internal Revenue. It is their job to detect fraud. These men are trained in the rules of evidence and know their business.

When they have finished an investigation, and when their recommendation for prosecution has been OK'd by the senior special agent and the special agent in charge of a division, it is almost inconceivable that they have recommended prosecution of an innocent man. Yet during the Truman administration about 60 per cent of the tax-fraud cases later have been quashed in one of three places:

1. The chief counsel's office under Charles Oliphant, now resigned.

2. The Justice Department's tax division, under Lamar Caudle, also resigned.

3. U. S. Attorney's offices in different parts of the U.S.A.

The details of how this has been done will be told in a subsequent column. But meanwhile discouragement and frustration has spread through the ranks of the many honest tax collectors and special agents as never before.

One agent in the field can collect about $80 for every dollar spent on his salary and expenses—one of the biggest untapped sources of revenue in the nation. Yet, thanks to politics and corruption at the top, we have started on the path of the tax-evading nations of Europe where failure to collect taxes is the first step toward inequality and eventually Communism.

Sunday School Plans Party

FROSTBURG — Parents and members of the cradle roll, nursery, beginner, primary and junior classes of First English Baptist Sunday school have been invited to attend the annual Christmas party of the Sunday School to be held Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

The program will include a colored film strip, "The Shepherd's Watch". Refreshments will be served and Santa Claus will distribute gifts.

Mrs. Chester Stewart, cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. Howard Ward, department superintendent, and Mrs. Howard Ward, department superintendent, and Mrs. Neva Geary, general secretary, will be assisted by the following teachers, Misses Vivian Geary, Nona Miller, Della Offman, and Mesdames Charles Wiebrecht, Edgar McFarland, Melvin Ward, John McFarland, Bray Thompson and Thomas Geary.

Rev. Donald Voseller, pastor, has announced that a Christmas program will be given Sunday at 7:30 p. m., entitled "The Story of the First Christmas." The church choir, a reader and a film will be included in the presentation.

Bible Class Holds Christmas Dinner

FROSTBURG—The Loyalty Bible Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday School held its annual Christmas dinner and party a recent evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Close, Sand Spring. Mrs. Earl Boyer and Miss Melda Engle helped the hostess serve the dinner.

Mrs. Arch Davis conducted the business session. Gifts of money were voted to the church and the Tressler Orphans' Home, Loysville, Pa. The program consisted of a Christmas travelogue participated in by all present. Santa Claus distributed gifts. Rev. and Mrs. Harold R. Stoudt sang a duet.

Present at the affair were Mrs. John D. Close, Mrs. Arch Davis, Mrs. George Sires, Mrs. Arthur Wright, Mrs. Bertha Wittig, Mrs. Laura Pfeiffer, Mrs. Ada Dillon, Mrs. Marion Jenkins, Mrs. Bertha Arnold, Mrs. Cecil Engle, Mrs. Harry Bride, Mrs. Myrtle Knieriem, Mrs. Richard Hamill, Mrs. Eldridge Crowe, Mrs. Ronald Cosgrove, Mrs. Mary Ralston, Mrs. Everett Lemmert, Mrs. Edgar Frank, Mrs. Myrtle Steele, Rev. and Mrs. Harold R. Lonaconing Choristers Present Carol Service

LONACONING — The Choristers of the First Presbyterian Church presented their Christmas Carol service Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the church.

Characters in the pantomime were Allan Abbott and Johnny Keyes as two soldiers; Bobby Reidler as Joseph; Norma Lee Shaw as Mary; Helen Fairgrieve as an angel; Hugh Atkinson, Ronnie Pase and Jimmie Ritchie as the Three Kings.

Shirley Burt was organist and Dorothy Brown, director. Soloists were Bonnie Sue Lashbaugh, Gail Broadwater, Judy Moffatt, Bonnie Neat, Barbara Moses, Dottie Robertson, Louise Nightengale, Donna Stafford.

Duets were sung by Judy Atkinson and Donna Moffatt; Sally Steiding and Judy Marshall. A quintette composed of Donna Pase, Thelma Hadley, Marion Steiding, Marlene Tipton and Sally Williams, sang on the carol program.

Three Join Air Force, Army At Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Army and Air Force Recruiting Station has announced the enlistment of three Mineral County young men. Two veterans enlisted for the Air Force.

They were James William Bryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bryan, 11 Kenny Street, and William Maxwell Orndorff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orndorff, 3 Dundee Street, both of Piedmont.

Both men enlisted for four years in grade of private first class and were sent to the 1110th Personal Processing Squadron, Bolling Air Force Base, Washington.

Enlisting for his first tour of duty was Joseph Louis Porter, 20, RFD 2, Keyser. He enlisted in the Regular Army for three years and was sent to the 2053rd ASU Reception Center, Fort George G. Meade, for processing and further assignment.

Highest dive on record was made in 1918 from a cliff near Melbourne, Australia, by Alexander Wickham, a champion swimmer, who jumped 206 feet (or as high as a 17-story building).

Market Session Produces Mixture Of Gains, Losses

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Trading was highly selective on the stock market today and the result was strength in a handful of stocks and irregular price changes for most.

The overall statistics reflected the picking and choosing that went on throughout the session.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, for instance, advanced a dime to $97.90, but there were more declines than there were advances.

This simply indicated that the stocks listed in the averages were among the greater gainers.

The volume hit 1,290,000 shares, a little better than yesterday's 1,220,000 but still a slow pace.

There were 387 advances and 436 declines among the 1,131 issues traded. Fifteen stocks reached new highs and 36 dropped to new lows.

In the Associated Press averages, industrials advanced 30 cents utilities moved up a dime and rails remained unchanged.

The most active stock of the day was a normally inactive issue—Clopay Corp. The stock of the company, which manufactures products made from plastic film and paper, advanced 1⅛ at 6¾ on the sale of 25,400 shares.

There were nine advances and four declines among the 15 most active stocks. Also among them were the day's larger gainers and losers.

The 13th most active issue was Amerada Petroleum, which dropped three points at 147¾.

Three of the motor group, which gained strength late in the session, appeared on the list. General Motors, which moved ahead ⅝ at 51⅜, was third most active stocks; Chrysler, up 1⅛ at 70⅝, was tenth most active and Studebaker, ahead ¼ at 33⅜ was eleventh.

Standard Oil (NJ), the sixth most active issue, sold at 73¾, a new yearly high, during the day, but wound up a little under that figure —73⅝ for a gain of ½.

The market for the most part, however, was a mixture of gains and losses with price changes mostly in fractions.

Josephine Lillian Koelker vs. Robert Cornelius Koelker, No. 22499 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the Plaintiff from the Defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The Bill states that parties were married in Cumberland, Maryland, on August 22, 1930; that they lived together in Cumberland, Maryland, until on or about June 11, 1950, on which date defendant's conduct became so cruel and abusive that plaintiff's health, mental and physical, were greatly impaired and defendant thereafter abandoned and deserted the plaintiff; that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly down to the present time, is of at least eighteen months' duration, is deliberate and final and beyond hope of reconciliation.

That one child, Patricia K. Sweitzer, a married daughter aged 20, was born to parties of the marriage, that plaintiff has been a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, for more than one year last passed, and that defendant's whereabouts are unknown to plaintiff but that his last known address was Washington, D. C.

It is thereupon this 17th day of December, 1951, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff cause this order to be inserted in some newspaper publication in Allegany County, once a week for four weeks before the 19th day of January, 1952, giving notice to the said Robert Cornelius Koelker, absent defendant, of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 5th day of February, 1952, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

JOSEPH E. BODEN, Clerk.

"The Great A-Bomb Robbery"

By BOB CONSIDINE

(World Copyright 1951 by INS)

This is the ninth of 11 articles telling the story, as it never has been possible to tell it before, of how Russia stole America's A-bomb secrets, and the people it used in the fantastic cloak-and-dagger conspiracy.

Sgt. David Greenglass, a former member of the Young Communist League who was assigned during the war to work in the world's most sacrosanct tool shop, the one in Building E, Los Alamos, New Mexico, where the "trigger" of the A-bomb was engineered, was a thorough soul.

He was not too bright, but he was thorough. And his great idols in life were his brother-in-law and sister, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg — who now face the electric chair for passing along to Russia what the unhappily-placed sergeant was able to glean at his historic work.

A month after the end of World War II Greenglass came back to New York and gave Julius and his sister enough information to enable them to transcribe notes, descriptions and drawings of the vastly improved "lens" of the Nagasaki bomb.

The pleasure of the Rosenbergs made him feel very proud. And David joined in the laughter when Rosenberg confided to him that he had stolen a complete proximity fuse while on official business at the Emerson Radio Corporation, and had turned it over to the Russians.

Gold Ignored By "John"

David, mustered out with an honorable discharge, went to work for Julius in a machine shop. He had all but forgotten the grave risk he had taken at Los Alamos by the time Dr. Allan Nunn May, the British scientist who had delivered uranium samples and much information to the Russians while working on the A-project in Canada, was apprehended, confessed, and was given 10 years in prison.

But Dr. May and his convicted associates soon faded out of the press. David Greenglass breathed easier. He was making pretty good money working for Julius. In fact, he still had some of the $500 which Harry Gold had given to him, plus a $50 U. S. war bond which Ruth had bought at the time they received the $500.

Gold, in those early months after V-J Day and the return of Dr. Fuchs to England, found himself ignored by the apparatus for which he had been working for more than a decade. Perhaps it was just as well, he reasoned. He had taken many chances. . .

In 1946 Gold was forced to look around for a new job. The Pennsylvania Sugar Co., where he had worked for 17 years as a chemist, except for two brief periods of absence at college, closed the lab in which the gentle little man worked and was well liked.

Gold Makes Blunder

The job he accepted was one of the graver blunders of his life. He hooked on at $100 a week with the Abraham Brothman Associates, chemical research engineers who maintained a laboratory in Elmhurst, Queens. He was "chief chemist." Brothman was an old acquaintance.

Gold, too, noticed with alarm the arrest and conviction of Dr. May, but was relieved when the furore subsided. He had no way of knowing that the word "Fuchs" had appeared in Dr. May's seized notes. Fuchs was a closed incident in the life of Gold. And so, apparently, was "John" — the name by which he had known Soviet Vice Consul Yakovliev. He had not seen or heard from "John" for a long time.

Then, ten months after his last previous meeting with "John," on which occasion Gold turned over the last information Fuchs was to give him, Gold received in the mail two tickets to a boxing match. It was a pre-arranged signal, telling Gold to appear (at 8 p. m. on the date stamped on the tickets) at the Earl movie theater near the Yankee Stadium in New York City.

But the envelope had been addressed incorrectly and had taken too long to reach him. The date on the tickets had already passed. Gold waited tensely for several days, then received a phone call at his New York laboratory. The date was December 26, 1946.

"Harry Gold?" the voice asked.

"Yes."

"Have you been all right?" It was Yakovlev and by that question he was asking if Gold had suspected he was being followed.

"Yes."

"I'll meet you at the theater tonight at 8 o'clock."

Pub Is Meeting Place

Gold appeared, bought a ticket, and took a seat in the upstairs lounge. Presently a huge man approached him and quickly showed him a torn slip of paper which would be recognition signal for "John's" aide.

Silently the man beckoned to Gold to leave, and took him to a pub at the corner of 42nd and Third Ave. Yakovlev was waiting with a smile. He apologized for not having contacted Gold for ten months, inquired if he had heard from Fuchs, and got down to business. He was going to send Gold to Paris in March, 1947, to meet "a prominent physicist" and obtain information from him.

Gold was willing. He nodded, and said, "I think I can arrange for leave as soon as the pressure of work at Abe Brothman's has eased up a bit."

Yakovlev sat up as if struck by an electric charge.

"You fool!" he almost shouted. The Russian dipped in his pocket, slammed down several bills on the table, and charged out of the place. Gold, struggling into his coat, followed him, whining for an explanation.

Brothman Watched By FBI

"You've spoiled 11 years of work!" the Russian thundered, while Gold trotted at his side. "You should have remembered that I told you in 1945 that Brothman was being watched by the F. B. I."

Yakovlev left almost immediately for Russia, and a worried and penitent Gold went back to work for Brothman. He should have remembered and been more careful, Gold conceded. He had served briefly as Brothman's courier in the early 1940's after Elizabeth Bentley — a higher-ranking member on the Communist courier roster — had complained to her boss and lover, Communist Agent Jacob Golos, that Brothman was not delivering enough valuable material for the Russians.

When Miss Bentley broke with communism she told the F. B. I. of her relationship with Brothman and how Gold had succeeded her in her work. Brothman was called before a grand jury in 1947. He told a smooth lie, then coached Gold to confirm it during his own testimony. Gold did so, and both went free.

But the F. B. I. now had a picture of God and a brief dossier, as a resut of that and a subsequent fruitess appearance before the jury. It was to prove one of the traps that caught him — and the historic track-down of Gold, and his confession, meant that the G-men could close in on the Greenglasses and Rosenbergs, the latter couple now standing in the shadow of the electric chair.

Merry-Go-Round

Unit, made up of some of the highest type men in Internal Revenue. It is their job to detect fraud. These men are trained in the rules of evidence and know their business.

When they have finished an investigation, and when their recommendation for prosecution has been OK'd by the senior special agent and the special agent in charge of a division, it is almost inconceivable that they have recommended prosecution of an innocent man. Yet during the Truman administration about 60 per cent of the tax-fraud cases later have been quashed in one of three places:

1. The chief counsel's office under Charles Oliphant, now resigned.
2. The Justice Department's tax division, under Lamar Caudle, also resigned.
3. U. S. Attorney's offices in different parts of the U.S.A.

The details of how this has been done will be told in a subsequent column. But meanwhile discouragement and frustration has spread through the ranks of the many honest tax collectors and special agents as never before.

One agent in the field can collect about $80 for every dollar spent on his salary and expenses—one of the biggest untapped sources of revenue in the nation. Yet, thanks to politics and corruption at the top, we have started on the path of the tax-evading nations of Europe where failure to collect taxes is the first step toward inequality and eventually Communism.

Sunday School Plans Party

FROSTBURG — Parents and members of the cradle roll, nursery, beginner, primary and junior classes of First English Baptist Sunday school have been invited to attend the annual Christmas party of the Sunday School to be held Friday evening at 7 o'clock.

The program will include a colored film strip, "The Shepherd's Watch". Refreshments will be served and Santa Claus will distribute gifts.

Mrs. Chester Stewart, cradle roll superintendent, Mrs. Howard Ward, department superintendent, and Mrs. Howard Ward, department superintendent, and Mrs. Neva Geary, general secretary, will be assisted by the following teachers, Misses Vivian Geary, Nona Miller, Della Offman, and Mesdames Charles Wiebrecht, Edgar McFarland, Melvin Ward, John McFarland, Bray Thompson and Thomas Geary.

Rev. Donald Voseller, pastor, has announced that a Christmas program will be given Sunday at 7:30 p. m., entitled "The Story of the First Christmas." The church choir, a reader and a film will be included in the presentation.

Bible Class Holds Christmas Dinner

FROSTBURG—The Loyalty Bible Class of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday School held its annual Christmas dinner and party a recent evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Close, Sand Spring. Mrs. Earl Boyer and Miss Melda Engle helped the hostess serve the dinner.

Mrs. Arch Davis conducted the business session. Gifts of money were voted to the church and the Tressler Orphans' Home, Loysville, Pa. The program consisted of a Christmas travelogue participated in by all present. Santa Claus distributed gifts. Rev. and Mrs. Harold R. Stoudt sang a duet.

Present at the affair were Mrs. John D. Close, Mrs. Arch Davis, Mrs. George Sires, Mrs. Arthur Wright, Mrs. Bertha Wittig, Mrs. Laura Pfeiffer, Mrs. Ada Dillon, Mrs. Marion Jenkins, Mrs. Bertha Arnold, Mrs. Cecil Engle, Mrs. Harry Bride, Mrs. Myrtle Knieriem, Mrs. Richard Hamill, Mrs. Eldridge Crowe, Mrs. Ronald Cosgrove, Mrs. Mary Ralston, Mrs. Everett Lemmert, Mrs. Edgar Frank, Mrs. Myrtle Steele, Rev. and Mrs. Harold R. Lonaconing Choristers Present Carol Service

LONACONING — The Choristers of the First Presbyterian Church presented their Christmas Carol service Sunday at 7:30 p. m. in the church.

Characters in the pantomine were Allan Abbott and Johnny Keyes as two soldiers; Bobby Reidler as Joseph; Norma Lee Shaw as Mary; Helen Fairgrieve as an angel; Hugh Atkinson, Ronnie Pase and Jimmie Ritchie as the Three Kings.

Shirley Burt was organist and Dorothy Brown, director. Soloists were Bonnie Sue Lashbaugh, Gail Broadwater, Judy Moffatt, Bonnie Neat, Barbara Moses, Dottie Robertson, Louise Nightengale, Donna Stafford.

Duets were sung by Judy Atkinson and Donna Moffatt; Sally Steiding and Judy Marshall. A quintette composed of Donna Pase, Thelma Hadley, Marion Steiding, Marlene Tipton and Sally Williams, sang on the carol program.

Three Join Air Force, Army At Keyser

KEYSER, W. Va.—The Army and Air Force Recruiting Station has announced the enlistment of three Mineral County young men. Two veterans enlisted for the Air Force.

They were James William Bryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bryan, 11 Kenny Street, and William Maxwell Orndorff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Orndorff, 3 Dundee Street, both of Piedmont.

Both men enlisted for four years in grade of private first class and were sent to the 1110th Personal Processing Squadron, Bolling Air Force Base, Washington.

Enlisting for his first tour of duty was Joseph Louis Porter, 20, RFD 2, Keyser. He enlisted in the Regular Army for three years and was sent to the 2053rd ASU Reception Center, Fort George G. Meade, for processing and further assignment.

Highest dive on record was made in 1918 from a cliff near Melbourne, Australia, by Alexander Wickham, a champion swimmer, who jumped 206 feet (or as high as a 17-story building).

Market Session Produces Mixture Of Gains, Losses

NEW YORK, Dec. 18 (AP)—Trading was highly selective on the stock market today and the result was strength in a handful of stocks and irregular price changes for most.

The overall statistics reflected the picking and choosing that went on throughout the session.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks, for instance, advanced a dime to $97.90, but there were more declines than there were advances.

This simply indicated that the stocks listed in the averages were among the greater gainers.

The volume hit 1,290,000 shares, a little better than yesterday's 1,220,000 but still a slow pace.

There were 387 advances and 436 declines among the 1,131 issues traded. Fifteen stocks reached new highs and 36 dropped to new lows.

In the Associated Press averages, industrials advanced 30 cents utilities moved up a dime and rails remained unchanged.

The most active stock of the day was a normally inactive issue—Clopay Corp. The stock of the company, which manufactures products made from plastic film and paper, advanced 1⅛ at 6¾ on the sale of 25,400 shares.

There were nine advances and four declines among the 15 most active stocks. Also among them were the day's larger gainers and losers.

The 13th most active issue was Amerada Petroleum, which dropped three points at 147¾.

Three of the motor group, which gained strength late in the session, appeared on the list. General Motors, which moved ahead ⅝ at 51⅝, was third most active stocks; Chrysler, up 1⅛ at 70⅝, was tenth most active and Studebaker, ahead ¼ at 33⅜ was eleventh.

Standard Oil (NJ), the sixth most active issue, sold at 73¾, a new yearly high, during the day, but wound up a little under that figure —73⅝ for a gain of ½.

The market for the most part, however, was a mixture of gains and losses with price changes mostly in fractions.

Josephine Lillian Koelker vs. Robert Cornelius Koelker, No. 22499 Equity, in the Circuit Court for Allegany County, Maryland.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION

The object of this suit is to procure a decree divorcing the Plaintiff from the Defendant A VINCULO MATRIMONII.

The Bill states that parties were married in Cumberland, Maryland, on August 22, 1930; that they lived together in Cumberland, Maryland, until on or about June 11, 1950, on which date defendant's conduct became so cruel and abusive that plaintiff's health, mental and physical, were greatly impaired and defendant thereafter abandoned and deserted the plaintiff; that said abandonment has continued uninterruptedly down to the present time, is of at least eighteen months' duration, is deliberate and final, and beyond hope of reconciliation.

That one child, Patricia K. Sweitzer, a married daughter aged 20, was born to parties of the marriage, that plaintiff has been a resident of Allegany County, Maryland, for more than one year last passed, and that defendant's whereabouts are unknown to plaintiff but that his last known address was Washington, D. C.

It is thereupon this 17th day of December, 1951, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Allegany County, that the plaintiff cause this order to be inserted in some newspaper publication in Allegany County, once a week for four weeks before the 15th day of January, 1952, giving notice to the said Robert Cornelius Koelker, absent defendant, of the object and substance of this Bill and warning him to be and appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 5th day of February, 1952, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not be passed as prayed.

Second Cold Wave Hits As Area Digs Out

Sudden Storm Dumps Seven Inches Of Snow On County

"Big Freeze" To Continue Over Weekend

By BERNARD E. SITTER
News Staff Writer

Another cold blast headed into the Tri-State area early this morning as residents were digging out from under seven to 11 inches of new snow.

The second sudden storm in five days blanketed the area with dry, drifting snow yesterday, and in many sections the precipitation was to turn to sleet and rain.

In Cumberland, Weather Observer Robert R. Golden said 7.6 inches of snow fell on top of last Friday's five inches.

Severe gusts from 30 to 35 miles an hour caused snow to drift over streets and highways almost as fast as snowplows could remove it.

All Highways Open

All roads in the area were open, but State Police urged that all unnecessary travel be postponed until the drifts begin to thaw.

The State Roads Commission locally called out all its 60 pieces of plowing equipment to keep highways open. G. Baites Chaires, SRC district engineer, said most of the 180 plow crewmen would work through the night after working all day yesterday—more than 24 hours at a stretch.

Drifting snow at some points threatened to block highways completely, and no attempt to cinder the roads was made until winds abated.

Trucks Jack-Knife

All roads in the area were reported treacherous. On Sideling Hill Mountain east of here in Washington County, big trailer trucks jackknifed across US Route 40, blocking traffic.

Cumberland streets were for the most part passable with chains, but two physicians said they had been almost unable to reach Memorial Hospital early last night.

City buses were running about on time last night, although they had been late earlier in the day. Intercity buses were from 45 to 60 minutes late.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad said only one train was slightly late due to the storm, but the Western Maryland Railway said its No. 3 train from Hagerstown was about 90 minutes late.

11 Inches In Hagerstown

At Hagerstown, where the overcast poured down 10 to 11 inches of snow, Fairchild Aircraft Division closed down its big operations because workers couldn't get to their jobs.)

Cumberland taxi companies, which hit an all-time record Saturday, neared it again yesterday, but drivers said the powdery, drifting snow slowed them down and kept them from breaking the record.

Temperatures were not particularly low in the area, but high winds were reported everywhere. Deal, Pa., reported the lowest reading of 12 above, with some 15 inches of snow on the ground.

At Rockwood, Pa., the temperature was 20 degrees, and Connellsville recorded 26. At Thomas, W. Va., the mercury stood at 6 above zero.

Slush Freezes

In nearby West Virginia, slush on highways froze into a treacherous sheet of ice as temperatures dipped lower.

In portions of the state snow reached a depth of eight to 10 inches. The Road Commission advised

GEORGE F. HAZELWOOD

Hazelwood Will Head Grand Jury In January

48 Names Drawn For Court Service

Names of 48 Allegany County men were drawn yesterday afternoon at the Court House here by court officials for jury service during the January term of Allegany County Circuit Court.

George F. Hazelwood, this city, head of the George F. Hazelwood Construction Company, was designated as foreman of the 23-man grand jury which will convene January 7 to consider indictment of persons charged with various offenses.

Report January 21

The 25 men drawn for petit jury service will not have to report for duty until January 21.

Drawn with Hazelwood for grand jury service were Lewis J. Lebeck, Milford L. Crabtree, John J. Dolphin, Jr., Fred W. Mills, C. Glen Watson, Jr., Clinton F. Snyder, Lonnie I. Jackson and Ralph G. Smeltz, all this city; Okey Michael and John L. Seymour, both Westernport; Walter F. Blank and John L. Poland, both Mt. Savage; Edgar H. Capel, Vale Summit; Charles Albert Smouse, Bedford Road; Robert O. Slemmer, LaVale; John R. Kiddy, Pekin; Alex C. Chatain, Ellerslie; Delvan C. Gainer, North Branch; Andrew Dunn and William Kroll, both Frostburg; James M. Baker, Ocean, and Robert Jones, Corriganville.

Petit Jurors

Called for petit jury duty are Harry M. Brotemarkle, Michael J. Malone, Louis A. Lippold, John L. Hull, William M. Daily, Frank E. Naughton, Albert M. Robinette, Harry G. Appel, John V. Lindner, Robert M. Boden, Linden M. Gump, George P. Giatras and John H. Dreyer, all of this city; Harry T. Duckworth, McCoole; Herman A. Filsinger, Eckhart; William M. Shaffer, Westernport; Earl F. Stonestreet, Flintstone; Russell Hosken and Zack T. Arnold, both Frostburg; Delbert R. Kitzmiller, LaVale; Albert G. Slider, Oldtown; Daniel Williams, Mt. Savage; H. Glenn Boyd, Luke; John J. Picken, Lonaconing, and Daniel W. Chapman, Shaft.

Present for the drawing were Associate Judges George Henderson and Morgan C. Harris, Clerk Joseph E. Boden, Deputy Clerk C. K. McDonald, Sheriff Edward R. Muir and Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis; Irvin J. Neat and C. William McDermott, registrars for the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors, and Robert B. Thomas, court stenographer.

Home Fire Causes Damage In Unit Of Mapleside Project

Keeping the home-fires burning sometimes results in cause for alarm and the services of the fire department even though the house may not be completed.

An overheated stove yesterday morning in one of the unfinished units of the Cumberland Housing Project in Mapleside resulted in firemen being called.

Plumbers working on Unit B-16 built a fire and the stove overheated. Firemen from South End rushed to the scene at 8:50 a. m. and checked the blaze which did some damage to the lower and upper floor as well as part of the insulation.

At 6:30 p. m. Central firemen went to the corner of Baltimore and Centre Streets where sparks were reported coming from the street decorations. No damage was caused but some of the Christmas lights were shut out.

Schools To Open On Full Schedule In County Today

Public schools in Allegany County, which closed at noon yesterday so pupils would be assured of getting home safely in the heavy snow storm, are expected to operate on a full schedule today, Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said late yesterday.

Kopp added that bus drivers will be advised to use their own discretion if roads prove too bad for travel this morning. Virtually all buses made scheduled trips to schools yesterday but attendance was off upwards of 25 per cent.

Record Number Of Calls Jam Phone Office

Extra Operators Called To Work

The central office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company "was jammed" here yesterday and a record number of over 124,000 local phone calls was placed by city residents, Richard E. Harman, manager, said last night.

The near-paralyzing effects of the wintry weather which invaded Cumberland last Friday and became worse yesterday morning was directly responsible for the deluge of calls, Harman added. Long distance calls from here were not delayed too much yesterday, although some calls to Pittsburgh were held up about an hour during the morning.

Operators Notified

All available operators were called out yesterday in an attempt to alleviate the tieup, Harman added. Many workers volunteered to stay on the job while numerous operators took over a switchboard before their regular shift in an attempt to assure best possible public service.

Complaints were flooding Harman's office throughout the day but the unprecedented number of calls were just "too much to handle" with the equipment available.

Little damage was reported to lines outside the central office throughout the Cumberland area other than those occurring on a normal day, Robert C. Lord, plant wire chief said. He added this picture could be changed easily with a heavy rain or sleet storm atop the present snow.

Maintenance Crews Set

Maintenance crews are in readiness for any emergency which may arise due to weather changes, Lord noted.

Since many of the operators were unable to get transportation to and from the central office, the telephone company officials set up a "shuttle" system and trucks and autos of the firm were put into service to get employes to work.

Actually the present tieup began on Friday when the unexpected winter snowstorm hit this area, Harman noted yesterday. He said a record number of 120,000 local calls had been placed on that day and over the weekend the normal number of about 80,000 calls has been surpassed. On Monday about 117,000 calls were placed by local residents and handled through the central office.

Approximately 185 local and long distance operators are employed at central office, Mrs. Helen C. Johnson, chief operator, said yesterday. The number of local positions at the office switchboards is 39 and the number of toll or long distance positions 21.

TELEPHONE SWITCHBOARD JAM—Yesterday a record number of telephone calls were placed at central office here resulting in a jam. A total of over 124,000 was expected to be handled according to Richard E. Harman, manager. Many operators stayed on the job while others reported for work before the change of shift in order to help in alleviating the tieup. Mrs. Helen C. Johnson, chief operator, was kept busy at the office assisting in her work. Shown above is a switchboard with each wire representing a call being handled. Medical Care Provided For 2,815 Persons

Plan Costs $7,174 During September

Medical care was being provided for 2,815 residents of Allegany County on December 1, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

The list includes 2,538 indigent persons who were certified for the Medical Care program by the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Another 277 persons classed as "medically indigent" were certified for the service by the County Health Department.

State Pays Costs

Funds for the program which includes free medical service and drugs are provided through the Maryland State Department of Health.

Cost of Medical Care service in this county during September was $7,174.40, highest in the state.

During that month, 759 patients were cared for, at a cost of $4,310.77 for physicians, $127 for dentists, $2,679.63 for pharmacists and $57 miscellaneous expenses.

The Medical Care service was inaugurated in Maryland in 1945 to provide medical care for those who cannot afford to pay for the service.

A number of other states have since adopted plans modeled after the Maryland system.

Fees Are Set

Set fees are provided for doctors under the Medical Care program. They are $2 for an office call, $3 for home calls during the day and $4 at night.

Pharmacists provide drugs under the service at a reduced rate.

When persons are certified for

Big Snowfall Fails To Halt Cresaptown Health Clinics

Mother Breaks Trail For Mile To Attend

It takes more than a big snow to stop Allegany County Health Department nurses.

Miss Margaret Morrissey, public health nurse, successfully completed two clinics scheduled in Cresaptown yesterday in spite of a 7.6 inch snowfall which snarled traffic in that area.

Miss Morrissey reported that all but four of the 62 first graders slated for an immunization clinic at the school turned up yesterday.

Several mothers braved the storm yesterday afternoon to attend a well baby clinic at Cresaptown School.

One brave mother arrived at the clinic after trudging over a mile, carrying her little baby safely wrapped in a blanket.

Dr. Thomas Robinson, who conducted the clinic, turned up dressed for the weather and wearing his old Army boots.

The Red Cross called off its plans to transport mothers from the Danville area to the clinic due to the weather.

A similar clinic scheduled yesterday at Pennsylvania Avenue School did not fare so well. Dr. Blaine M. Schindler reported to the Health Department yesterday afternoon that nobody showed up.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, said Health Department personnel generally were able to make their rounds yesterday in spite of the weather.

The Health Department office in the Public Safety Building will be closed Monday and Tuesday for the Christmas holidays.

Gas Officials Will Conduct Firemen Class

The second in a series of indoor classes for city firemen will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Central Fire Station, Virgil A. Parker, chief, said last night.

James E. Batdorf and Robert Hobell, foremen of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company will lecture to the group on what city firemen could be able to handle in the way of fires resulting from gas, and means of combatting gas fires.

Batdorf said last night the Ansul fire extingusher is used by the local gas company. The city fire department has such extinguishers as part of their equipment.

Last month a talk and demonstration was given by Harry G. Grimes, line superintendent of the Potomac Edison Company. Robert C. Long, assistant fire chief, is in charge of the indoor instructions and he said it is hoped to get a representative from each of the public utilities and safety departments of local and area industries to give lectures.

Rescue work and life saving are also included in the program. Last Sunday according to Long, he began conducting classes of basic fire fighting, which included fire department discipline, local and state laws pertaining to fire departments as well as other rules and regulations in a fire department.

This is the first in a series of 20 sessions of three hours each sanctioned by the Fire School of the University of Maryland. Long said each firemen is registered for the course and a quiz given at the completion of each session. Firemen making a certain percentage in the class room instruction will receive a certificate from the University, Long added.

Radcliffe Freed

William Radcliffe, Maple Street, who was arrested by City Police in conection with the theft of 25 cartons of cigarets Sunday from a South End grocery store, was released yesterday after being questioned in the State's Attorney's Office.

LaVale School Bid Accepted

George Construction Company yesterday was awarded the contract to construct a three-room addition to LaVale School and make other improvements on a low bid of $43,295.

The Allegany County Board of Education accepted the bid at a meeting yesterday, according to Superintendent Charles L. Kopp. Work on the addition, expected to be completed in six to eight months, will begin as soon as there is a break in the severe weather conditions.

Two other bids were submitted to the Board of Education December 11 by local contractors. They were from George F. Hazelwood Company and John I. Vandegrift Company.

Party Postponed

The children's Christmas party to be given tonight in the lecture hall of the First Presbyterian Church, by the Men's Club, has been cancelled because of the weather.

Self Employed Social Security Tax Mandatory

Revenue Office Here Explains 1951 Law

According to requests for information received at the local Internal Revenue office, R. J. Stakem, division chief, noted "it appears that quite a number of self-employed persons are under the impression that tax on self-employed income is optional with the self-employed individual."

Stakem said this idea is just the opposite, that income tax on self-employed income is mandatory and must be filed along with the individual's regular income tax returns.

New Law Explained

Stakem stressed the following important facts: If an individual works for himself in almost any trade or business as a sole owner or partner, and if his net earnings from self-employment in 1951 are $400 or more, and he does not have $3,600 or more in wages or salaries covered by social security in 1951, he is affected by three factors.

First, he is probably now covered by the new social security law and required to pay from $9 to $81 self-employment tax with his 1951 individual income tax return.

Second, Stakem said, his 1951 earnings will count toward old age and survivors insurance protection for him and his family.

Third, he will need a personal social security account number when he files his income tax return.

Need Social Security Card

Stakem particularly stressed that every self-employed person must have a social security card and number. If he does not have a social security card, Stakem said, he should apply for one immediately at his social security office or get an application at his local post office.

The tax will be paid as part of his income tax, Stakem explained. The rate will be two and one-quarter per cent on self-employment income up to a maximum of $3,600.

The computation will be made on a separate Schedule C to be filed with his individual income tax return, Form 1040. This schedule will give a detailed explanation of the requirements. If it is not sent to the self-employed individual with his income tax blanks, he should request it from the collector.

Task Of Clearing Names Of War Prisoners Begins

The Defense Department last night began releasing the list of Americans named by the Communists as held in Prisoner-Of-War camps in Korea.

The Department emphasized that it "can not vouch for the accuracy" of the information since it was "supplied by enemy sources."

The Department also declared that the official casualty status of those listed "will not be changed by virtue of the enemy having reported them as prisoners of war."

The list is expected to take perhaps 48 hours to complete.

During that time, each hour, names checked together with home addresses and names of next of kin, are released to the Associated Press.

As these names are sent over wires of the press service, the Cumberland papers will publish those identified as being from this area.

At midnight last night, none of the hourly releases contained names of missing men from Cumberland or the Tri-State area.

Street Workers Strive To Clear Snow From City

All Equipment Is Put In Use

All available Street Department equipment and men were put on duty yesterday as the fresh snowfall hit.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said four snow plows, two graders and the snow loader were working to clear the snow off the streets.

No attempts were made to cinder the streets, he added, since cinders would have only been ground into the soft snow.

Crews were slated to begin work in the business section at midnight to clear that area of snow.

Contrary to the experience of many motorists, Corrigan said travel in general was possible in most of the city when chains were used but that motorists without chains were having difficulty on the hills.

The heavy snowfall came just as the Street Department was beginning to catch up on last Friday's snow.

Corrigan said all that could be attempted yesterday was to clear bus routes and main arteries of the city, adding it was impossible to comply with a number of requests including several appeals to clear alleys so cars could be taken from garages.

Street Department employes have been working overtime since Friday with virtually all working double shifts each day. One worker put in 40 hours work in two days.

Corrigan said that unless the weather turns cold today, most of the main streets of the city will be in fairly good shape by night fall.

Skilled Workers Data Is Sought By Chamber

Survey Is Underway By Promotion Group

A survey is under way today to determine the number of skilled workers in specific classifications that could be made available for potential new industry in the Cumberland area.

A particular objective is to ascertain the number of such persons who are presently employed elsewhere but who would return to this area if employment became available here.

The survey is being conducted under the joint auspices of the Cumberland and Allegany County Industrial Promotion Company and the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Skilled Men Sought

Primarily, the two agencies seek to determine the availability of men under 45 with machine shop skills, particularly tool and die workers.

William C. Walsh and Joseph M. Naughton, presidents of the two groups, explained the purposes of the survey in a joint statement.

"We wish to arrive at a fair estimate of the number of workers, in and out of Cumberland, who might qualify for employment here as tool and die workers, milling machine operators, turret lathe operators and machinists," they said.

"We already have one inquiry and it is possible we may receive others. We wish to determine the facts so that we may report them.

Seek Work Elsewhere

"Some persons with the required skills have left this area to seek employment elsewhere. Their homes and families, however, are still here. It has been reported to us that many of these persons would return to the Cumberland area if they could get employment here. It is this number we wish particularly to determine. The number of these persons who would return here will help to determine whether new industry could be attracted here.

"We want to get this word to the wives, mothers or other relatives of persons who have the required skills but are presently employed in other cities. We ask them to determine and inform us whether the wage earners of those families will return if employment can be obtained here.

Data Required

"To help us get the necessary facts, we also need to know the age, qualifications, work experience and the hourly wage rate of such persons.

"We emphasize that there is no

Second Cold Wave Hits As Area Digs Out

Sudden Storm Dumps Seven Inches Of Snow On County

"Big Freeze" To Continue Over Weekend

By BERNARD E. SITTER
News Staff Writer

Another cold blast headed into the Tri-State area early this morning as residents were digging out from under seven to 11 inches of new snow.

The second sudden storm in five days blanketed the area with dry, drifting snow yesterday, and in many sections the precipitation was to turn to sleet and rain.

In Cumberland, Weather Observer Robert R. Golden said 7.6 inches of snow fell on top of last Friday's five inches.

Severe gusts from 30 to 35 miles an hour caused snow to drift over streets and highways almost as fast as snowplows could remove it.

Medical Care Provided For 2,815 Persons

Plan Costs $7,174 During September

Medical care was being provided for 2,815 residents of Allegany County on December 1, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

The list includes 2,538 indigent persons who were certified for the Medical Care program by the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Another 277 persons classed as "medically indigent" were certified for the service by the County Health Department.

State Pays Costs

Funds for the program which includes free medical service and drugs are provided through the Maryland State Department of Health.

Cost of Medical Care service in this county during September was $7,174.40, highest in the state.

During that month, 759 patients were cared for, at a cost of $4,310.77 for physicians, $127 for dentists, $2,679.63 for pharmacists and $57 miscellaneous expenses.

The Medical Care service was inaugurated in Maryland in 1945 to provide medical care for those who cannot afford to pay for the service.

A number of other states have since adopted plans modeled after the Maryland system.

Fees Are Set

Set fees are provided for doctors under the Medical Care program. They are $2 for an office call, $3 for home calls during the day and $4 at night.

Big Snowfall Fails To Halt Cresaptown Health Clinics

Mother Breaks Trail For Mile To Attend

It takes more than a big snow to stop Allegany County Health Department nurses.

Miss Margaret Morrissey, public health nurse, successfully completed two clinics scheduled in Cresaptown yesterday in spite of a 7.6 inch snowfall which snarled traffic in that area.

Miss Morrissey reported that all but four of the 62 first graders slated for an immunization clinic at the school turned up yesterday.

Several mothers braved the storm yesterday afternoon to attend a well baby clinic at Cresaptown School.

One brave mother arrived at the clinic after trudging over a mile, carrying her little baby safely wrapped in a blanket.

Dr. Thomas Robinson, who conducted the clinic, turned up dressed for the weather and wearing his old Army boots.

The Red Cross called off its plans to transport mothers from the Danville area to the clinic due to the weather.

A similar clinic scheduled yesterday at Pennsylvania Avenue School did not fare so well. Dr. Blaine M. Schindler reported to the Health Department yesterday afternoon that nobody showed up.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, said Health Department personnel generally were able to make their rounds yesterday in spite of the weather.

The Health Department office in the Public Safety Building will be closed Monday and Tuesday for the Christmas holidays.

Gas Officials Will Conduct Firemen Class

The second in a series of indoor classes for city firemen will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Central Fire Station, Virgil A. Parker, chief, said last night.

James E. Batdorf and Robert Hobell, foremen of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company will lecture to the group on what city firemen could be able to handle in the way of fires resulting from gas, and means of combatting gas fires.

Batdorf said last night the Ansul fire extingusher is used by the local gas company. The city fire department has such extinguishers as part of their equipment.

Last month a talk and demonstration was given by Harry G. Grimes, line superintendent of the Potomac Edison Company. Robert C. Long, assistant fire chief, is in charge of the indoor instructions and he said it is hoped to get a representative from each of the public utilities and safety departments of local and area industries to give lectures.

Rescue work and life saving are also included in the program. Last Sunday according to Long, he began conducting classes of basic fire fighting, which included fire department discipline, local and state laws pertaining to fire departments as well as other rules and regulations in a fire department.

This is the first in a series of 20 sessions of three hours each sanctioned by the Fire School of the University of Maryland. Long said each firemen is registered for the course and a quiz given at the completion of each session. Firemen making a certain percentage in the class room instruction will receive a certificate from the University, Long added.

Radcliffe Freed

William Radcliffe, Maple Street, who was arrested by City Police in conection with the theft of 25 cartons of cigarets Sunday from a South End grocery store, was released yesterday after being questioned in the State's Attorney's Office.

LaVale School Bid Accepted

George Construction Company yesterday was awarded the contract to construct a three-room addition to LaVale School and make other improvements on a low bid of $43,295.

The Allegany County Board of Education accepted the bid at a meeting yesterday, according to Superintendent Charles L. Kopp. Work on the addition, expected to be completed in six to eight months, will begin as soon as there is a break in the severe weather conditions.

Two other bids were submitted to the Board of Education December 11 by local contractors. They were from George F. Hazelwood Company and John I. Vandegrift Company.

Party Postponed

The children's Christmas party to be given tonight in the lecture hall of the First Presbyterian Church, by the Men's Club, has been cancelled because of the weather.

Self Employed Social Security Tax Mandatory

Revenue Office Here Explains 1951 Law

According to requests for information received at the local Internal Revenue office, R. J. Stakem, division chief, noted "it appears that quite a number of self-employed persons are under the impression that tax on self-employed income is optional with the self-employed individual."

Stakem said this idea is just the opposite, that income tax on self-employed income is mandatory and must be filed along with the individual's regular income tax returns.

New Law Explained

Stakem stressed the following important facts: If an individual works for himself in almost any trade or business as a sole owner or partner, and if his net earnings from self-employment in 1951 are $400 or more, and he does not have $3,600 or more in wages or salaries covered by social security in 1951, he is affected by three factors.

First, he is probably now covered by the new social security law and required to pay from $9 to $81 self-employment tax with his 1951 individual income tax return.

Second, Stakem said, his 1951 earnings will count toward old age and survivors insurance protection for him and his family.

Third, he will need a personal social security account number when he files his income tax return.

Need Social Security Card

Stakem particularly stressed that every self-employed person must have a social security card and number. If he does not have a social security card, Stakem said, he should apply for one immediately at his social security office or get an application at his local post office.

The tax will be paid as part of his income tax, Stakem explained. The rate will be two and one-quarter per cent on self-employment income up to a maximum of $3,600.

The computation will be made on a separate Schedule C to be filed with his individual income tax return, Form 1040. This schedule will give a detailed explanation of the requirements. If it is not sent to the self-employed individual with his income tax blanks, he should request it from the collector.

Street Workers Strive To Clear Snow From City

All Equipment Is Put In Use

All available Street Department equipment and men were put on duty yesterday as the fresh snowfall hit.

Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, said four snow plows, two graders and the snow loader were working to clear the snow off the streets.

No attempts were made to cinder the streets, he added, since cinders would have only been ground into the soft snow.

Crews were slated to begin work in the business section at midnight to clear that area of snow.

Contrary to the experience of many motorists, Corrigan said travel in general was possible in most of the city when chains were used but that motorists without chains were having difficulty on the hills.

The heavy snowfall came just as the Street Department was beginning to catch up on last Friday's snow.

Corrigan said all that could be attempted yesterday was to clear bus routes and main arteries of the city, adding it was impossible to comply with a number of requests, including several appeals to clean alleys so cars could be taken from garages.

Street Department employes have been working overtime since Friday, with virtually all working double shifts each day. One worker put in 40 hours work in two days.

Corrigan said that unless the weather turns cold today, most of the main streets of the city will be in fairly good shape by night fall.

Skilled Workers Data Is Sought By Chamber

Survey Is Underway By Promotion Group

A survey is under way today to determine the number of skilled workers in specific classifications that could be made available for potential new industry in the Cumberland area.

A particular objective is to ascertain the number of such persons who are presently employed elsewhere but who would return to this area if employment became available here.

The survey is being conducted under the joint auspices of the Cumberland and Allegany County Industrial Promotion Company and the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce.

Skilled Men Sought

Primarily, the two agencies seek to determine the availability of men under 45 with machine shop skills, particularly tool and die workers.

William C. Walsh and Joseph M. Naughton, presidents of the two groups, explained the purposes of the survey in a joint statement.

"We wish to arrive at a fair estimate of the number of workers, in and out of Cumberland, who might qualify for employment here as tool and die workers, milling machine operators, turret lathe operators and machinists," they said.

"We already have one inquiry and it is possible we may receive others. We wish to determine the facts so that we may report them.

Seek Work Elsewhere

"Some persons with the required skills have left this area to seek employment elsewhere. Their homes and families, however, are still here. It has been reported to us that many of these persons would return to the Cumberland area if they could get employment here. It is this number we wish particularly to determine. The number of these persons who would return here will help to determine whether new industry could be attracted here.

"We want to get this word to the wives, mothers or other relatives of persons who have the required skills but are presently employed in other cities. We ask them to determine and inform us whether the wage earners of those families will return if employment can be obtained here.

Data Required

"To help us get the necessary facts, we also need to know the age, qualifications, work experience and the hourly wage rate of such persons.

"We emphasize that there is no

Second Cold Wave Hits As Area Digs Out

Sudden Storm Dumps Seven Inches Of Snow On County

"Big Freeze" To Continue Over Weekend

By BERNARD E. SITTER
News Staff Writer

Another cold blast headed into the Tri-State area early this morning as residents were digging out from under seven to 11 inches of new snow.

The second sudden storm in five days blanketed the area with dry, drifting snow yesterday, and in many sections the precipitation was to turn to sleet and rain.

GEORGE F. HAZELWOOD

In Cumberland, Weather Observer Robert R. Golden said 7.6 inches of snow fell on top of last Friday's five inches.

Severe gusts from 30 to 35 miles an hour caused snow to drift over streets and highways almost as fast as snowplows could remove it.

All Highways Open

All roads in the area were open, but State Police urged that all unnecessary travel be postponed until the drifts begin to thaw.

The State Roads Commission locally called out all its 60 pieces of plowing equipment to keep highways open. G. Baites Chaires, SRC district engineer, said most of the 180 plow crewmen would work through the night after working all day yesterday—more than 24 hours at a stretch.

Drifting snow at some points threatened to block highways completely, and no attempt to cinder the roads was made until winds abated.

Trucks Jack-Knife

All roads in the area were reported treacherous. On Sideling Hill Mountain east of here in Washington County, big trailer trucks jackknifed across US Route 40, blocking traffic.

Cumberland streets were for the most part passable with chains, but two physicians said they had been almost unable to reach Memorial Hospital early last night.

City buses were running about on time last night, although they had been late earlier in the day. Intercity buses were from 45 to 60 minutes late.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad said only one train was slightly late due to the storm, but the Western Maryland Railway said its No. 3 train from Hagerstown was about 90 minutes late.

11 Inches In Hagerstown

At Hagerstown, where the overcast poured down 10 to 11 inches of snow, Fairchild Aircraft Division closed down its big operations because workers couldn't get to their jobs.)

Cumberland taxi companies, which hit an all-time record Saturday, neared it again yesterday, but drivers said the powdery, drifting snow slowed them down and kept them from breaking the record.

Temperatures were not particularly low in the area, but high winds were reported everywhere. Deal, Pa., reported the lowest reading of 12 above, with some 15 inches of snow on the ground.

At Rockwood, Pa., the temperature was 20 degrees, and Connellsville recorded 26. At Thomas, W. Va., the mercury stood at 6 above zero.

Slush Freezes

In nearby West Virginia, slush on highways froze into a treacherous sheet of ice as temperatures dipped lower.

In portions of the state snow reached a depth of eight to 10 inches. The Road Commission advised

Hazelwood Will Head Grand Jury In January

48 Names Drawn For Court Service

Names of 48 Allegany County men were drawn yesterday afternoon at the Court House here by court officials for jury service during the January term of Allegany County Circuit Court.

George F. Hazelwood, this city, head of the George F. Hazelwood Construction Company, was designated as foreman of the 23-man grand jury which will convene January 7 to consider indictment of persons charged with various offenses.

Report January 21

The 25 men drawn for petit jury service will not have to report for duty until January 21.

Drawn with Hazelwood for grand jury service were Lewis J. Lebeck, Milford L. Crabtree, John J. Dolphin, Jr., Fred W. Mills, C. Glen Watson, Jr., Clinton F. Snyder, Lonnie I. Jackson and Ralph G. Smeltz, all this city; Okey Michael and John L. Seymour, both Westernport; Walter F. Blank and John L. Poland, both Mt. Savage; Edgar H. Capel, Vale Summit; Charles Albert Smouse, Bedford Road; Robert O. Slemmer, LaVale; John R. Kiddy, Pekin; Alex C. Chatain, Ellerslie; Delvan C. Gainer, North Branch; Andrew Dunn and William Kroll, both Frostburg; James M. Baker, Ocean, and Robert Jones, Corriganville.

Petit Jurors

Called for petit jury duty are Harry M. Brotemarkle, Michael J. Malone, Louis A. Lippold, John L. Hull, William M. Daily, Frank E. Naughton, Albert M. Robinette, Harry G. Appel, John V. Lindner, Robert M. Boden, Linden M. Gump, George P. Giatras and John H. Dreyer, all of this city; Harry T. Duckworth, McCoole; Herman A. Filsinger, Eckhart; William M. Shaffer, Westernport; Earl F. Stonestreet, Flintstone; Russell Hosken and Zack T. Arnold, both Frostburg; Delbert R. Kitzmiller, LaVale; Albert G. Slider, Oldtown; Daniel Williams, Mt. Savage; H. Glenn Boyd, Luke; John J. Picken, Lonaconing, and Daniel W. Chapman, Shaft.

Present for the drawing were Associate Judges George Henderson and Morgan C. Harris, Clerk Joseph E. Boden, Deputy Clerk C. K. McDonald, Sheriff Edward R. Muir and Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis; Irvin J. Neat and C. William McDermott, registrars for the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors, and Robert B. Thomas, court stenographer.

Schools To Open On Full Schedule In County Today

Public schools in Allegany County, which closed at noon yesterday so pupils would be assured of getting home safely in the heavy snow storm, are expected to operate on a full schedule today, Superintendent Charles L. Kopp said late yesterday.

Kopp added that bus drivers will be advised to use their own discretion if roads prove too bad for travel this morning. Virtually all buses made scheduled trips to schools yesterday but attendance was off upwards of 25 per cent.

Record Number Of Calls Jam Phone Office

Extra Operators Called To Work

The central office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company "was jammed" here yesterday and a record number of over 124,000 local phone calls was placed by city residents, Richard E. Harman, manager, said last night.

The near-paralyzing effects of the wintry weather which invaded Cumberland last Friday and became worse yesterday morning was directly responsible for the deluge of calls, Harman added. Long distance calls from here were not delayed too much yesterday, although some calls to Pittsburgh were held up about an hour during the morning.

Operators Notified

All available operators were called out yesterday in an attempt to alleviate the tieup, Harman added. Many workers volunteered to stay on the job while numerous operators took over a switchboard before their regular shift in an attempt to assure best possible public service.

Complaints were flooding Harman's office throughout the day but the unprecedented number of calls were just "too much to handle" with the equipment available.

Little damage was reported to lines outside the central office throughout the Cumberland area other than those occurring on a normal day, Robert C. Lord, plant wire chief said. He added this picture could be changed easily with a heavy rain or sleet storm atop the present snow.

Maintenance Crews Set

Maintenance crews are in readiness for any emergency which may arise due to weather changes, Lord noted.

Since many of the operators were unable to get transportation to and from the central office, the telephone company officials set up a "shuttle" system and trucks and autos of the firm were put into service to get employes to work.

Actually the present tieup began on Friday when the unexpected winter snowstorm hit this area, Harman noted yesterday. He said a record number of 120,000 local calls had been placed on that day and over the weekend the normal number of about 80,000 calls has been surpassed. On Monday about 117,000 calls were placed by local residents and handled through the central office.

Approximately 185 local and long distance operators are employed at central office, Mrs. Helen C. Johnson, chief operator, said yesterday. The number of local positions at the office switchboards is 39 and the number of toll or long distance positions 21.

TELEPHONE SWITCHBOARD JAM—Yesterday a record number of telephone calls were placed at central office here resulting in a jam. A total of over 124,000 was expected to be handled according to Richard E. Harman, manager. Many operators stayed on the job while others reported for work before the change of shift in order to help in alleviating the tieup. Mrs. Helen C. Johnson, chief operator, was kept busy at the office assisting in her work.*Shown above is a switchboard with each wire representing a call being handled. Left to right are Emma Martin and Ann Buzzard, handling the numerous calls. Mrs. Johnson is seen to the right.

Medical Care Provided For 2,815 Persons

Plan Costs $7,174 During September

Medical care was being provided for 2,815 residents of Allegany County on December 1, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

The list includes 2,538 indigent persons who were certified for the Medical Care program by the Allegany County Welfare Board.

Another 277 persons classed as "medically indigent" were certified for the service by the County Health Department.

State Pays Costs

Funds for the program which includes free medical service and drugs, are provided through the Maryland State Department of Health.

Cost of Medical Care service in this county during September was $7,174.40, highest in the state.

During that month, 759 patients were cared for, at a cost of $4,310.77 for physicians, $127 for dentists, $2,679.63 for pharmacists and $57 miscellaneous expenses.

The Medical Care service was inaugurated in Maryland in 1945 to provide medical care for those who cannot afford to pay for the service.

Gas Officials Will Conduct Firemen Class

The second in a series of indoor classes for city firemen will be held this afternoon at 1 o'clock at Central Fire Station, Virgil A. Parker, chief, said last night.

James E. Batdorf and Robert Hobell, foremen of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company will lecture to the group on what city firemen could be able to handle in the way of fires resulting from gas, and means of combatting gas fires.

Rescue work and life saving are also included in the program. Last Sunday according to Long, he began conducting classes of basic fire fighting, which included fire department discipline, local and state laws pertaining to fire departments as well as other rules and regulations in a fire department.

This is the first in a series of 20 sessions of three hours each sanctioned by the Fire School of the University of Maryland. Long said each firemen is registered for the course and a quiz given at the completion of each session. Firemen making a certain percentage in the class room instruction will receive a certificate from the University, Long added.

Home Fire Causes Damage In Unit Of Mapleside Project

Keeping the home-fires burning sometimes results in cause for alarm and the services of the fire department even though the house may not be completed.

An overheated stove yesterday morning in one of the unfinished units of the Cumberland Housing Project in Mapleside resulted in firemen being called.

Plumbers working on Unit B-16 built a fire and the stove overheated. Firemen from South End rushed to the scene at 8:50 a. m. and checked the blaze which did some damage to the lower and upper floor as well as part of the insulation.

At 6:30 p. m. Central firemen went to the corner of Baltimore and Centre Streets where sparks were reported coming from the street decorations. No damage was caused but some of the Christmas lights were shut out.

Task Of Clearing Names Of War Prisoners Begins

The Defense Department last night began releasing the list of Americans named by the Communists as held in Prisoner-Of-War camps in Korea.

The Department emphasized that it "can not vouch for the accuracy" of the information since it was "supplied by enemy sources."

The Department also declared that the official casualty status of those listed "will not be changed by virtue of the enemy having reported them as prisoners of war."

The list is expected to take perhaps 48 hours to complete.

During that time, each hour, names checked together with home addresses and names of next of kin, are released to the Associated Press.

As these names are sent over wires of the press service, the Cumberland papers will publish those identified as being from this area.

At midnight last night, none of the hourly releases contained names of missing men from Cumberland or the Tri-State area.
